COAL CLAIMS THROWN OUT

Morgan-Guggenheim Syndicate Dealt Hard Blow.

Washington (Special).—The famous Cunningham Alaskan coal land claims, through which it has been alleged that the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate planned to extend their vast interests in Alaska and to control one of the most valuable coal fields in the world, finally have been disallowed by the department of the interior.

The decision of the department in disallowing the Morgan-Guggenheim coal land claims, may mean that many Michigan people who invested thousands of dollars in the Michigan Alaska Development company will lose their property rights.

CAILLAUX NEW PREMIER.

Old Minister of Finance Succeeds Monis.

Paris (Special).—The new French cabinet has been definitely constituted, and Joseph Caillaux, the premier who succeeds Monis, has presented his colleagues to President Fallieres, who signed the nomination decrees.

Premier Monis and his cabinet resigned Sunday.

Vienna (Special).—Baron von Bierneth, who has been premier since Nov. 1, 1908, although it became necessary to reconstruct his cabinet in February, 1909, has resigned as the result of the recent elections. The emperor immediately appointed Baron Gautch von Frankenthurn to succeed the retiring premier.

COPPER MERGER MAY PROCEED

Judge Swan Refuses Injunction to Prevent Combination.

Detroit, Mich., June 26.—Judge Swan, in the United States court, vacated the temporary restraining order issued February 28 and denied all relief [illegible] to G. M. Hymans New York, who is seeking to prevent the merger of the famous Calumet & Hecla copper mine in the upper peninsula with eight other copper mining companies.

Hymans had asked an injunction to prevent the combination on the ground that the Calumet & Hecla had practically reached the end of its career and that the appraisal placed upon it was highly excessive.

The decision is final as far as this state is concerned and means that the merger may be proceeded with.

JUDGE HANECY.

Who Represents Senator Lorimer in Bribery Inquiry.

SHADOWED BY SLEUTHS.

Lorimer Inquest Witness Says Four Detectives Continually Follow Him.

Washington (Special).—Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, startled the members of the Lorimer investigating committee when he charged that four private detectives of a Chicago agency had been shadowing him ever since he testified several months ago before the Hlm committee of the Illinois legislature.

In his testimony at that time he told how Edward Hines of the Edward Hines Lumber company asked him for a $10,000 contribution from the Harvester company to aid in paying the expenses of Senator Lorimer's election and he intimates now that Hines could tell about the activities of the four detectives. Funk testified that the sleuths had even followed him to Washington and were still dogging him even to the doors of the investigation committee rooms.

Two Michigan lumbermen, each a former Democratic leader of more than state-wide prominence, have been summoned to testify in the Lorimer case.

The Alger, Smith company of Detroit and Duluth was dragged into the case by W. H. Cook, lumberman of Duluth. His testimony was on Edward Hines' part in electing Lorimer.

500 Guardsmen at State Shoot.

Detroit, Mich., June 26.—Camp Abbey is now firmly established, and everything is being done in true military style. It is estimated that there are 500 officers and men of the Michigan National Guard attending the state shoot.

Nine Injured in Railroad Collision.

Pontiac, Mich., June 27.—Southbound passenger train No. 2 and northbound freight No. 5 on the P. O. & N. division of the Grand Trunk met in a head-on collision just south of Kingston. The passenger train remained on the track and five freight cars were derailed.

Nine persons were injured.

ADRIAN FIRMS PROTEST RATES

Railroads Brought to Court by Fence Companies.

DEFENDANTS MEMBERS C. F. A.

The Contention of the Complaining Firms Is That They Pay 10 Cents a Hundred More on Freight From Pittsburg Than Chicago Does—Also Claim Western Discriminations.

Detroit, Mich., June 26.—All fifth class commodity rates between Pittsburg and Chicago will be shattered and will have to be reduced should the interstate commerce commission decide the case begun here Monday by five Adrian wire fence concerns in favor of those firms against the railroads interested.

The firms are Adrian Wire Fence company, Michigan Wire Fence company, Monarch Fence compay, Lamb Fence company and Anthony Fence company. They ship and receive freight amounting to 50,000 tons yearly.

The defendants are the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Wabash, Pittsburg & Lake Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburg & Terminal, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Pittsburg, Cincinnati & St. Louis and Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroads, all members of the Central Freight associatio.

Briefly, the contention of the complaining firms is that they pay 10 cents a hundred more on steel wire used in the making of fences when shipped from Pittsburg to Adrian than the through rate from Pittsburg to Chicago. The rate from Pittsburg to Chicago per hundred is 18 cents, while the rate from Pittsburg to Adrian is 28 cents.

The Adrian firms also complain that they are discriminated against to the extent of $2 a ton in shipping their product west.

CEMENT INDUSTRY IN DANGER OWING TO THE HIGH RATES

Detroit, Mich., June 27.—That many Michigan cement companies would have to go out of business unless afforded relief by the interstate commerce commission from excessive railroad rates, was the statement of James R. Patterson general manager of the Peerless Cement company in a hearing in the federal building before Chief Examiner Brown of the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Patterson was a witness in the case which many of the cement companies of this state have brought against a number of railroads to bring a reduction of certain rates which they declare are discriminatory.

Turner—Edith Barbite of Luther, Lake county, was killed here by a D. & M. freight train. A passenger crew found the remains. She was going to Hillman to teach the normal school there. She was 28 years old and a graduate of the Mt. Pleasant Normal school.

Vassar—When police raided the home of a Mrs. Wildar, hunting for illegal whiskey, they found her son, John, aged 10, in the throes of delirium tremens, and Mrs. Wilda, two other children and Walter Stewart intoxicated. Stewart was arrested, charged with illegal traffic in liquor.

Lansing—Police were called out Sunday morning to quell a riot between members of the Mayflower Congregational church and members of the church of the Latter Day Saints, the former attempting to tear down an old church structure which they had sold to the other congregation, and the saints rallying to protect the property.

Morgan Gives Emperor Luther Letter.

Kiel, Germany (Special).—J. Pierpont Morgan has presented Emperor William with the autograph letter written by Martin Luther to Emperor Charles V. and for which he recently paid $25,000. The emperor was immensely pleased and forthwith conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of Red Eagle on Mr. Morgan.

STILL AFTER LABOR LEADERS

Judge Wright Issues an Order Against Samuel Gompers.

Washington (Special).—Justice D. T. Wright of the district supreme court has issued a rule against Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison and John Mitchell, the labor leaders, requiring them to show cause on July 17 why they should not be judged guilty of contempt of court.

This action followed the filing of the report of the special committee of attorneys appointed by Justice Wright to inquire into matter of contempt proceedings in the Bucks Stove & Range boycott case.

The committee was named following the United States' supreme court decision dismissing the jail sentences of the three labor leaders, but leaving an opening for another action and fines if the men are found guilty. The defendants will attack the naming of a committee to act in the case.

ROOT AMENDMENT KILLED.

New York Senator's Proposal to Modify Pulp Schedule Defeated.

Washington (Special).—After the senate had devoted a whole day to acrimonious debate on the Root amendment to the Canadian reciprocity agreement, both supporters and opponets were denied opportunity of going on record.

The New York senator's proposal to modify the wood pulp and print paper section of the agreement was defeated by an overwhelming majority, this being a great victory for President Taft, who is striving to put through the measure without changes.

Instead of the expected roll call vote, Vice President Sherman put the motion, "All in favor will say aye, opposed nay, the ayes appear to have it, the ayes have it, it is so orderel."

Castro In Colombia.

New York (Special).—Friends in this city of General Cipriano Castro say that a private cable message received here stated that the former president of Venezuela is quietly resting in a secluded spot in Barransuilla, a port of Colombia, after a trip across the Atlantic on the Consul Grostuck.

Mrs. Lea Is Improving.

Washington (Special).—Mrs. Lea, wife of United States Senator Lea of Tennessee, whose life is believed to have been saved by the transfusion into her veins of a quart of her husband's blood, is steadily improving.

Balloonists Fall Into Sea.

Bremen, Germany (Special).—One of the four balloons that ascended at Paris fell into the North sea, near the island of Juist, of the East Frisian group. A violent storm prevailed at the time and the aerial craft was carried rapidly out to sea. Two persons were aboard her. The empty balloon was recovered later.

Nine Men Terribly Burned.

Yonkers (Special).—A huge ladle, suspended from a crane and containing enough molten iron to cast a fifteen-ton winding mill drum was being hoisted when it exploded and the molten metal was spilled upon nine men, burning them all seriously.

There was such a small attendance at the meeting of the Pioneer Society called for Monday evening at the home of R. B. Gillespie that the prospect of a Home Comers day in August was not considered feasible. However it was decided to hold a public picnic Thursday Aug. 17, in one of the public parks. The meeting was adjourned until July 10, when committes will be appointed to make further arrangements.

HOME COMERS' DAY

Thursday dawned bright and beautiful and everybody was up and ready for the great event. Home Comers' Day was here. Had the day been ordered a better one could not have been had.

Bands met the home Comers at the trains, bands played on the streets and crowds was jolly wherever you met them. Delegations from everywhere swelled the number. Tecumseh was well represented as a host of people went from here. The parade took place about 10:30 a. m. the Detroit delegation leading wearing white badges red inscriptions. Then Chicago with white hats and maroon and white badges. Then Toledo with purple and white with a long line from other cities.

At 2 o'clock came the program at Monument square which was carried out in a fine manner.

The Roost at the Y. M. C. A. building was a Mecca of all the visitors pretty souvenirs of views of the city were given out. Everybody registered and cards were given to each one to fill out and return to be filed away with the records of the Home Comers Association. The day passed merrily for most, a view of sadness tinging it for many of the olden ties broken so many of the old friends gone. But Home Comers' Day is a notable event and will be cherished in the hearts of the people forever.

YUKON VALLEY NEWS

Through the courtesy of Mr. Geo. S. Tiffany we have had the pleasure of reading several papers bearing the above title. This is a four page 12x18 inch in size and is published at Tanana, Alaska the farthest north of the 60,000 papers of the world. Though the paper is small yet in one we counted seventeen ads which speaks well for the business men of the town.

This little item about mail is quite a contrast to our mails in Tecumseh. "Mail leaves Tanana for the outside on Saturday arrives Tuesday. Down river mail leaves Tanana Wednesday arrives Friday." Impatient as we are if the mail is not distributed to the minute half a dozen or more times a day think what it must mean to the people out there.

The ads have their peculair features as see, "Tiffany's suits of the latest fashions, Stationery, Confectionery and light Hardware." Mr. Tiffany is also Post Master.

Tanana is up to date in games and the report on a late basket ball game was fine. It was a ladies game and at the last moment one of the players was unable to be present. When lo the forward lady appeared in red blooms and played for the town team the post ladies however won the game by a score of 14 to 3. Later it transpired that the forward lady was general Postmaster Tiffany who so ably filled the vacancy.

We have noted with great interest and our thanks are due Mr. Tiffany for his kindess.

HE BID GOOD-BYE

M. W. Hensel's term of office as County Commissioner of schools for Lenawee Co. expires today, and Wednesday afternoon was the scene of a notable gathering of many of the teachers of the County at his home in Blissfield to express their friendly regard for him. He was presented with a fine Morris chair by these friends.

His first appointment was in 1894 by the supervisors to the board of school examiners, and was re-elected in 1896. In 1897 he was elected County School Commissioner, in 1896-1901 he was re-elected. In 1903 the law was revised so as to make the term of four years and he was elected for that time, in 1907 was re-elected. This spring he was defeated by Dr. Gray, who assumes the office July 1st. After serving 14 years he retires to private life for a season. He is very favorably known in the educational circles throughout the state and is quite prominent in fraternal societies.

SHAKESPEARIAN EVENING

Mr. John F. Howard, the Shakesperian Impersonator was greeted with a fair sized audience and a representative one, on the evening of June 27.

His rendering of Julius Caeser was much enjoyed by all present.

The reading, lacking the stage accessories of dress and scenic effect is rendered doubly hard for one to impersonate, But Mr. Howard overcame these difficulties and gave a very pleasing representation of the play.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

A very pretty informal wedding was that of Miss Mary Eaton and Ezra S. Henne, on the afternoon of Wednesday June 28.

About 60 guests assembled for the occassion. June lillies, ferns and smilax were used as decorations the green and white effect being charming.

The brides' dress was of white marquesette over white messaline, with pearl and lace trimmings. She greeted the guests as they arrived, and at the time appointed met the bridegroom and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. L. Fox a cousin of the groom and a former minister in the Presbyterian church here.

After congratulatins refreshments were served under the supervision of Mrs. B. Hurry, by the young girl friends of the bride, Ruth Keeney, Beth Satterwaite, Zillah Mills Miss Miss Mann and Harriett Hurry.

Many lovely token's of the esteem in which the bride is held were in evidence.

The happy pair were hurried away in an auto amid the best wishes of their many friends. Their home will be in Jacksonville, Ill., where Mr. Henne is engaged in the State Institute for the Deaf and Dumb.

Among the guests from out of town were: Mrs. J. C. Varner, of Denver, Colo., Mrs. Mabie Palmer, Lincoln, Neb., Miss Edith Loyckoff, Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Sarah Best, Fargo, N. D. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eaton and Miss Lulu Waring of Bryan, O., Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Metler and Mrs. Grassman, Mrs. R. M. Boyd and Seymour Boyd of Adrian, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Henne and son of Ann Arbor Mich., Mrs. C. M. Long, Miss Edna Bryan and Bryan Hayden of Grand Rapid, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lauphere of Ithaca, Mr. Chas. Waring of Toledo, O. and Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Finch and daughter of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agent for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a god-send to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach. Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health Try them. 50c at C A. A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C, A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 187 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. TRADE BILL WILL PASS

MAJORITY THE ONLY QUESTION

Penrose Attempts to Have Date Set For Vote on Commerce Pact, but Fails—Senator Townsend Makes Maiden Senatorial Speech, In Which He Lauds Reciprocity.

Washington (Special).—That the Canadian reciprocity pact will pass the senate is now so generally conceded as to leave only two questions: How big will be the majority, and will the pact be so amended as to compel the president to veto it?

Today, with every senator fully decided as to how he will vote, not only on the pact itself, but also as to the proposal to tack on the farmers' free list and the wool, schedule, a vote could be taken and the whole thing cleared up in less than a week.

Senator Penrose, realizing that the members are determined to talk themselves out on the subject, took opportunity before Senator Townsend began his maiden senatorial speech Tuesday to seek to have a date set for vote in the last week in July. This failed utterly.

Senator Townsend in his maiden speech made an eloquent plea for reciprocity, and he said that not only would he support the bill now under consideration, but he favored "a treaty which would have included all of the products of Canadian and United States industry on the free list."

OUR SOLDIER DEAD IN 84 CEMETERIES.

More Than 350,000 Heroes of Our Wars Are Buried In Graveyards Owned by the Government.

IN the palmy days of democratic Athens the bones of every citizen who perished in the service of his country were brought home to be buried in the Ceramicus. A day was appointed in the winter, when military operations were suspended, for the funeral. One of the noblest orations of antiquity—that attributed by Thucydides to Pericles—was delivered on such an occasion.

Modern nations build stately mausoleums for their great generals, but are usually content to allot only the hasty trench or ditch to the common soldier. The bones of British soldiers are scattered the world around.

To this rule of indifference as to the final resting place of obscure heroes the United States forms a shining and honorable exception. There are today eighty-four national cemeteries, which contained on June 30, 1909, the graves of 359,285 American soldiers and sailors.

The national cemeteries are mainly a result of the civil war. In September, 1861, the secretary of war by general order directed accurate and permanent records to be kept of deceased soldiers and their places of burial. The work was assigned to the quartermaster general's department. That department already had charge of the burial of officers and soldiers, but its care had ordinarily ended with the drifting smoke of the guns that were discharged over their graves.

By act of July 17, 1862, congress empowered the president to purchase cemetery grounds to be used for the burial of "soldiers who shall die in the service of their country." Such was the intensity of the great war that for some time no action was taken under the law.

Following the battle of Gettysburg Governor Curtin of Pennsylvania inaugurated a movement whereby several states purchased seventeen acres of ground embracing the center of the Union line and caused to be disinterred and reburied there the bodies of the soldiers who had been buried outside this area. The cemetery was dedicated by Lincoln, Nov. 19, 1863, in that perfect tribute to the "honored dead" who there "gave the last full measure of devotion." The cemetery was subsequently taken over by the nation.

In the summer of 1865 a force of men under Captain James Moore was sent to Andersonville to inclose the grounds and provide headboards for each grave. They were able to identify 12,461 of the graves, leaving only 451 "unknown."

The eighty-four national cemeteries are divided according to importance into twenty-six first class, twenty second class, sixteen third class and twenty-two fourth class cemeteries. Those in the first class include Arlington, Andersonville, Antietam, Chalmette, Chattanooga, Nashville, Corinth, Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Jefferson Barracks, Shiloh and Vicksburg.

In the number of interments that at Arlington stands first, with 21,106 That at Vicksburg is a rather close second, with 16,892. The Nashville cemetery is third, with 16,091.

Arlington, as is generally known, formerly belonged to the wife of General Robert E. Lee. Mrs. Lee was a daughter of George Washington Parke Custis, who was a grandson of Martha Washington. The stately mansion, whose classic columns have been seen by every visitor to Washington city, was inherited by her, and at the outbreak of the civil war it was the Lee home. Lee, then a colonel in the United States army, wrote his resignation there April 20, 1861. Two days later he quitted his beautiful home forever to accept command of the military forces of his state.

Overlooking as it does the Potomac and the capital, a more beautiful spot could scarcely be imagined. Magnificent old oaks shade its glades and knolls, and art has perfected what nature left undone. The cemetery contains the tombs of Logan, Sheridan, Lawton and other noted generals.

One of the most interesting national cemeteries is that on Custer's battle field in Montana. The story of how the dashing yellow haired young major general and every man of five companies of the Seventh cavalry lost their lives in battle with the Sioux, June 25, 1876, is known to every one. The smallest national cemetery is that at Ball's Bluff, Va. It is on the site of the battlefield of that name, fought in 1861. It is only fifty feet square and is situated on a large bluff overlooking the upper Potomac. It contains the graves of one known and twenty-four unknown soldiers.

THE LITTLE UNION BUSHWHACKER'S NERVE.

By CAPTAIN F. A. MITCHEL.

MRS. STARKWEATHER, living in middle Tennessee during the civil war, was a Union woman to the core. Her husband was killed by secessionists before hostilities began, leaving her very bitter against them. Her son, Tom Starkweather, was fourteen years old when his father was killed, and he made a boyish vow that he would never miss a chance to kill a secessionist. He found no opportunity to do so until after the war opened. Then at fifteen he began the work of revenge.

He would waylay his enemies and shoot them from behind trees, the regular bushwhacking method during wartime. One by one he picked off all of those who had been instrumental in his father's death.

In those days there were bands of partisan rangers in Kentucky and Tennessee, unenlisted, ununiformed men who fought for the Confederacy on their own hook, which meant that some of them were murderers and pillagers. These men were a special object of Tom's antipathy. A band led by one Bennett, made up in the region where he lived, lost so many men, whose deaths were traced to Tom, that they were anxious to get their hands on the boy.

Tom and another Union boy, Sam Parks, were a good deal together. Tom would do the shooting, and Sam would do the watching. But Sam was unknown by their enemies as having anything to do with the matter, Tom always taking the blame.

One day Bennett's band came into the district where the boys lived, and they went out hunting the rangers for their scalps. By this time Tom was known as the little Union bushwhacker, and Bennett had determined that if he ever caught him he would put an end to his shooting his men from behind trees. While the men were riding along a road one of them dropped behind. Tom, who was concealed in the woods, shot him. Then the two boys ran for Tom's home as fast as their legs could carry them.

Bennett, hearing the shot, galloped back and found his man badly wounded. He told his chief that he had probably been shot by the little Union bushwhacker. Bennett, surmising that Tom would go home, after calling to his men to take care of the one disabled, rode straight for Mrs. Starkweather's cabin Fearing that the boys would be followed, she hid them. When Bennett rode up and asked for Tom she told him that her son was not at home. But this did not satisfy the partisan leader, and he made a thorough search of the premises, with the result that both boys were dragged from behind a wood pile in a shed.

"Which of you boys is the little Union bushwhacker?" asked the captain.

Neither boy replied. Bennett asked the woman, threatening to shoot her if she did not reply.

"You don't suppose I'd tell you uns on my own son [illegible] get him killed as his father was?"

The captain thought a moment, then said to her:

The woman did as directed, which brought her back to the boys. Bennett handed each of them a revolver and said to them:

"When I give the order you two fire. The one that doesn't or misses I'm goin' to shoot right down."

This was rather a crude method of detecting which was the woman's son, but it was the best the captain could call up at the moment. He expected to judge by the flinching of the one who was required to fire at his own mother.

Now, Bennett had left his band to attend to this matter himself. He was so incensed at this new shooting by the little Union bushwhacker that he had dashed away after the culprit, waiting only to call for some one to take care of the man who had been wounded. It never occurred to him that he would need support in hunting a boy. So wrought upon was he by anger that he did not think of the danger of putting arms in the hands of the boy. The two youngsters stood facing Mrs. Starkweather. When the captain gave the order to fire Sam put a bullet as near as possible without hitting her. Tom, quick as a flash, brought his weapon to bear on Bennett and shot him through the forehead.

Mrs. Starkweather turned and, seeing the captain gasping his last breath, said quickly:

"Come, my boy; we must get out of this in a hurry. Sam, you go home. Nobody knows of your being mixed up in this fracas."

Without stopping even to return to the house she and Tom dashed off in one direction, while Sam went in another. The mother and son disappeared in a wood. At the same moment half a dozen horsemen belonging to the band, who, having heard the shooting, galloped after their captain, appeared up the road. When they reached the Starkweather cabin they found it deserted and Bennett lying dead.

They at once scattered to hunt for his slayer, but Tom knew of a hole in the ground overhung with bushes into which he and his mother descended, and the searchers missed them. When the hunt was given up they left their hiding place and made their way into the Union lines.

STORY OF ORIGIN OF MEMORIAL DAY.

TO an unknown German, a one time resident of Cincinnati and a veteran of the civil war, belongs the primary credit of suggesting a national Memorial day; to General John A. Logan, soldier-statesman and third commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and to Norton P. Chipman, adjutant general of the national organization, belongs the honor of promulgating the first order.

In the original orders issued from the Grand Army headquarters by General Logan, May 30 was designated as what has since been termed Memorial day. The order was issued early in May, 1868, and since that time May 30 has become a holiday and is observed by every Grand Army post in the Union.

General Logan's order, setting May 30 as Memorial day, was eagerly carried out, and the first observance of the day was widespread.

General Logan was elected commander in chief at an encampment held in Philadelphia in January, 1868. He established headquarters in Washington.

Early in May of that year Adjutant General Chipman received a letter from a member of a Cincinnati post in which the first suggestion for Memorial day was made. General Chipman, who is living in California, does not remember the name of the writer who described himself as a German who had served as a private in the Union army. This soldier wrote that in his native country it was a custom of the people to assemble in the spring and scatter flowers on the graves of the dead.

"Would it not be a good idea to have the Grand Army of the Republic inaugurate such an idea and set aside a day in spring in memory of the Union dead?" he wrote.

General Chipman regarded the suggestion most favorably, and accordingly he drew up a rough draft of a general order carrying the suggestion into effect. This he laid before General Logan, who heartily approved of the idea.

General Logan suggested that May 30 be made the date for the observance of Memorial day, his idea being that at that date spring flowers could be procured in profusion, even in the most northern states and in New England. There were several conferences on the subject between General Logan and General Chipman.

It is related that General Logan was so enthused with the idea of a general Memorial day that he added several paragraphs to the draft of the order drawn by General Chipman, which in the history of the Grand Army of the Republic is known as general order No. 11.

At first the wisdom of General Logan's order was doubted by many persons, who urged as an argument that the setting aside of a Memorial day would unnecessarily keep alive memories of the war and foster enmities. However, the objections were not strong enough, and the first Memorial day was generally observed, even by posts that had been instituted in the south.

THE NEGLECTED CARROT.

Without a Friend, Seemingly, in the Hotels and Restaurants.

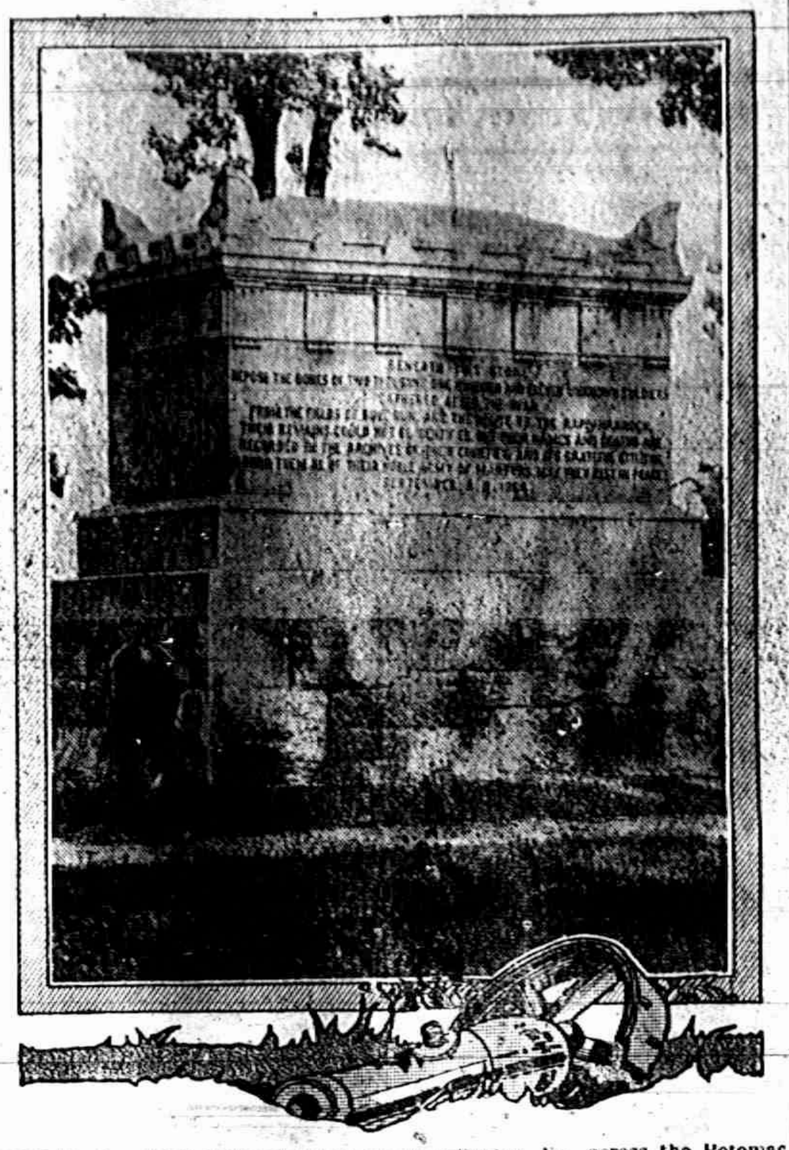
"If people did but know it," said a man who has made a study of the food question, "carrots are among the most nutritious and delightful vegetables that grow and yet it is almost impossible to get them in the average restaurant.

"Mashed carrots to my mind, make a delightful dish, tasty and healthful, and yet I have failed to find this dish on any bill of fare so far, and I have examined a good many carefully in the hope of finding the carrot recognized as it should be recognized. You can get mashed turnips almost any where you go, but the only use they have for carrots is to flavor soup or stews, although now and then one does strike them served in cream as a delicacy.

"But why not serve them like potatoes and turnips? Carrots are splendid for the blood, good for the complexion and at night are supposed to be quieting. Their digestibility if served mashed surpasses nearly all other vegetables. A delicate stomach will get away with them when other vegetables would work harm.

"And yet the carrot seems to be without a friend in the restaurants and hotels. You can't even find them in the list of vegetables to be cooked to order. It may be different with some other nations, but here apparently we have no use for them and the person who wants mashed carrots will have to cook them at his own

MONUMENT TO THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER DEAD.



IN the beautiful National cemetery at Arlington, Va., across the Potomac from Washington, the monument to the unknown dead is one of the most striking reminders of the pathos of war. This memorial, erected by the government in 1866, bears the following inscription, which tells its own pathetic story:

"Beneath this stone repose the remains of 2,111 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified, but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country, and its grateful citizens honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace! September, A. D. 1866."

MEMORIAL SERVICES

The Memorial Services held at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening were largely attended the church being filled despite the extreme heat. The G. A. R. turned out in a body and were the honored members of the congregation.

The male quarette sang a beautiful anthem, "The Call of the Roll on High" which was followed by the Scripture lesson and prayer, after which Mr. Fred Dickenson rendered a very fine solo. The Memmorial sermon by the Rev. B. F. Weld was on the subject of "Living Stones."

Tracing the history of the world through the ages that have passed monuments of stone are found every where. Stone being the most enduring of all things.

Reforming to a passage in Joshua he spoke of the pile of stone one for each tribe sacred to commenorate the safe passage of the 12 tribes through the Jordon with the Ark of the Covenent and then in St. Pauls Epistle to the living stones. Those who had come through trials and tribulations to the rest and peace. The old soldiers before him were living monuments of the great struggle through which they fought their way so bravely and so successfully bringing peace and plenty to our native lands. The sermon abounded in gems of deep thought and poesy and carried the audience along with the speaker through the realms of the past up to the present day Mrs. R. S. Moore gave a very touching solo. "Brave, Pure and True" in her own effective manner.

After the singing of a hymn and the benediction services May 30th.

WHO'S PUDDEFOOT?

There are plenty of Puddefoots—but "F. A." Puddefoot's a pusher. He's brought the Panama Canal right to your finger-tips, within reach of your naked eye. Most talks are just talks. Puddefoot's talks are "chats". He has taken the story of The Panama Canal—beaten all the musty old facts out of it—and boiled it down into crisp, short, catchy stuff.

He has 950 feet of motion pictures that fairly sparkle with interesting scenes; that were taken for the U. S. Government also 50 Stereopticon views If you wanted to see for your self what Puddefoots going to show you it would take two two weeks of your time and about $150 of your money. Puddefoots saving both for you—so Puddefoots a "good fellows."

President Taft says in "The Columbsan Magazine" for February that the Atlantic and Pacific oceans will "shake hands" for the first time, on or before January 1915. When the first ship passes through this Canal, it will pass through a water way that cost the U. S OVER 7 MILLION DOLLARS A MILE To MAKE. Pretty high priced traveling, isn't it?

Every man, woman and child in America should see this wonderful work pictured before them and get some idea of the vast work being carried on by the Goverment and you'll like to hear Puddefoot explain it He doesn't "Lecture" but just chats along with a "just-you-and-me" air that brings you mighty close to the subject he is talking about.

This instructive and interesting entertainment will be given in addition to the regular picture show at the Opera House, Friday and Saturday, June 2-3 and the price of admission is only 10c for adult and 5c for children

THE PASSING OF THE OLD LAND MARKS

'Tis said that sentiment is out of fashion,
Nothing worth while but for the price it brings.
The Iconclast stands ready with his hammer.
'Break and destroy', the song he ever sings.

Progress may be the watch word of the coming generation but to the past and present it has a depressing and a saddening effect, especially when we see the old land marks disappearing one by one, do we feel that old age and its associations count for nothing.

Passing up the street one evening imagine are dismay, at seeing the old iron fence that has surrounded the Fisher home laid low, the home built in 1850 has had this fence as guard so many years that it is with real regret, that we saw it removed, but the house itself we trust will remain for many years, suggesting the memory of Mr. and Mrs Murry and Dr. Fisher who occupied it for so long.

Associated with that we trust will also remain unchanged as land marks, the Hayden house with its associations with the large family of boys and girls who made it such a happy home. The Judge Stacy home with its house full of boys, and those spacious rooms the gathering place for so many years, of those who made merry with music and dancing, the old home of E. B. Wood with its fine lawns its beautiful trees. These places built in the years ago we hope will never change, for there are so few of the land marks left. The old home of Dr. M. A. Patterson, where so many years hes lived and ministered to the old settler has lost its identity in an apartment house. While we are proud of our Library, and appreciate its surroundings, yet memory clings to the cottage occupied by the Hon. B. L Baxter, and we hear again his merry laugh as he tells some jolly tale, while the Opera House with its Nickle theatre makes diversion for us now, who does not remember the pleasant home of Lon tribou with its wealth of lilacs and other flowers that made its front yard a bower of beauty The little old home of Mrs. Wheeler on Chicago St. one of the oldest in the history of our town is relegated to the back yard and used for a barn, and a lovely home now occupies its former site, On the corner where now stands the Masonic temple was a little old frame building owned by Alfred James and used by him as a grocery And one block farther down the street, who does not see the old house so long the home of Peter R. Adams now superceeded by the pleasant home of J. D. Shull and family. We might go on indefinitely recalling these old landmarks that have passed away but it brings a feeling of sadness, And we can only wish that Father Time will spare us these few for many years.

TELEPHONE EXTENSION

About ten days ago a car load of poles came into Tecumseh and the farmers from Macon were in bright and early for poles and wire, for the extension to the telephone line through part of Macon. This line starts from the Frank Clarkson house, now occupied by George Stone with Reatoire, Sisson, Keornig and Horace C Smith as the new additions, with others to follow.

The line was completed Thursday, and the hello girls will be kept busy for awhile.

The telephone business seems to be steadily increasing, and surely is one of the growing necessities of the times.

KITCHEN FURNISHINGS

It is not many years since "Kitchen Furnishings" would have been a ridiculous phrase, for at that time there were no conveniences in kitchen furnishings. But today there are cabinets, and various articles that help to make a back number of the old adage, "Woman's work is never done." Besides, the kitchen is the heart of the home; and our health—our most valuable asset—is largely dependent upon this condition. We will take real pleasure in having you inspect our "Kitchen Cabinets" in our store.

The Proof That Tecumseh Readers Cannot Deny

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of mine? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials They say time has completed the test.

Mrs Charles Stevenson, Wyandott and Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Sharp, shooting pains across the small of my back were the first symptom of my kidney trouble. Other difficulties set in later and I was made miserable. Being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so and the pains soon disappeared. For years I had also been bothered by gravel, but Doan's Kidney Pills removed the troubl."

The above statement was given in 1906 and on December 9, 1908, Mrs. Stevenson confirmed it in detail, adding that her cure had been permanent.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results, is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building. Monticello, Ill.

MAKING OF AND MARKETING BUTTER

One bad butter cow will eat up the profit of several good ones.

Good butter must be properly presented to the market. It must not only be good but look good.

Dairy cows must be treated in accordance with their importance, as a factor of success and the milk and cream must be handled properly from cow to churn, and from churn to market.

Butter worth 40 cents per pound is made from the same milk that grease worth 20 cents a pound it made from and it takes as much to make the one as the other.

High grade butter is the result of intelligence—poor butter the result of ignorance. The one is in demand everywhere, the other goes begging in the market.

Cream that is being ripened should be thoroughly stirred several times before it is ready for churning.

Do not fill the churn over one-third to one-half full. Give the cream room for agitation.

Too much working will spoil the grain of butter and make it soft while leaving too much water in will spoil its keeping qualities.

Butter is usually worked enough when the water has been removed so that the butter will bend without breaking.

Cool the milk as soon as it comes from the cow both in winter and summer.

Too Near the Pole.

"Omit, if you please, the first verse of the hymn," said the minister.

The congregation looked surprised.

"It mentions 'Greenland's icy mountains,'" explained the minister. "We cannot afford to introduce into this peaceful gathering any subject likely to lead to acrimonious debate."—Philadelphia Ledger.

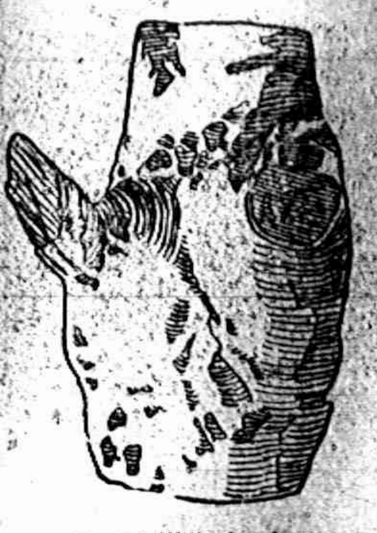
When and How To Prune

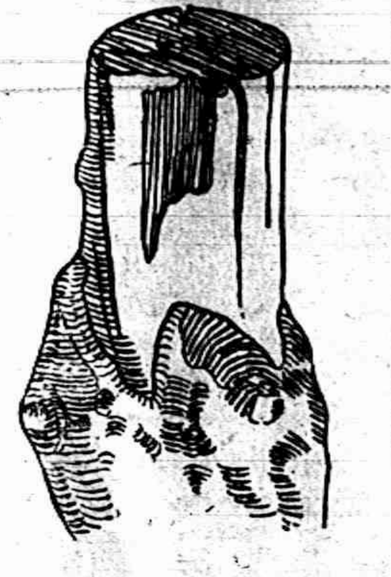
An inexperienced man with an axe and a hand-saw can do more harm in an orchard in one day than can be repaired in ten years' growth; therefore we urge owners of orchards to employ competent men to teach them how to prune, study the best methods as found in the books, or let them alone.

We present three examples of bad pruning in the pictures with this article which are taken from an excellent bulletin issued by the Indiana Experiment Station.



Pruned With An Ax.

For the cleaning of the old orchard where many large limbs are to be removed, winter is, perhaps, the best time to prune, but the cutting out of sprouts and shaping up trees that have been fairly well taken care of, spring, summer or fall are all equally seasonable.



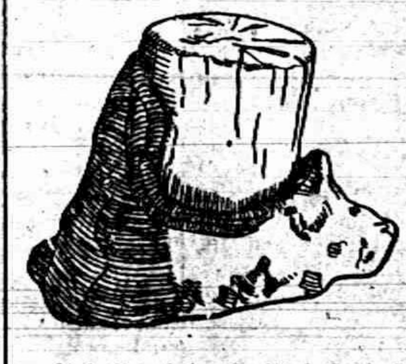
No Excuse for Mutilating a Tree Like This.

Never use an axe. An example of pruning with an axe is shown in one of the pictures. Always use a saw for large limbs, first taking a cut on the under side and then sawing down to it from the upper side in order that the stub will not split.

Saw the limb as close to the tree as possible and not at right angles, but sloping. Some orchardists are so particular that they go to the trouble of smoothing off very large cuts with a jack plane before painting over or waxing, in order that there shall be no rough surfaces into which water can soak, and thus cause rot.

For small branches good pruning-shears and different styles of pruning-saws can be had of any hardware dealer.

If your orchard is planted too close, so that after pruning sunlight cannot reach all parts of the tree, do not hesitate to cut out every other one if necessary. Apple-trees should never be less than 30 feet apart each way.



Stub Too Long to Heal Over.

First cut all of the dead wood in the orchard, then snip off all of the suckers, both at the roots of the tree and on the limbs. These do not bear fruit, but only suck the life of the tree and prevent the fruit from maturing properly.

If the trees have been allowed to grow tall and compactly, cut in some of the largest branches, leaving those that shoot outward; always working with a view of making the tree large laterally instead of allowing it to grow tall.

Never permit branches to twist or twine in with one another, or cross or rub against each other. Open out the tree-top by removing the surplus branches in order to allow the sunlight to reach all parts of the tree.

No one can afford to keep a fat dairy cow. If a cow gets fat while in milk she uses too much of her feed for other purposes than making milk of it. A cow that has a good appetite, eats heartily and keeps thin in flesh while giving milk is usually a good one to keep.

WIT AND HUMOR

All the Details.

Every calling has its technical vocabulary, and those who are familiar with it are often surprised and irritated at the difficulty other people have in understanding it. A writer in the New York World tells of an old horseman down in Maine who had run over a man, and was being sued for damages.

The court asked the defendant if he was driving fast. He answered. "I was going a pace." The court then said, "Now, kindly tell the gentlemen of the jury just how fast you were going."

"Well," said the defendant, "I reckon I was going a clip."

"Well, will you tell the jury how fast a clip is?"

"Well, it's going a dite."

"Now, will you tell the jury how fast a dite is?"

"Well, a dite's a dite. Anybody knows how fast a dite is."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

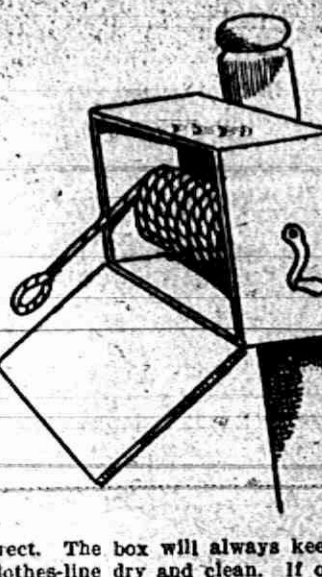
THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

HOMEMADE HANDY CLOTHESLINE REEL

Any bright boy can make this reel for his mother after he has studied the picture for five minutes. Set the post firmly in the ground, tamping in broken stone or brickbats to hold it erect. The box will always keep the clothes-line dry and clean. If one of the posts is set just inside the kitchen porch and another box placed upon it, the clothes-line may be wound up from either end by adding sufficient string to reach the distance between the posts. The reel should be of a stout piece of wood and the box must be strong enough to stand the strain of the line when full of wet clothes.



A BIG ENTERPRISE

Reclamation of several hundred thousand acres of semiarid land in eastern Colorado, lying above the level of existing irrigation systems in the valleys is the huge enterprise proposed by a Colorado Springs hydraulic engineer. It is planned to generate forty thousand horse-power, by the erection of two power-plants on the Arkansas river, near the mouth of the Royal Gorge. From these, transmission lines will radiate throughout southern Colorado, enabling farmers to pump subterranean drainage water in sufficient quantities to transform large tracts east and south of Colorado Springs into fruitful farms.

A well bred mule colt will bring on an average of $200 when broken at three years of age.

To Remove Lettering From Flour Sacks

There are a multitude of uses for flour sacks, but these are much nicer for any purposes when the lettering has been removed. Simply washing with soap and water will not do this. The night before the sacks are to be washed the letters should be sprinkled with kerosene. Let this remain on during the night and the next morning boil the sack in strong suds. After this treatment the lettering will have disappeared.

To Use Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet potatoes that are left over from a previous meal are nice when sliced and fried brown in hot butter.

When the springtime comes and the active boys and girls, filled with the zest of life, are rolling hoops, jumping rope and playing ball, mothers do get bothered and mothers are in despair not only because of this, but because of the big holes that the catches sometimes tear in little stockings.

Now, however, a novel kind of hosiery has been put on the market for the youngster, obviating all difficulties of this kind.

These are nothing more or less than stockings which reach all the way to the little waists, having a straight piece back and front, which is of elastic material, with button holes which button right onto the little underwaists.

Such hosiery is not only practical, but prevents all possibility of the garter showing beneath small skirts or bloomers, and also serves to keep the underwaist in place.

The stockings come in brown and black and white, and the same styles are also shown in stockings for women, although these are less popular than the ones for the boys and girls.

It is going to be a great cotton season, and cottons are going to be tolerated where formerly they have been prohibited.

Many a man has squeezed his way out of a tight place in his love affairs.

Down in Frog Hollow.

"Could I have a glass of ice water?" asked the weary broom peddler as he climbed up to the editorial rooms of the Frog Hollow Enterprise.

"Yeou could not!" drawled the editor as he lighted his traditional corncob.

"And why not?"

"Wall, because ther don't happen to be any ice water here. Last week I read that ice water stopped the circulation and I ain't running any chances."—Chicago News.

Not Abashed.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"None of your business, sir," she said.
"Suppose I should turn my nose up at you—
And the young man giggled and said,
"If you do
I won't be angry a little bit.
I'll kiss you, my dear, right under it."
—Chicago News.

J ROADS ARE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

The value of good roads is often not appreciated by the farmers as much as it should be. Of course the burden of making better roads fall directly on them, which is another side of the problem.

The average cost of hauling a ton one mile on the ordinary country roads is $.25, while the average price of hauling one ton one mile on the railroads is 3-4 of 1c.

In other words, the cost of hauling is 33 times as much with teams and wagon as with steam. This has been accomplished by a number of factors. Some of these can be and must be considered in making good roads, that is, to have a good hard road bed and to eliminate grades.

The railroads do not as a rule have a grade of more than 3 per cent, some of them have adopted 2 per cent as the maximum grade. Two per cent would mean a rise of 2 feet in a 100 feet.

GRAPE PLANTING.

Plant grape cuttings very early in the spring—as early as the ground can be worked. The cutting should slant a little, and only have one bud above the ground.

Feeding Lambs at a Profit

A farmer in Ohio asks what should be the average cost of feeding lambs in large lots. This depends almost entirely upon the price of grain. A farmer may figure that he can raise corn, oats, and alfalfa at a very low cost but he must take into consideration the market value in feeding calculations.

It is estimated that at the average price of grain and roughage during the past five years the cost of putting flesh on a lamb runs from two to two and a half cents per day provided they are fed in large lots. In the western states where alfalfa makes three or four crops per year it could be done more cheaply and on the average farm of the middle west the cost does not exceed in any case two cents. A good feeder ought to put from thirty to forty pounds on a lamb in about four months. If he can do this and sell his lambs at present high prices he will be making money. At present values a feeder ought to realize from $2.50 to $3.00 per head gain to say nothing of the appreciation of the value of the animal itself.

Of course very much depends upon the man. He may feed heavily, use only the best rations, but if he exposes his lambs to bad weather, allows them to run in the mud, become chilled, or does not give them the very best of care, much of his grain will be wasted and he will find himself out of pocket at the end of the season.

Feeders in the alfalfa states have done very well in the past five years in buying lambs, in fact sheep of all grades, fatting them on alfalfa and sending them to Kansas City and Chicago. Feeders in Ohio and other central states can always find good markets and top prices for hot house lambs or prime fed youngsters nearly every month of the year. While we have not figures at hand to verify this statement we believe that more mutton is consumed in proportion to other meats than ever before. Our farmers are learning how to produce the highest grade of mutton and it finds favor with city folk who owing to the indifferent quality presented to them heretofore have not looked with favor upon this kind of meat.

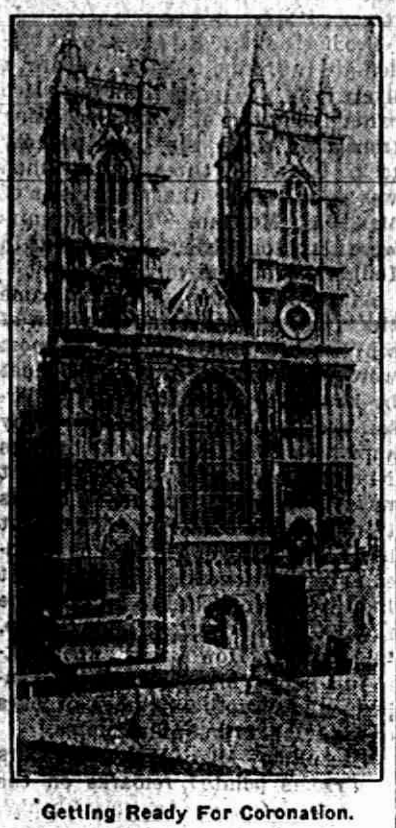
Historic Building In Which King George Will Be Crowned.



Getting Ready For Coronation.

London (Special).—The official regulations to govern the coronation are being gradually concluded. The king has made a number of special appointments of high and picturesque officials. The police have issued elaborate regulations to control the crowds on coronation day. Many receptions, balls and dinners are being held, and the coming three weeks will be a whirl of social excitement.

SIX DROWN ON THE SAME DAY

Michigan Waters Claim Many Victims Sunday.

Lansing, Mich., May 29.—Fred Frank, aged eighteen, and Lorenzo Stibel, aged fifteen, both Lansing boys, were drowned Sunday in Grand river, in the vicinity of Waverly park. The boys had gone in bathing, in deep water from a boat, and, neither being able to swim, they sank when the boat overturned.

Detroit, Mich., May 29.—Albert Renner, twenty-four years old, 475 Waterloo street, and Arthur Armiteed, eighteen years old, 1237 Bellevue avenue, were drowned at the foot of Fairview avenue Sunday. Their bodies were recovered about an hour later by Harbormaster Ellison.

Coldwater, Mich., May 29.—George Jakowiak, fireman on a tug boat operated by the Wolverine Portland Cement company, fell from the tug in Coldwater river Sunday afternoon and was drowned. Jakowiak was twenty-nine years old and only two weeks ago buried his young wife. He leaves three children, the oldest one seven years old.

Battle Creek, Mich., May 29.—Selfridge Chomas, aged thirty-five, a nurse at the sanitarium, was drowned Sunday afternoon in Lake Gougac when his canoe capsized.

M. C. TRAIN LEAVES RAILS AT ONONDAGO

Passengers In Panic, but None Are Seriously Injured.

Onondago, Mich., May 29.—The Michigan Central excursion train which left Grand Rapids at 6:30 p. m., was derailed on a curve about one-quarter of a mile west of Onondago depot. The engine and every coach left the track, caused by the rails spreading, throwing the passengers into a panic, although luckily no one was seriously injured. Trucks were torn from coaches and imbedded into the roadbed up to the bodies of the cars, and the rails for some distance were ripped up and the ties scattered and ground to splinters.

Veterans Parade Detroit Streets.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—More than half the nation ceased as much of its daily work as possible and paused on Tuesday to honor those who fought that the Union might live. It is just fifty years since the great civil war began, and for that reason the observance this year was of greater proportions and significance than usual. Ideal weather conditions prevailed here, and the veterans paraded the street to the strains of patriotic airs, and no prostrations or other casualties were reported for the day.

BOYNTON'S BODY BORNE TO GRAVE

Prominent Maccabees Attend Founder's Funeral.

15,000 WATCH CORTEGE PASS

Masonic Brothers Bore Casket to and From the Hearse, and Maccabees and Masons Marched In Line Behind It Through the City—Veterans of Sanborn Post Also In Line.

Port Huron, Mich., May 31.—The funeral of Major N. S. Boynton was held from the family residence on Huron avenue, and one of the largest funeral corteges ever seen in the city escorted the "Father of the Maccabees" to the last resting place in Lakeside cemetery. Prominent Maccabees from many points were in the city to pay their last mark of respect to the founder of the order.

The body of Major Boynton lay in state at his late home. The various civic organizations of the city formed part of the funeral escort. The members of William Sanborn post, G. A. R., and Company C also marched in the funeral procession.

Masonic brothers bore the casket to the hearse, and then the Maccabees and Masons marched in line behind it through the city. Fully 15,000 stood silently and respectfully along the streets, an evidence of the esteem with which Major Boynton was regarded by his neighbors and fellow townsmen.

Following a week's critical illness, Mr. Boynton, founder of the Knights of the Modern Maccabees, died at his home here last Saturday.

Major Boynton had been in ill-heath for more than two years, but two weeks ago he was suddenly attacked with the grip and steadily lost in strength. He had long been troubled with a cancer.

Major Boynton had been known throughout the length and breadth of Michigan for many years as "Father" Boynton, and with the spread of the fraternal order with which he had been connected all his life, became widely known throughout the United States. He was born in Port Huron in 1837, and that city was his life-long home.

INNOVATION FOR WORKERS.

Beet Weeders Will Live In Portable Steel Houses.

Bay City, Mich., May 29.—Steel houses on wheels for the accommodation of laborers in the sugar beet fields is the latest development in Michigan's growing sugar industry. At the Davidson shipyards, where there is plenty of room and machinery, a number of men have been set to work making portable steel houses. Several will be shipped to Mt. Clemens, and others will be used at other Michigan factories. They are one and two room affairs, with oak frames and galvanized roofs and sides, with two entrances and a couple of windows each.

The culture of sugar beets requires from about June 1 to October 1, the services of an unusually large number of common laborers for weeding. The demand for help is far beyond the supply that could possibly be obtained in the sugar beet districts, and the sugar companies have for several years been importing for the summer's work train loads of foreign laborers from both western and eastern states. Housing these people has always been a problem as it would not pay to build cottages for them. Tents and large hastily constructed frame "boarding house" shacks have also been tried. Captain James Davidson believes he has solved the problem with his portable houses. The wheels are solid and will admit of comparatively rapid movement.

New York (Special).—John Hays Hammond, United States' representative at the coronation, has sailed on the steamer Cedric for London.

TRUSTS MUST GO.

Government Will Adopt "Rule of Reason" Policies of Supreme Court.

Washington (Special).—That the government means to formulate its anti-trust policies in accord with the "rule of reason" as laid down by the supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust decisions, notwithstanding the vigorous dissents of Associate Justice Harlan and the large number of bills introduced in the senate to amend the Sherman anti-trust law, has been made evident here.

Administration officials, after consideration of the recent decision of the supreme court that the American Tobacco company constituted a combination in restraint of trade and after comparison with the Standard Oil decision, were agreed that "the rule of reason" is no new feature of the supreme court's interpretation of law.

St. Paul (Special).—Frank B. Kellogg, who successfully prosecuted the Standard Oil dissolution suit on behalf of the government, said, after reading the account of the decision in the American Tobacco company case:

"Taking the Standard Oil case and the tobacco case together, I do not see any loophole through which the trusts can escape. Any combination or monopoly, whatever form it takes, can be reached under the rule laid down in these decisions."

Death Is Thinning the Ranks.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 31.—Memorial day was observed here under ideal conditions. The parade of the veterans through the main streets showed the remarkable inroads that death has made upon their ranks since last year. Especially was this noticeable in the Michigan Soldiers' home division.

Aeronaut Drowned In River.

Lansing, Mich., May 29.—Glen Farrell, twenty-six years old, was drowned in Grand River, near here, while making a balloon ascension at Waverly park. Farrell, together with Abner Ansbell, was making ascensions at the opening celebration of the park. Ansbell made a safe landing, but Farrell's parachute fell into the river, and Farrell sank to his death. His body was recovered.

Hurricane Kills Two.

St. Louis, Mo. (Special).—A hurricane lifted the grandstand in the Granite City (Ill.) baseball park and turned it over on more than twenty persons huddled behind it. Nearly all were injured, several seriously. During the storm two boys were killed.

DIAZ SAILS FOR SPAIN

Resigned President Will Make His Home In Madrid.

MADERO CONTROLS SITUATION

Although He Resigned the Provisional Presidency in Favor of De La Barra, Rebel Leader Is Apparently Ruler of Mexico—Bloodthirsty Mob Runs Riot In Cholulu.

Vera Cruz, Mex. (Special).—Porfirio Diaz, weak and nerve-shattered, has embarked for Spain on board the Hamburg American steamship Ypiranga.

General Diaz probably will make his home in Madrid. General Diaz speaks no other language other than Spanish, and, outside of Mexico, he would find the most congenial surroundings in Spain.

All the armies, railroads and telegraph lines of Mexico seem under control of Madero today. The government, through Provisional President De la Barra, has passed into his hands, and, though he resigned the provisional presidency in favor of De La Barra on Friday, he is apparently ruler of Mexico just as much as if he already sat in Diaz's chair and is able to control the movements of both federal and insurrecto armies.

Before another month passes, it is probable there will be changes in the personnel of the governors of nearly every one of the twenty-seven states in Mexico. This was the declaration of Francisco I. Madero, Jr. He said that the installation everywhere of provisional governors soon would be followed by state elections.

CHOLULA, MEXICO IN HANDS OF LAWLESS MOB OF REBELS

Puebla, Mex. (Special).—A rising which resulted in the killing of forty persons and the sacking of stores, government offices and private homes, has occurred at Cholula, a town with a population of about 10,000. The rebels then set fire to the town which is threatened with destruction.

MADERO LOOKS FOR EARLY PEACE IN MEXICO

Juarez, Mex. (Special).—At Madero's headquarters, where reports of chaotic conditions in many parts of the interior have been received, it was said that every effort would be made to spread the news of the peace agreement.

Confidence that order soon will be restored throughout northern Mexico was expressed by Senor Madero.

CONSPIRACY IS NIPPED IN THE BUD

El Paso, Tex. (Special).—Revelations of an alleged plot to start another revolution in Mexico after overthrowing the leadership of Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and preventing his journey to Mexico City were brought to light here upon the arrest of Daniel De Villiers of Mexico City. W. F. Dunn, an American, has also been arrested in connection with the plot.

HARROUN WINS BIG RACE.

One Life Is Sacrifice to Demon Speed on Indianapolis Motor Track.

Motor Speedway, Indianapolis (Special).—One life was sacrificed and several men were injured Tuesday in the first 500-mile motor race on a speedway. The great test of skill and endurance was won by Ray Harroun, driving a Marmon car, in 6:41:08. Closely pressing Harroun for the victory were Ralph Mulford with the Detroit car, a Lozier, who finished second, and David Bruce-Brown, who drove a Fiat to third place.

A DANGEROUS ADVERTISING

There is one thing allowed to be done in our village that should have attention at once. that is the different Drug and Patent Medicine Houses sending their representatives here and distributing their advertising matter and pills, head-ache tablets and etc.

Of course the advertising matter is alright, but think for a moment what the result is of a little child left on the porch or in the yard getting one of these boxes and eating the pills thinking it candy. Think what effect two or three of these pills have on a grown person, then think what effect it has on a small child.

There should be a resolution passed by our common council prohibiting this peddling of these samples. There is one house known which gives out free cards or coupons which can be taken to the drug store and get the samples which is a very safe way to get the advertising out.

Only this week it has been reported that children have found these boxes and some were made very ill by eating the same. This a matter that should have attention at once and trust the people of our village will take the matter up with our president and different councilmen in such a manner that some action will be taken be-fore some child has lost his life due to to this careless manner of advertising.

A Citizen.

Funniest Clowns On Earth are with Dan Robinson's Famous Shows.

A good circus makes all the world akin—at least that portion of humanity within the reach of any big circus.

A boy never forgets his first circus—neither does a girl forget it. It is one of the mile-stones that mark the altogether too fleeting years of childhood's career of innocent and harmless pleasure. What would a circus be without a band? What would it be without a clown?

The circus clown dates his origin back to the beginning of the circus itself, and has ever been one of the most important features. He is funnier now and can do more tricks than ever before. In the old days one clown sufficed to satisfy the demand for the show-goers, but now it takes twenty-five for the Dan Robinson Famous Shows.

The acrobatic work is only a small part of a clown's performance. He must be versatile. It is the rough and tumble and apparently furiously abusive acts, knocks and slaps of the clown that invariably create the most laughter.

This is one of the best shows on the road, but what would its vast array of talent amount to without the tireless work of the "funny fellows."

All the clowns will be here with the big shows, in Adrian, Thursday, June 8th.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S MONUMENT IN ARLINGTON.

Decoration Day

The services at the Presbyterian church Tuesday afteonoon were of deep interest, and were listened to by an appreciative audience. The following program was given:

Introductory—President, J. H. Smith.
Invocation—Rev. B. F. Weld.
Solo—Mrs. C. S. Ruthruff.
Lincoln Gettysburg Speech—H. J. Sweet.
Recitation—Nellie Mingay.
Solo—Mrs. D. P. McAlpin.
Address—Rev. G. N. Kennedy.
Recitation—George J. Keyser.
Duet—Metta McKinney and Edna Gaston.

The address by the Rev Geo. N. Kennedy was full of deep thought and he paid high tribute to the boys in blue who are the men whom we would honor to-day.

The readings and recitations were exceptionally good and the singing appealed to the heart of the listeners.

At the close of the exercises the line was formed for the cemetery, where the last duties were paid to the departed, when their graves were decked with flowers. The Floral car with the band of young girls in white, was a beautiful feature of the parade.

The old soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic marched in line, and if not with the old sprightliness, yet with the same love of country filling their hearts, and the same devotion to the old flag.

But one by one they are passing away, and the ranks grow less year by year, as tired nature refuses to bear them on the march, and they drop into their last sleep as "taps" are sounded.

SOPHOMORE PARTY

The Sophomores had a party at the home of Mr. Thomas Russell west of town, on Monday evening. Carriages were provided to carry the guests, and a merry crowd assembled.

The house was freely decorated in the class colors maroon and white, and presented a most charming appearance. Games were played, music was enjoyed, and a general good time was passed by all. Light refreshments were served later, to which all did ample justice.

DEATH OF MABLE A. WARING

A telegram received Thursday morning by Joseph Waring to the effect that his daughter Mabel was to be operated upon at once for appendicitis was followed later in the day by one announcing death. Her sister Mrs. Will Ingersoll, was on the way to her before the second message was received.

It is thought that the body may reach here Monday. Our deepest sympathies go out to the sorrowing family in their sudden bereavement.

WHO'S PUDDEFOOT?

There are plenty of Puddefoots—but "F. A." Puddefoot's a pusher. He's brought the Panama Canal right to your finger-tips, within reach of your naked eye. Most talks are just talks. Puddefoot's talks are "chats". He has taken the story of The Panama Canal—beaten all the musty old facts out of it—and boiled it down in to crisp, short, catchy stuff.

He has 950 feet of motion pictures that fairly sparkle with interesting scenes; that were taken for the U. S. Government also 50 Stereopticon views If you wanted to see for your self what Puddefoots going to show you it would take two two weeks of your time and about $150 of your money. Puddefoots saving both for you—so Puddefoots a "good fellows."

President Taft says in "The Columbsan Magazine" for February that the Atlantic and Pacific oceans will "shake hands" for the first time, on or before January 1915. When the first ship passes through this Canal, it will pass through a water way that cost the U. S. OVER 7 MILLION DOLLARS A MILE TO MAKE. Pretty high priced traveling, isn't it?

Every man, woman and child in America should see this wonderful work pictured before them and get some idea of the vast work being carried on by the Goverment and you'll like to hear Puddefoot explain it. He doesn't "Lecture" but just chats along with a "just-you-and-me" air that brings you mighty close to the subject he is talking about.

This instructive and interesting entertainment will be given in addition to the regular picture show at the Opera House, Friday and Saturday, June 2-3 and the price of admission is only 10c for adults and 6c for children.

STABBING AFFRAY

Result of Neighborhood Quarrel Thursday Evening June 1

Our quiet village was the scene of great excitment Thursday evening when the word was spread that a stabbing affray hand taken place in the southeast part of town. E. T. Bean and Fred Peoter had some words over personal affairs and as the controversy became more heated Mr. Bean drew his pocket knife and inflicted five severe stabs on the neck and left side of Peoter. Closing his knife he resumed his pipe.

He was arrested and lodged in the jail at Adrian, waiting for further developments. Mr Peoter was left in a very weak condition but was resting quietly this morning.

SENIOR RECEPTION

HELD AT THE HOME OF HERBERT HENDERSON, MAY 29, 1911

A Fine Program Enjoyed by About 80 Present; A Delicious Three Course Lunchon

The pleasant home of Herbert Henderson was the gathering place of the Juniors Monday evening to partake of the hospitality of the Seniors.

The beautiful lawn was enclosed on all sides by tamarack trees, and Japanese lanterns were displayed in profusion. Couches and easy chairs were scattered around for the comfort and convenience of the guests.

The piano was brought out on the porch and everything conspired to make the evening a merry one The guests were met at the rustic gate by a committee on reception, Messrs Henderson, Cadmns, and Hanham and the Misses Aten, Rhoades, Orr and Brown who passed the company on to the little maids Marjorie Rosacrans, Muriel Halladay and Nerissa Fitzsimmons who escorted them to the dressing rooms within.

Promptly at 8:30 the guests were bidden to the dinning tables where a lively hunt was indulged in for place cards, the letters of each name being transposed made the hunt no easy task. A delicate three course lunch was served under the supervision of Mrs. Jas. McCann. The souvenirs were Harrison-Fisher heads done in India ink and were very artistic.

After this feast was enjoyed came the "feast of reason and the flow of soul" with Dale Hodges as most worthy toast master. A piano duet by Mrs. Hodges and Herbert Henderson was first on the program. "Why am I here" was responded to by Miss Nina Rhoades whose first thought was not so much why am I here is troubling me "As how am I to get home," so many of her friends wished to be mentioned in this toast but Blanch Snyder wished to be left alone as she wanted to take a little (K)nap. "Who, What, How am I" was treated in a happy manner by Earl Hanham, who sprung a number of jokes on his teachers and schoolmates.

Masculine, Miss May Chambers made some pointed remarks on the masculine element of the class, which caused much merriment.

Feminine, was handled very neatly by Ellsworth Collins, who wound up his speech with another toast,

"Here's to the Garden of Eden
When Adam was always a weedin',
Where Eve by mistake
Got bit by a snake
When she on ripe pippins was feedin.
Then a feeling seemed to posess her
To have clothes sufficient to dress her,
And ever since then
Its been up to the men,
To buy them for her, May God bless her.".

Neuter, Miss Florence Aten based her remarks on the Faculty and while she thought Miss Connelly was of a feminine nature, yet some of her pursuits were quite masculine especially her liking for Sales.

Singular, Miss Connelly in a singular manner as became her theme gav a very witty response to her toast.

Plural, B. Earl Smith in his response to this toast exemplified the the motto beneath his name,

"Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like a grandsire, cut in Alabaster."

Antique Pile, Prof. McAlpine in a very delightful manner gave a response to this toast which referred to our OLD Union Building and his watch needed no winding up as was suggested by his motto,

"Look! he's winding up the watch of his wit, by and by it will strike."

Why is a Senior? was Miss LaVera Shaw's toast and making many pertinent remarks on the subject, she finally decided because a Junior.

During the program Miss Bonnie Brown gave a most charming solo which was received with much appreciation by her many friends.

BIG SHOW COMING

"With thrills galore and clowns aplenty, with all the dust, sawdust, the panorama of moving crowds, and the subtle air of excitement that goes with a circus, the Dan Robinson show paid us its annual visit.

"When with a fanfare of trumpets and a clapping of hands from the vast audience beneath the domelike canvas roof, the grand march began almost every seat was filled.

"In the big rings something was transpiring all the time. Acrobats and wire-walkers provided the thrills and the breathless expressions of amazement, beautiful and well groomed horses and intelligent elephants elicited admiration, and a regiment of comical clowns relieved the thrills and brought forth laughs. So different was each act that none could especially be designated as the crowning one of the show."

The show will exhibit in Adrian, Thursday, June 8.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at C. A. A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

So Many Trout They Trip Fishermen

Salmon trout fishing in the Sandy River is the leading sport just now. The fish have been running in great schools in such numbers that fishermen wading in the riffles were thrown off their feet.

At the falls, near the mouth of Bull Run River, the fish were so thick that they were pulled out by dozens. George Moulton and Oscar Carlson on Sunday brought home a wagon load which they snagged by means of a hook on a throw line. At almost every cast fish would be hooked and dragged ashore. Settlers are salting large quantities for winter use.—Portland Oregonian.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results, is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Sunday June 11 will be Children's day exercises. A good program will be given and home missionary envelopes have been distributed. Members of the home department are especially invited. All are welcome, come and make this day the best yet.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

Detroit—That the present banking situation in the United States is tending rapidly toward a real centralization of power which will shortly reduce bankers all over the country to the domination of a few money kings in New York unless it is checked by some efficient government regulation; that the present system not only does not prevent panics, but that it insures their periodic occurrence, and that the reserve plan as it is being worked out by the national monetary commission is the only thing that can save the financial system from the disaster that accompanies it, were some of the points of sensational interest made by the secretary of the treasury, MacVeagh, in his address at the twenty-seventh semi-annual banquet of the Detroit Bankers' club.

MOVING PICTURES AT HOME.

The moving picture machines now on the market are intended for use in public halls and are necessarily powerful and costly. One recently perfected, however, is intended for use in families, schoolrooms and similar places and can be furnished at a price no greater than is required for a good projecting lantern for ordinary slides.

Since it is now possible to rent films of almost unlimited variety, covering illustrations of animal life, such as insects, birds, reptiles, etc., or studies of physical or optical phenomena, besides the wide range of popular subjects, the opportunities afforded by such a machine from the educational point of view are very great.—Cassier's Magazine.

Apostle of Peace Speaks in Arlington.

Too Much Enthusiasm.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely suppress the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to various points of the brute.

"How about his sight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank, "he's got good eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is particularly good."

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off.—Trib[illegible]

Madero was receiving the plaudits of the Mexican people on his way to the Mexican capital, Abram Gonzales, governor of Chihuahua, took a few plaudits himself by accepting an invitation of Americans to make an excursion as their guest to Cloud Croft, N. M., a summer resort near El Paso.

In the absence of the governor, one of the keno games opened in Juarez and an American saloon keeper opened his door every time an American from El Paso tapped three times and showed the proper look of longing in his face. The usual bull fight also took place in Juarez.

Governor Gonzales has received information that it will be best for him not to come to the city of Chihuahua to take charge of his office until all federal troops have been moved south to Mexico City, although the legislature has declared him elected, and he will remain on the border several days.

It is expected to have the National railroad repaired through from El Paso to Mexico City in another day or two, then the troops will be withdrawn from Chihuahua. This will practically rid the states of Sonora, Sinaloa and Chihuahua of federal soldiers, most of whom will be mustered out of the service at Mexico City.

Governor Mayortano reached Hermosillo and took charge of the state of Sonora, and Manuel Bonilla has been installed as governor of Sinaloa, Mayortano succeeding General Luis Torres, who is now in Los Angeles, and Bonilla succeeding Diego Redo, reported executed.

Many of the insurrecto generals are to be retained in the service of the Mexican army. General Jose De La Luz Blanco, now in command of Juarez, is to be retained as a general of rurales, and Jose Perfecto Lomeli, who quit a lieutenant-colonelcy in the federal army for an insurrecto generalship, is to succeed General Torres as military commander of Sonora, and will be made a brigadier in the regular establishment. Pascual Orozco, in command of the insurrecto troops of Chihuahua, is to be made a brigadier in the regular.

Colonel Pancho Villa, a former Chihuahua bandit, is to be made a bandit catcher and given a position as colonel of rurales. The rurale force of Mexico is to be enlarged considerably to make room for many insurrectos, and also because it is believed more men of this character will be needed to pacify the country. The present federal army will be practically wiped out and reorganized, with better pay for officers and men.

Insurrectos who do not wish to remain in the army are being discharged as rapidly as the work can be done. They are being paid a dollar a day for the time they have served and will each receive a homestead in the reorganization of the landed interests of Mexico that will soon follow. Each man is also to be permitted to take home his rifle and horse, or turn them in for cash, as he chooses, and the government will pay the persons from whom the rifles and horses were originally taken.

HAVANA CHEERS DIAZ

Former President Made to Forget He Is Not Still in Office.

Havana, June 5. — From the time that Diaz came into the harbor until his ship, the Ypirenga, carried him out past Morro Castle again on the final lap of exile to Europe, Havana did all it could to make him forget that he is not still the honored president of a neighboring republic.

When the steamship left its anchorage Diaz and his wife, the latter with her arms filled with rare orchids, stood on the captain's bridge and received farewells from hundreds of loyal Mexicans crowding small craft below.

BUY MEXICAN RAILWAY

National Road Soon to Pass Into American Hands.

Monterey, Mex., June 5.—It is reported in financial circles that the control of the National railways of Mexico will soon pass out of the hands of the government and that American interests that are closely identified with the Southern Pacific and the St. Louis & San Francisco properties are the probable purchasers.

The government merger system, as it is called, embraces more than 7,000 miles of road.

VICTOR EMANUEL STATUE UNVEILED

Sixty Thousand Italians Do Honor to Their King.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM IN ROME

Rome, June 5.—With patriotic enthusiasm 60,000 persons crowded the square below the monument to Victor Emanuel II, which was unveiled.

The monument was surrounded by soldiers, diplomats, senators, ministers, deputies, mayors, army and navy officers and public officials. As a small band of Garibaldi veterans ascended the stairway leading to the platform at the base of the monument the crowd burst forth with cheers.

Queen Helena, the Dowager Queen Margherita, and Queen Marie Pia, grandmother of the deposed king of Portugal, the Dukes of Genoa, Aosta and Abruzzi, the Counts of Turin and Udine, and the royal children drove from the Quirinal, escorted by the life guards. The king followed.

When the monument was unveiled by Victor Emanuel III, the bands played and there was an artillery salute of 101 guns while all flags were lowered in salute.

Nine survivors of Garibaldi's British legion were present, bearing the union jack, which was the ondy foreign flag displayed. No Socialists or Republicans were in attendance.

TALKS FOR RECIPROCITY

President, In Chicago Speech, Defends His Policy.

Says that Lumber and Print Paper Dealers Want Tariff to Maintain Present High Prices.

Chicago, June 5.—Chicago's day of open house to the nation's reciprocity missionaries proved a battering-ram against the tariff wall between this country and Canada.

In a powerful arraignment of the "interests" that are opposing the pending treaty with our northern neighbor, President Taft told the members of the Western Economic society that the lumber and print paper dealers were struggling to kill the treaty in order to maintain high prices.

The chief executive's address was delivered in Orchestra hall at the closing session of the convention of the Economic society, and as the climax of a day fairly crammed with activities in the interests of the proposed treaty.

The address proved to be as frank a discussion of national laws in the making as any president ever engaged in with the people. President Taft fairly took his audience into his confidence. He was as unreserved in voicing his theories as to the motives that prompted the opposition to the treaty as those that called forth so many friends for it.

He explained why the treaty was drawn up by the state department without the formality of consulting members of congress simply because they would have made it the subject of bargaining.

Also he explained, why he had come 1,000 miles away from Washington to talk on the treaty while its fate still was trembling in the balance solely because a strong public sentiment is needed to compel its passage.

STORM SWEEPS NORWALK, OHIO

One Man Killed and Three Hurt by Lightning.

LARGE TREES ARE UPROOTED

Roofs Blown from Grandstands in Baseball Park and Spectator Who Took Shelter Under Tree Meets Death.

Norwalk, O., June 5.—One man was killed and three others injured by lightning, small buildings were blown from their foundations, many large trees were uprooted and blown down, together with telephone and telegraph poles all over the city in a storm that swept this city for about an hour.

The storm came up from the northwest at about 1:30 p. m. and within a few minutes the sky was black. Rain which resembled a cloudburst was accompanied by hail and a wind of almost hurricane proportions. The clouds were so low that they appeared to touch the tops of the tallest trees when the storm broke.

A ball game was scheduled on the Milan street diamond. When the storm broke, Frank Van Buren, Fred Studer, members of the Norwalk team, and Albert Stanford and Joseph Lindenberger sought shelter in one of the grandstands. The wind tore the roofs from both stands and the four sought shelter underneath a large tree. Lightning struck the tree, instantly killing Stanford and knocking the others to the ground. Van Buren was unconscious from shock for about two hours, but the other two were soon revived.

ENGINEER SAVES HIS TRAIN

Almost Cooked by Live Steam, He Bravely Stays at Throttle.

Columbus, Ind., June 5.—Passengers on southbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 18, running from Chicago to Louisville, expect to petition the Carnegie hero commission to grant a medal to John Lawton, engineer. Lawton stayed at the throttle of his engine while live steam poured into the cab and stopped his train. He was taken to his home in Jeffersonville and is in a serious condition.

When near Jonesville a driving rod on one side of the engine broke and battered away the steam pipes. Lawton closed the throttle and set the brakes. The steam continued to pour over him, but he would not jump. Finally he brought the train to a stop and fell to the floor of his cab, with scalds and burns on his face, throat, chest, hands and legs.

MOVING PICTURES IN SUBWAYS

Moving pictures are produced, as is well known, by a film traveling with intermittent motion before a projector or lantern which throws successive views on the screen. The same result could be obtained if the pictures were stationary and the audience itself were in motion, so as to view the pictures successively. An ingenious inventor has hit upon this scheme to relieve the monotony of subway travel. He proposes to mount a continuous band of pictures at each side of the subway, and have these pictures successively illuminated by means of lamps placed behind them. The circuits of the lamps would be successively closed by means of a shoe upon the subway car engaging contact plates at each side of the track.—Scientific American.

A PECULARITY OF DREAMS.

As to dreams, there was a discussion at the club lunch, and one man remarked that no man dreamed of himself as braver than he is. When the dream came, the dreamer was always the under-dog. He was in horrible danger, and never did anything picturesque to face it. There may be men who are brave in their sleep. But it would be interesting to find one man outside of the dozen sleeping cowards who is a hero in a dream.

Weeds in many cases have been blessings in disguise. They have taught us how to cultivate the soil and they never allow us to forget the lesson—"Solomon went by the field of the slothful and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding, and lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof."

SUGGESTIONS FOR BUSINESS GIRLS' WEEK-END TRIPS

Good Humor and Adaptability Should Be Shown By Guest

NOT that the business girl has much time for prolonged visiting, you know, but there is many an occasion when she receives a hurried invitation to run over to a friend's house on Saturday afternoon to stay until Monday morning.

And, now that the warm days are very near, with the restlessness they bring, the girl who sees only the four walls of her office from nine in the morning to five and half after five in the evening is only too happy to avail herself of any invitation over the week end which will relieve the tedium of work and satisfy her longing for a change.

If a girl is popular she will receive many of these invitations, but there are a few rules of conduct which even the most popular must observe, else their popularity will fast be on the wane.

In the first place she must pay back in sweet temper the hospitality of her hostess, for not only it is bad breeding to be grouchy or inclined to be critical when visiting at another's home, but it is very bad policy.

No matter what comes up in the course of your visit, it is the best plan to put on a good face about it and smile it out of the way instead of showing ill temper and making it unpleasant for your hostess and worse than unpleasant for yourself.

If these little week end visits are a common occurrence during the warm months it would be wise for you to have your suitcase always in readiness for the trip.

While it is safe to say that in all probability your hostess will provide soap and towel, it might be well to take these along with you.

A soapbox and two towels will not take up much space in the valise, and they will save the hostess just that much bother. Of course you will take your own nightie, kimono and bedroom slippers, for although these also may be hurriedly provided for you if you have come unprepared, you will be more likely to receive a second invitation for the weekend if you provide all these little things yourself, and in this way take the necessity off your hostess' shoulders.

One business girl whom I know, who never lacks of week end invitations during the summer, has her suitcase fitted up with a small manicuring set, a nightie, kimono, slippers, soap, towels and six handkerchiefs.

LENTILS A NUTRITIOUS ADDITION TO MENU

As a rule, the American housekeeper knows little about the lentil which is one of the most nutritious and valuable of foods. Even in households where a great deal of meat is consumed, once lentil soup is introduced into the menu it is sure to find a permanent place among the favorite dishes.

To prepare lentils for the table wash and pick over a half pound and put on to boil in a quart of water. Cut up two stalks of celery and five onions and fry in butter until brown, but not allowed to blacken. Add this to the lentils and allow to stew gently for two hours. Then press through a colander and add half a pint of milk and as much cream as can be spared.

Bring this to a boil, and salt and pepper to taste, and serve at once with croutons. This is called German lentil soup, and is delicious when made carefully.

Doughnuts

One cupful granulated sugar, one egg, one cupful of milk, one pint of flour, three teaspoonfuls baking powder, one level teaspoonful salt, one-half grated nutmeg.

Beat egg, add sugar and beat until light. Add milk without stirring; sift flour to which has been added the baking powder and salt, then nutmeg. Beat well, then add enough flour to make a firm but soft dough. Roll out half an inch thick, cut into rings.

Fry in lard and have the fat hot enough so the dough will rise to the top instantly. Turn them over as soon as the under side is a golden brown, and when done on the other side drain them carefully.

Like Man's Shirt

The new chemises for women are cut like a man's shirt, slit at each side of the shirt so that it may be more narrow than that of former years. It also obviates the 'riding up" of the garment under one's dress.

A novelty of the year is a hammered brass scrap basket lined with silk to match the coloring of milady's boudoir. Some of these new baskets are round and others are square, but all are elaborately designed.

For the bride there is an immense vogue for crepe de chine or satin. The high waist line and a small pointed or square train are features.

Flood of Low Collars

The neckwear departments of the stores still display the high stock, the high turndown collar of plain or embroidered linen, the soft outing collar with its jeweled safety pin, but all these old favorites are fairly submerged in the flood of low turndown collars, stiff and soft.

For the most part, however, these low collars are made in soft materials, the stiff variety being the regular Eton and the Eton with the long points in front.

Smart Belts

Exceedingly good looking belts are shown for wear with the two or three piece suit for early spring. Generally they are very wide and crushable, made up in moire, in soft, rich ribbed silk, in velvet, suede and soft kid, with plain buckles covered to match the belt. Belts of the same kind are seen in vivid colorings, as well as the darker shades, and these are very smart when worn with the linen suit or two piece frock.

BIG STORM STRIKES TECUMSEH

A storm struck Tecumseh Sunday evening between 8 and 9 o'clock coming from the northwest, damage was done throughout the town to trees and fruits. The telephone lines were not so badly affected as at other times expect the lines which are out of commission.

The new barn being built by C. E. Williamson on his farm northwest of town was almost entirely demolished. Five large trees on the Abner Wilson farm, were laid low one of them lying directly across the road; each one of them being over two feet in diameter. A large tree in the door yard of I. P. Keysor also was torn up. The vine covering the Williamson Bros. store was torn down and all over town branches and young trees tell of the furry of the wind.

Through Blissfield and Deerfield it grew into a regular cyclone and houses and barns were demolished and great damage was done in that section of the county.

BREACH WIDENS BETWEEN FRANCE AND THE CZAR

Germany's Hand Seen In Many Complications Which Arise.

PARIS (Special)—In spite of all official denials the gap between France and Russia is widening and there is nothing on the top side of the green earth to stop it.

This hunch has gradually been resolving itself into a great big fact for the last few weeks and most of France's unofficial "great men" of the day admit it.

Of course the Foreign Minister every day comes out with a strong denial that there is anything wrong with the alliance between this country and the Czar's.

But one thing after another is happening to prove that Germany statesmanship has put a good one "over the plate" and both France and England are the "goats."

Several senators and quite a few deputies have interpolated," demanding to know just where France stands after all this talk, but nobody has ever found out exactly what he wanted to know.

... Pichon, of the Foregn office, is a wise man. When a bunch of lawmakers shoot a red hot question at him such as: "Hasn't Russia left us completely in the cold and taken sides with Germany?" the answer is: "Yes, it Does look like rain," and there you are.

The lawmaking group howl that they have asked a question and want an answer. M. Pichon smiles diplomatically and says quietly: Gentlemen, I have given you one."

What can they do about it?

Students of international politics see, or think they see, in the recent Potsdam interview where the Kaiser chatted a while with the Czar, grave promises.

In the events, which came tumbling one after the other following this interview, the same men see their first opinions vindicated.

In the event of war both England and France are already defeated in the first battle, wise ones say, and it is the first battle which sometimes decides things.

General Bonnal, one of the best authorities in France on such matters, declares that the Franco-Russian alliance is at an end.

"Russia came to us" he said, "because she was not satisfied with the treaty of Berlin and France, she thought, was keenly desirous of revenge for the talking by Germany of Alsace and Lorraine. The alliance was formed therefore, for an equitable object.

But little by little Russia has tired waiting for France to make the move, the move which France has not dared to make.

The Dreyfus affair came along paralyzing our offensive forces, and the war with Japan weakened Russia so she no longer thinks of getting vengeance for the treaty of Berlin. So the end of the treaty has come.

"If a war with Germany should come, France would have to fight it alone. Russia has suffered a change of heart."

So, in the teeth of all the denials that all is well as a dinner bell between the old friends, the fact remains that the Russian troops which for years hovered about the German frontier have been withdrawn, leaving Germany free to concentrate her forces on the French frontier— a thing she could not do before with Russia ready to bounce her at the psychological moment.

All these things are being shouted out loud in the French Chamber of Deputies and in the senate. The "insurgents" declare that Germany has put one over at Potsdam, on the Russian frontier, at Flushing, and all the way round. Germany diplomacy, they say, has caught the rest of Europe napping. France worst of all since France is the next door neighbor and at the same time Germany's only real enemy on the continent.

What Part?

"Part of Mexican army surrenders to insurrectos," opines a headline. We are led to wonder what part of himself he surrendered.

LOS ANGEES [illegible] MIRROR

Of Which a Tecumseh Boy is the Representative

We had the pleasure of looking over a booklet issused by the Los Angeles Times—Mirror. The cover design was the historic Eagle, the only thing that was left after the burning of the building. It gives a history of the fire, and the cause thereof, yet not withstanding the fire, they still cling to their motto. "Unshackled-Unhampered-Unafraid." Politically they are Independent, Editorially they support the National Republican Party, but in their Non-Editorial column, they give indiscriminating news publicity, to the acts and proceedings of all parties, including Democrats, Socialists, Prohibitionists Middle-of-the-road-men, Women Suffrages, Single-taxers, the Elephant and the Unclassified insects which hover on the flank and rear."

Printed in the book as special representative, we find the name of one of our Tecumseh boys, Ralph Bidwell whose office is 1256 Call Building, San Francisco. He has five papers of which he is representative, among them the Evening Telegram of Oregon with a circulation of 35000. It is always a pleasure to note the success of our town boys. Ralph was born and brought up in Tecumseh and was a graduate from our schools, and certainly has made a success of his life since leaving Tecumseh and we are proud to call him one of our boys.

A good circus makes all the world akin—at least that portion of humanity within the reach of any big circus.

A boy never forgets his first circus —neither does a girl forget it. It is one of the mile-stones that mark the altogether too fleeting years of childhood's career of innocent and harmless pleasure. What would a circus be without a band? What would it be without a clown?

The circus clown dates his origin back to the beginning of the circus itself, and has ever been one of the most important features. He is funnier now and can do more tricks than ever before. In the old days one clown sufficed to satisfy the demand for the show-goers, but now it takes twenty-five for the Dan Robinson Famous Shows.

The acrobatic work is only a smal part of a clown's performance. He must be versatile. It is the rough and tumble and apparently, furiously abusive acts, knocks and slaps of the clown that invariably create the most laughter.

A quick way to get rid of your money is to run up bills and then pay them.

EGYPTIAN FARMING TOOLS.

Crude Native Thresher—Plough Is Still Smoothed Off Tree Fork.

"One of the curious sights in the Egyptian harvest season is a modern threshing machine noisily working in a field in which a native thresher is treading out the grain," said Horace F. Coler of Chicago, who has made a tour of the world in the interests of American farming implements.

"The brown skinned tiller of the soil, clad in his flowing robes of white or the favored dull blue and yellow combination sitting on the high seat of the crude thresher, which is dragged over the fields by a yoke of patient camels or perhaps a camel and a donkey or a couple of buffalo cows, appears to the stranger who sees this for the first time like the principal actor in a scene worked out by an ingenious mind for stage effect.

"The native plough in Egypt is simply the forked portion of a tree of two pieces joined together and smoothed off, a primitive contrivance which may still be seen in use by Cuban farmers. The thresher is a sledgelike affair fitted with round crushers of wood or iron and weighted down from the top. The grain is crushed into the ground and when gathered up it is mixed with lumps of mud, but it is said that never a kernel of it is lost or wasted.

"American farming machinery may be found in the remotest parts of the world and where least expected. In what manner it gets there I could not ascertain. The natives could not enlighten me.—Washington Herald.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Presbyterian Church Sunday Evening June 4, 1911

A large and appreciative audience were gathered in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening for the Baccalaureate Sermon to the Class of 1911 Tecumseh High School.

Rev. R. B. Weld gave the sermon, choosing for his theme "The Pattern in the Mount." Beginning with Mt. Sinai he spoke of the tabernacle that was builded after the pattern given unto Moses by the Lord. This afterward became a great educational point in the history of the nation. He mentioned many other mountains which had led up in the history of bible. Each pupil has been fitting himself and herself as tabernacles for the good of the world and taking Christ as their pattern they were to go out and work for the uplift of the nation.

The music of the evening was very fine. The Male quartette rendered the anthem "Remember now thy Creater" in a very effective manner. The solo, "Love Divine" by Miss Edyth Wilson was exceptionally good. The class numbering 28, listened to the sermon with marked attention.

MABEL A. WARING

The funeral of Miss Mabel A. Waring was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. B. R. Weld officiating. A large assembly of friends gathered to pay their last token of respect, to this young friend whose early death they mourn.

Miss Edyth Wilson sang in a most touching manner, and her pastor's words were full of comfort, to the bereaved family. The casket was covered by the beautiful flowers sent by the friends she had made in the south and with those sent from friends at home, made her last resting place a bower of flowers.

Mabel was ill but a few days, calling the doctor for the first, on the Tuesday preceeding her death. When it was decided that she must be operated upon for appendicitis, no time was lost and she was taken at once to the hospital, about 25 miles from Laurel. She was operated upon at 7:30 Thursday morning, and passed away at 3:30 p. m. When it was found that her condition was critical, the Misses Mildred and Geraldine Heesen were sent for and were with her at the end. She was just 21 years of age. A short service was held at Laurel, before the casket was taken from the home where she had spent the last two years.

She was laid to rest in beautiful Brookside and was borne to her grave by, Earl Coller, Earl McNiel, Allen Eccles, Eugene Rosacrans, Thomas Elliott and Earl Rector.

SCHOOL ART EXHIBITION

The annual exhibition of the drawing and manual training work done in our public schools is an affair looked forward to with delight by lovers of children and lovers of art. This year it was pronounced even more interesting than in previous years. A large number of guests were received by Miss Caldwell during the afternoon and evening of Friday, June 2nd when the exhibition was open in the basement of the Library.

The work of even the very little folks showed that the right principles of drawing were being taught and at the same time appreciation of the beauty of line and color.

The progress from year to year was interesting to watch. When we come to the product of eight years of training, the work is certainly a credit to the teacher and the children. Rug-weaving designing, household decorations and illustration of famous poems are various phases of the practical application of art to every day living.

Special interest. was shown in the woodwork done by a class of High School boys under the direction of Mr. B. Earl Smith. Although they had no special facilities for working, they had on exhibition book-racks, cloak-stands, tie-holders and other pieces that were a delight to behold.

It is certainly a splendid thing that our schools are falling in line with the great movement to provide for the happiness and usefulness of the boys and girls by training them in craftsmanship. It is hoped that public spirit will stand back of the effort and make further progress possible.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our grateful thanks to our many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our late affliction. To those who sent flowers and especially to Mrs. Davis of Florida, who so kindly remembered us.

Mrs. R. VanDuzer and family
L. E. Priest and family.

BIG SHOW COMING

"With thrills galore and clowns a-plenty, with all the dust, sawdust, the panorama of moving crowds, and the subtle air of excitement that goes with a circus, the Dan Robinson show paid us its annual visit.

"When with a fanfare of trumpets and a clapping of hands from the vast audience beneath the domelike canvas roof, the grand march began almost every seat was filled.

"In the big rings something was transpiring all the time. Acrobats and wire-walkers provided the thrills and the breathless expressions of amazement, beautiful and well groomed horses and intelligent elephants elicited admiration, and a regiment of comical clowns relieved the thrills and brought forth laughs. So different was each act that none could especially be designated as the crowning one of the show."

The show will exhibit in Adrian, Thursday, June 8.

[illegible] HELP

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach. Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health Try them. 50c at C A Wright & Son's.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Another Napoleon Relic.

An interesting addition has been made to the contents of the Army Museum in Paris in the shape of a red and white ensign, ornamented with gold beetles, which Napoleon gave to the troops in the island of Elba during his sojourn there. A French contemporary informs us that the flag came into the possession of Colonel Campbell, whom the allies set to keep watch over the emperor, when he made his sudden departure from the island, and has remained in the family ever since. The gift is one which the French nation will no doubt be glad to have in its possession.—Westminster Gazette.

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in its sleep. And since the basis of all health is the proper working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. F. Johnson of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one given to constipation and indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

GEORGE

"George," said the tramp, as the cook came to the door in answer to his ring.

"There's no George here," she replied.

"George Wash."

"He may live next door."

"George Washington."

"I tell you there's no such person here. The family name is Brown.

"George Washington, the Father."

"If it's crazy you are I'll call a p'liceman: Didn't I say the name was Brown?"

"George Washington, the Father of His Country."

"And what of him?"

"It's his birthday."

"Oh, is it? And you stand there dallying and keeping me from my work! Well, if it's Washington's Birthday I suppose I've got to help save the country."

And she went back to the kitchen and brought him out half a pie, but said:

"When Fourth of July comes along you say what you want without any dallying, or you'll be handed the poker instead of pie!"—N. Y. American.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

CHILD'S QUESTIONS MUST BE ANSWERED

Parents Should Satisfy the Baby's Natural Curiosity

"THE wise mother is she who always keeps her mind and confidence open to her children's queries." A young husband and father delivered himself of this much very decisively, and as he seemed very full of the subject I listened to him with interest.

"Mothers should not say with the regularity they do, 'No, you mustn't touch this or that.' The child has a natural curiosity, a natural hankering after knowledge, and unless the mother takes the time and trouble to enlighten her child upon many matters which attract the child's attention she will have something besides broken china to reckon with—and that within a very short time.

"We had an illustration of this at our breakfast table this morning," he went on to say. "My daughter, who is a little more than three years old, has repeatedly asked that she be allowed to hold the sugar bowl, a silver one of colonial design.

"My wife has ignored her each time, and much to my annoyance, too, for I have a theory that if she were allowed to hold the bowl in her hands once and told its uses that she would not only learn something, but the desire to handle things, common with children, would be satisfied as regards this particular piece of glittering silver.

"But my wife has ideas of her own, and she chooses to disregard the baby's countless questions, even when it would be better wisdom to take this means of teaching her many little things.

"Failure to gratify her curiosity in regard to the sugar bowl resulted in a crash of silver and cut glass that destroyed one pretty little dish and frightened my wife considerably a short time after breakfast. For the baby on a tour of investigation with the sugar bowl in mind, climbed up to inspect it at her leisure, with the result I have told.

"She isn't a little busybody, but a normal child with an active, inquiring mind. It is natural for her to inquire about everything that attracts her attention, and if her questions are not answered so that she can comprehend, or if they are ignored, she is going to try to find out for herself.

"I expect her to, and I haven't the heart to call her 'naughty' when she does, even though she breaks her mother's best cut glass olive dish in an effort to fondle the sugar bowl.

"If there were any reason why she should not handle the bowl—if it were perishable or something that she never saw in any one's hands, I could agree with the mandate that she should not touch it.

"However, she sees it in my wife's hands every day, and she wants to have the pleasure, too, for I am sure it would be a genuine delight to her to simply touch it. But her mother decrees that 'Baby mustn't touch it,' and baby gradually formulates the idea of climbing onto a high chair at risk of her precious neck all to satisfy a little innocent desire to know about things."

This young father seems to be very clear-headed. He feels that his little girl is being denied the chance to develop, which is not only natural but necessary, if she is to grow into an average woman.

Moreover, I think he feels that which is likely to result if a child is constantly put off and constantly denied the right to know and to touch the pretty things it sees. It is simply encouraging most children to do underhanded what they have begged the privilege of doing openly.

It is possible to make a very capable sneak out of a child whose mother won't be bothered with her child's questions and simple wishes.

His wife—Did your heart palpitate when you proposed to me?

Her husband—No; but my knees did.—Chicago News.

For Anemic Children

Pure olive oil is one of the best health builders a child can take. For that matter any one, whether child or adult, is the better for a liberal portion of olive oil in its purest condition. Anemic children have been known to grow fat and rosy through a daily rub with olive oil. Taken internally the maximum dose should be one teaspoonful after each meal.

An improved apple corer shown in the kitchen department of one of the stores will bring joy to the heart of the housewife. This is a combined corer and parer and costs 15 cents. The knife shuts in and helps in coring the apple and can be pulled out again to take off the skin.

To take the place of the "drip bag" there is a kitchen press with a very fine sieve which renders jelly making easy. This press can be used for mashing potatoes, spinach, pumpkins and apple sauce. The only requirement is that the vegetables should be cooked.

A useful addition to the aluminum kitchen service is the aluminum coffee percolator. This is shaped exactly like the ordinary coffee pot, only a portion of the glass section rising above the lid. This is extremely light in weight and durable at the same time.

OPERATOR FOOLS BURGLARS

Summons Help While They Are Trying to Enter Depot.

Lapeer, Mich., June 5. — Three masked men attempted to force an entrance into the Grand Trunk ticket office Paul Odle, when ordered to open the door, made no reply but ducked under the operating table, and while the men were debating as to which would be the best way to force an entrance, young Odle, who uses what is known to operators as a "bug," reached out from under the table and found he could just reach the "bug." He called the operator at Imlay City, informed him of his predicament and instructed him to call the officers here by 'phone

Just as the officers arrived on the scene a freight train pulled through and the men made a dash for it and escaped. Odle is about twenty years old and came here from Reed City.

LIFE TERM FOR MURDERER

Aurora Man Admits Having Killed Sweetheart in Cold Blood.

Aurora, Ill., June 5.—George Keressi was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary by Judge Slusser in the circuit court for the murder of his fiancee, Flora Sabo, Dec. 7, 1910. Keressi pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

Keressi got his sweetheart to draw her savings from a local bank, and on the subterfuge of eloping enticed her to the railroad tracks north of this city, where he murdered her in cold blood and took her money. He was caught the next day.

BARRELS OF DUST IN AIR.

Maybe you will not believe that in some big buildings 10 barrels of dust are the regular week's take-up from air suction vacuum-cleaner work. One hotel that filters its intake air through cheese-cloth screens often filters out of its intake breathing air three or four barrels of dust. Of course, this system of interior ventilation and purification which is established in so many big buildings marks a distinct advance, else our breathing airbags, bellows, lungs would soon be dust bags full of germs, bugs and germ mice.—New York Press.

PROPHECY.

The immortal Shakespeare has said "one may find books in running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything." It was not a sermon I found in the running brook, but a story of wondrous beauty.

Have you never wondered at the murmuring of a brook, the whispering of the trees, and the songs of the birds;? and have you never wished that you might interpret the wonderful harmonies of nature? I sat beside the babbling brook one evening as the sun was low, longing for this power when lo! the sound of the waters at my feet ceased to be a senseless thing—each stone became a tongue, each ripple a voice that told me of the future of my classmates, the class of 1911.

"Behold," sang the low melodious tones of the brook, "in the dim, far distant future the officers of your class shall follow the very line of work for which they were so finely trained in High School. From class President to United States President shall rise Earl Hanham. And Lamont Cadmus from long practise in handling the funds of the Seniors class is well able to handle the funds of the U. S. But strange to relate! he is not able to manage his personal funds without the help of his worthy assistant Miss Mae Chambers

Also high in political affairs I saw David Underwood clothed in the long black robes which distinguish him from all others as Supreme Judge. And his sister Eulah no less honored in her position as home maker for Senator Billmeyer.

As I listened the voice of the waters seemed to catch the echo of the one of whom it told me. Behold a vast audience charmed by the eloquence of a master orator, changing from laughter to tears, from anger, to joy, as he wishes. And Behold the man! Dale J. Hodges.

Again the waters seemed to sing as they pictured to me the beautiful face of the modern Siren, Bonnie Brown.

Enchanted as were the sailors of old, I almost failed to catch the next view, as the veil of the future was drawn aside to disclose to me its mysteries. But I was called to myself by the weird cry of a cat. "And looking I saw grace was just being said at the evening meal at "The Home for Homeless Cats," Props. Misses J. Orr & Rhodes" and near this noble establishment I saw, before a humble doorway, hanging meekly on its hinges a shingle, bearing these words "Kenneth Easlick, Vetrinary Surgeon," and I thought how wise the doctor was to choose his office so near an institution which must need quantities of his ministrations.

See! what strange odor prevades the atmosphere? It must come from yonder building. You shall see in years that are to come, inventions that shall startle the world, and you may trace them all as I traced the odor, to yonder building, Gray & Griswold, Chemical Laboratory.

Again from the depths of the water seemed to come wailings and moanings as of souls in torment, and I looked to see a sad procession entering a gloomy windowless building above whose door in rigid letters I read "Retreat for the Geometrically Insane," and in the line of patients I recognized a few of my old comrades in misery Leona Magers, Purnell Lowe and Ellsworth Collins.

As there have been in all the classes from T. H. S. I am glad to say there shall be in that of 1911 a few of those noble characters called "Bachelor Maids." However they do not spend their time gossiping as maids were wont to do for you may see them going about every day doing good, leaving sunshine where ever they go. Their names? Vaneta Pillsbury, Maggie Kerr and Deta Spaulding.

I seemed to be in their midst at one missionary tea, when I became interested at once at hearing the name of their pastor mentioned—Leon Van Valkenburg and I thought of his solemn and dignified deportment? back in the old school days and involuntary came the words "Strange strange indeed are the workings of Fate." Listen they are speaking of his wife! Could it be possible Grace Lowry a ministers wife? Yes it was true for in the words of the women of her congregation "She is an ideal one to lead us."

The voices of the waters seemed to grow first soft and low, then swell into a tumult of beautiful harmony which my ears, now turned, interpreted as a portrayal of the type of music the world is to hear from the skillfull fingers of Iva Bell Gove.

A shadow of a huge building loomed accross the waters, and thinking the sun was entirely disappearing I arose and my increased range of vision showed to me a structure which seemed to reach from earth to heaven, which I discovered was the famous Henderson observatory, where Herbert with a thousand wiseacres is endeavoring to establish a sanitary fountain for the famished aeronauts in the regions where only ether is.

To the lovers of the Saturday Evening Post I bring this message from the brook—"For the freshness and continued interest of your favorite magazine you need have no fear, for before many years G. F. Wyrill shall be the editor and he will remember his customers."

But few were left to complete the roll and I wondered what should be their fate I was soon to know. I seemed to be before a group of ragged dusky specimen of the future race of Africa made still blacker by the dirt in which they played. I asked them what they were doing and behold the answer—"Makin' pies such as our 'mestic Science teacher showed us." I was indeed surprised. Domestic Science in the jungles of Africa! What could it mean? "And who is your Domestic Science teacher?" "Harriett Aten, and we like her awful!"

Down the stream comes rushing a series of small objects which a common passer by would have called in disdain chips, but to my trained vision they were a series of shells of finest make, light, and strong Hiawathas', filled with a score of brawny Americans, with faces dark, and muscles tense, striving for the goal. See on their heaving chests the magic letters Yale. See now they round the curve. The current sweeps them from a straight course. First one gains half a length Another gains on him and for a moment they struggle neck and neck. The second with a mighty pull goes past him. The goal looms in sight. Their eyes dilate, their breath comes in short gasps. The victory is almost won. The crowd on the banks awaits in breathless silence. With one last mighty pull a boat is pushed past the fine marked Finis. The victory is won! Here the name of the victor as it it shouted by a thousand strong young throats, as cheer after cheer rends the air. "Kennedy, Kennedy, Kennedy."

In tones almost as loud shall the words of the famous suffragette sound from Greenlands icy mountains to India's coral strand. Her literature shall be read in every village and town and every man shall hate and every woman love the name of Hazel C. Hall.

The obliging brook had numbered to the last the dear names which I shall ever remember and I listened intently to hear what my fate should be but as I looked lo! the stones became smooth the ripples died away and I was left to await the troubling of the waters at another season.

SALUTATORY

Lamont A. Cadmus in a pleasant cordial way, speaking for the Class of 1911, welcomed one and all. This would be the last time in their lives that they would meet as a Class. They have reached the goal for which they have been striving for the past four years, yet in looking back upon these four years they seem but as so many weeks, but hold for them all the pleasantest of memories. In the course of these four years, they have met and conquered many hard battles, but it is with a feeling of sadness and regret, that they have met here tonight as a Class, who have finished their high school work.

This crowded house tonight assures us of the interest that the people have in our school, and in this Commencement Class

Taking a peep into the future for the members of the Class, he says we are not afraid to leave the shelter of the school, and face the world. It may have its trials and difficulties, but it has its joys as well. And what has the high school done if it has not prepared us to meet the one, and enjoy the other.

On our banner floats the motto, "Ich Kann", and we have already learned the truth of those words, and will keep them for our motto through life.

AMERICAN OUTLOOK

Kenneth A. Eastlick in his Oration taking as his subject "American Outlook" by deduction and illustration, argued whether with America, history should repeat itself or are we to reach a still higher developement, that Lord Byrons glowing picture of the rise and fall of the nations is not the true protrayal of the evolution of the world. The American has attained achievement in rapid strides. He has used iron for his forges, power for factories, rivers for his commerce, has in fact taken advantage of these physical conditions of our continent to advance all known arts to the highest perfection. Speaking of the present conditions" we find several things necessary for the preservation of out Country. The most important is the preservation of our government as one nation, not as many, that Washington impressed upon us in his farewell address, also Webster pleaded for this in his great orations.

We should know no state, no north, no south, but only native land, such should be our patriotism. Speaking farther on the subject he said "We must follow national unity, with Universal Education as illustrated by our public schools toleration of American liberty, and impress upon us the nobility of labor. The true laborer is a lord and by deduction a lord a true laborer. Then America with her foundation based on Unity and Justice with her splendid system of public instruction, and with a due respect for her laborer, will stand for untold ages a credit to her citizens and a monument of virtue to her honored dead."

HISTORY AND WILL

The Will and History of a class are always of deep interest, and that for the Class of 1911 was no exception to the rule. Miss Eulah Underwood understood her work, and gave it with much spirit. Of course the teachers could not escape their share of the fun, and it caused much merriment both to the Class and Audience, when the gifts willed them were mentioned.

"To the Freshmen we leave all the verdure, we have accumulated in our High School years. To the Sophomores, who are a little deficient in that one great characteristic required of them, we leave all our superfluous konowledge, of which we have a plenty to spare. To the Juniors, we leave all our experiences acquired in the past year. To the Worthy Citizens of Tecumseh, we leave plans for a New High School Building."

The Historian Miss Eulah Underwood, related many bits of history pertaining to the Class during the past four years, of jolly sleigh rides, Halloween parties, how in the first year they elected as President Earl Coller, one who possessed that great and well known characteristic, the gift of onesided conversational ability.

In our second year Woman's sufferage becoming prominent, we chose as our ruler Alice Richards. During these years we have discovered the characteristics of our Classmates, and of course they are all brilliant characters.

To-night closes the Class history, and it is with mingled feelings of pain and pleasure, that we looked back, yet we would not stay the hand of Father Time, for we are impatient to enter the World and gain New Victories.

School days for us are over,
Sunniest days are past,
Stepping across the threshold
Backward a glance we cast.
Lovingly briefly linger,
Days that are gone, renew
Oft were replete with music
Joyous to me and you.
Stepping across the threshold
Into the toil and strife,
God bless you all, and keep you
Guide and direct your life.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

Dale Hodges opened his oration, whose subject was Capital and Labor, by saying, "Social unrest is without question the distinguishing characteristic of the age, especially is this true in America where Greed and Arrogance on the one hand, and Caste hatred, and jealousy on the other, seem to have arrayed the people into two great factions, represented by the terms Capital and Labor."

Mr. Hodges stated, that in his opinion, Capital is not the enemy of organized Society, without the accumulation of Capital there could have been no progress along the line of civilization, but the concentration of Capital does not necessitate the concentration of Capital in single hands.

Although Capital is not the enemy of Society, yet those who possess it, may become that enemy. Several illustrations were given, showing both sides of the question, and their relation to each other. This oration showed deep study and thought and was presented in a very plain practical way.

In closing he said, his subject might be illustrated by a pair of shears, Capital is one blade, Labor the other, either blade without the other is useless, and the two blades are equally useless unless the rivet is in place. Confidence is to Capital, what the rivet is to the two blades.

The great need in the business world today is a full and abiding Confidence between the Twin Brothers, Labor and Capital.

GIFTORIAN

The following gifts were presented to the class of 1911 by the giftorian. In presenting the gifts to the class, Earl Hanham prefaced each one with a witty speech that added zest to the appropriate (?) article presented. Surely each one must have been hap-

Finely Tucked Lawn For Pretty Collar

One of the prettiest of big collars is made entirely of fine tucked lawn with a border of the plain lawn. This is only one of the many styles of sheer collars shown, scores of the latest ones being inset with fine lace and delicate embroideries.

Although it sounds funereal and its charm must be seen to be appreciated, black will be the predominating note in the spring decorations for country homes.

The new chintzes which London is sending out all have a black background with sprawling designs in colors. The newest curtains are of black with deep borders of gold and colors, and even the wall papers for the coming season have black as a keynote for their color scheme.

In a dark room such a scheme would not be attractive, but in the airy rooms of summer homes where the hot sunlight will penetrate this new idea is most effective. Colorful rugs or even white ones lighten the tones, while the somber walls should serve as a background for delicate water colors and Japanese prints in black or gilt frames.

"The extent to which black is introduced varies considerably," said a noted decorator recently, "but as a general rule when the curtains and hangings are of black the walls should be papered or painted in a light shade. The floor may be stained black, but color—blues and rose shades—must be introduced in the carpet, or white rugs may be laid on the black floor.

"With black walls, on the other hand, bright hangings would give the necessary relief."

VALEDICTORY

The Valedictory given by Glenn E. Griswold was something that touched the heart of each member in the class as they all realized that this was the parting of the ways.

He gave his valedictory in a very effective manner and realized the honor that had been bestowed upon him by the class in giving him this part to represent them.

Mr. Griswold goes on to say, "This night we realize, begins a new epoch, the building of whose foundation we have been laying during these swiftly fleeting years of our school life and whose structure we will complete in the coming years.

Fortunate will be the one Who has constructed the foundation strong enough to maintain any edifice however lofty he may wish to build upon it. The Class of 1911 feel truly grateful to the teachers for their efforts in directing them, how to lay a strong foundation for their future and we realize that much of our success in after years will be due to this early influence. We thank our superintendant for the interest he has taken, the teachers the School Board, the citizens of Tecumseh, for all they have done to assist us in our education. We are proud of our class for the stand it has taken but realize that education taken from text books is as nothing compared to the greatest of all teachers experience.

To night is truly an ending and a beginning, we have reached the goal of our High School career and as we look back it is with a feeling of gladness and sorrow, as we find ourselves about to sever the ties that have bound us for the last four years in the T. H. S.

We are now at the parting of the ways, to-morrow each will travel a seperate course on lifes highway, we are proud to be called, as we bid you farewell, sons and daughters of Tecumseh High School.

In the name of the Class of 1911 of dear old Tecumseh High School, we one and all bid you an affectionate farewell.

The Opera House was a scene of light and beauty on Thursday evening for the Commencement exercises and the stage was especially fine the background was one solid mass of living green, maple boughs being used most effectively. Accross the front was a lattice work in the class colors iris and gold with green boughs in front. The motto of the class "Ich Kann" on a back ground of gold was overhead with 1911 in the class colors. The exercises were exceptionally good, each one making themselves heard throughout the house.

Miss Bonnie Brown gave "The Cloud Song" in her own charming manner, she has a wonderfully sweet voice and charmed her hearers.

Miss Josephine Orr gave a piano solo "The Butterfly" in a most delightful manner wining much praise from the audience.

The class song was given with much enthusiam and was enjoyed by all.

In a few well chosen remarks Prof. McAlpine presented the diplomas to the class who had labored so faithfully for the past four years to win them. We give the prophecy in full and a brief mention of the other numbers on the program, and give our best wishes for the class of 1911.

JAPANESE PERFUME IS NOW IN VOGUE

Delicate Fragrance of Many Blossoms Pleases Fastidious Women

"PERFUMES of Araby" are no longer the height of sweetness in the eyes of women, for it is from the land of the cherry blossoms that the newest and daintiest scents now come—perfumes so delicate in their sweetness that they are a suggestion rather than a scent, and with enough individuality to them to please even the most fastidious of women, who has wearied of plain violet and the heavy perfumes from France which were in vogue last year,

There is the Japanese lily perfume, exhaling a delicious fragrance reminiscent of quaint Japanese gardens far away, and lotus flower water, which is another novelty of the year.

The enticing odor of the Japanese violet, very different from our own modest flower, vies in popularity among exclusive women now with that of the Japanese clover, which is more pungent and lasting than the former perfume.

In selecting a perfume it must be [illegible] delicacy [illegible] soap, [illegible] soap must all have the same fragrance, and as little as possible must be used.

A decided perfume of any kind hovering over a woman, or leaving a trail of odor behind her is not only bad form, but is repulsive rather than attractive. A whiff of fragrance, a suggestion of flowers rather than any scent is the thing to be desired.

PURPLE IN NEW SHADE AMONG SPRING COLORS

One of the prettiest of the new and fashionable colors is a deep purple which one associates with the large single violet. This shade figures much in millinery, often in connection with the cerise tones and in its darkest shades is vastly more becoming and more easily worn than most purples

It bids fair to rank in popularity with cerise and empire green as a relieving tone and several of the newest coats have been shown with a touch of this lovely purple.

Blue Popular Color For Spring Season

One of the very popular colors of this spring in blue and is seen in a multitude of shades. Among the small flowers forget-me-knots in bluet shades are the favorites, although any flower, whatever its natural color, may be blue in the land of millinery

Many of the most beautiful blues blend into mauves and purples easily these days and in almost every shade there is no hesitancy in using a touch of coral.

Stunning Addition to Tailored Shirtwaists

In the suit department of one of the large stores collar and cuff sets are being shown for coats or tailored bodices. These sets are in rather pronounced striped silk, the black and white stripes being of equal width. This width varies from a quarter of an inch to an inch.

F. J. HENDERSHOTT OF FRUITVALE, COLORADO, FORMERLY OF TECUMSEH, ELECTED BY DELTA BOARD

F. J. Hendershott for the past year principal of the Fruitvale school and has been elected principal of the Delta high school and will leave for that city Monday for the purpose of examining the teachers for the coming year. He will return to Grand Junction again in about two weeks and the latter part of August will move his family to Delta. Mr. Hendershott came to the Grand Valley a little over a year ago and secured the position in Fruitvale. The excellent record that he made for himself and the reputation that he gained outside of this county is attested by the fact that he did not seek for the position in Delta.

Mr. Hendershott will be greatly missed by his scores of friends in the valley. At present he is secretary of Grand Valley Poultry and Pet Stock association.

Delta can be complimented in securing so efficient and so able an instructor as head of their high school. —The Grand Junction Daily News.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY

Imperfect Digestion Causes Bad Complexion and Dull Eyes

The color in your cheeks won't fade the brightness in your eye won't vanish, if you keep your stomach in good condition.

Belching of gas, heaviness, sour taste in mouth, dizziness, billiousness and nausea occur simply because the stomach is not properly digesting the food.

The blood needs nourishment to carry vigor, vim and vitality to every part of the body and when food ferments in the stomach enough nourishment is not supplied.

MI-O-NA stomach tablets give instant relief to upset stomachs, but they do more: they put strength into the stomach and build it up so that it can easily digest a hearty meal without giving its owner hours of misery.

"I had stomach trouble for six years for days at a time could eat nothing at all. After taking MI-O-NA treatment I am in perfect health and can eat anything."—E. M. Cambell, 1200 S. Prospect St., Sedalia, Mo.

MI-O-NA is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son at 50 cents a large box. It is guaranteed to cure indigestion or any stomach distress, or money back.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach. Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at C. A. A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C, A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Copper Pans

As soon as a copper saucepan shows signs of being worn at all it should be retinned, and in any case nothing of an acid nature should be allowed to remain in it while cooling.

Painted Pins

On the same order as the lace covered pins are those covered with white or pale tinted satin and painted with tiny sprays of flowers.

Color in Collars

Openwork hand embroidery enters into a large number of the handsome wide collars to be worn with low necked frocks, and color is introduced in not a few of these.

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in its sleep. And since the basis of all health is the proper working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. F. Johnson of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one given to constipation and indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 409 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

COTTON BEARING TREES.

They Grow in Mexico and a Test Is to Be Made of the Fibre.

A test is to be made of the value of the fibre of the cotton bearing trees which grow wild in Sonora and Sinaloa, Mexico. The tree is known to the Mexicans as the aldone. The staple of the cotton is not as long as that grown by the American planter, but there is no need of ginning it. Merely flaying it with a pole while it is spread out on a canvas or a floor will rid it of the seeds. The staple is about an inch long.

Charles Cummins, a rancher who has a hacienda near La Pastorilla in Sonora, has been experimenting with the cotton and is preparing to put up a small mill to weave cloth as an experiment. He believes that he will be able to produce a cloth as good as anything that can be made from ordinary cotton, and if so he says there is enough of the product in Mexico to supply that country with all the cotton goods it will need.

The Mexicans have never attempted to weave the fibre, but they have for ages been using the lint for filling mattresses and pillows, and they find that it is far superior to ordinary cotton as it is spongy and does not gather into knots.

The bolls are much larger than the cotton bolls. The method of the Mexicans in gathering the cotton is to pull the bolls just about the time they are ripe enough to open and before they begin to drop their contents, and to let them dry, when they will crack open and the lint can be removed readily. The lint is then piled on a canvas or a floor and is flailed after the old fashioned way of threshing wheat, and the seeds readily drop out of the lint. The fibre is then gathered up and is ready for use.

Mr. Cummins says the fibre is stronger than the American cotton and he believes the cloth will be more durable.

Fried Smelts

Make a thin batter of one beaten egg, half a cup of milk and an even tablespoonful of flour, add a pinch of salt. Cleanse the fish, removing the heads, and sprinkle with salt. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan and when hot pour in half the batter and into this lay the smelts side by side, as close as they can be laid and covering the whole bottom of the pan; then over the whole pour the rest of the batter and fry to a nice brown. Turn over as you would a pancake. When both sides are a nice brown cut in squares and serve at once.

Married Life, Second Year

"HELEN! Helen!" Warren opened the bathroom door a few inches and called out angrily. "Get me a bath towel!"

Helen hurriedly brought a towel and handed it to him.

"Why on earth can't you keep bath towels in the bathroom?" as he slammed the door.

For several minutes there was loud splashing of water and then Warren emerged in his bath robe.

"And why, under heavens, don't you get some bath soap? There's a piece in there about the size of a bird's egg. And there's never enough towels. Why don't you look after things better?"

"Can't do everything?" he fumed. "Why you've got all day with nothing to do as far as I can see."

"Nothing to do, with the baby and the marketing and the house and Delia to look after?"

"Oh, that's nothing. You've got Delia to do all the work. You've only to see that she does it."

Without answering, Helen rose and was leaving the room when Warren flared out again:

"Here, you've been using my brush! Haven't I told you to leave my brush alone?"

"You shaved by my dresser this morning because the light was better. And when I wanted my brush you said not to come near you. So I used yours," Helen answered still more coldly.

"Well, at least you should have the decency to clean it out."

"I was just doing that when you called for the towels. Then Delia called me into the kitchen and I forgot it."

There was something in her cool, quiet indifference to his fuming that was most unusual and disconcerting.

"What's come over you?" he demanded. "Aren't you a rather high and mighty lady this morning?"

"No, I think not," quietly.

He was standing before the mirror and now their eyes met in the glass. His were full of angry excitement and hers were quiet and slightly contemptuous. He wheeled around in a frenzy and yet at a loss for any tangible excuse for his rage.

"So you think you are going to carry things with a high hand this morning, eh?"

But Helen had gone out and closed the door. He rushed after her and threw it open.

"That's your method of ending a conversation, is it? Now, you will just listen until I'm through."

"Don't you think you made quite a sufficient spectacle of yourself last night without anything further this morning?"

"Spectacle of myself last night," he roared.

"Yes, when I had invited Mr. Farrel for dinner and you came home half intoxicated and disgraced us both."

"Oh, I did—did I?" he sneered. "And who wanted Farrel here anyway? I told you he was a darned chump."

"And I told you that Will Farrel and I had been friends since we were children; and I wished him to see my home and my husband. He always wanted to marry me and I was foolish enough to want him to believe I was happy."

"Oh, he wanted to marry you, did he? Well, it's a darned pity he didn't."

"Yes, I think so too, now."

"Oh, you do, do you?" He stepped toward her almost threateningly, the brush still in his hand. "So you wish you'd married him, do you?"

"When you're like this, I think I do," deliberately.

"Well, it may not be too late yet, you know," with concentrated fury. "What do you say to that—eh?"

"What would you like for me to say?"

His Rage Was Beyond Words.

Here his rage at her coolness was beyond words. He could only clench his teeth and glare at her. Whatever expression his wrath might have found was averted by Delia's appearing with the announcement:

"There's something the matter with the range." And Helen followed her out into the kitchen.

With a muttered oath Warren turned back into his room and finished dressing with unwonted haste, scowling fiercely all the while.

Then he grabbed up his hat and coat and, without waiting for his breakfast, slammed out of the apartment.

A CAMP WATER COOLER.

The principle of keeping drinking water cool in hot weather by evaporation has been long familiar to the inhabitants of most of the tropical countries. In India, for example, porous water jars are in common use. The miners in the Kimberly diamond fields, in South Africa, have a device which is so simple that it should commend itself to boys who are planning to camp out.

It takes the form of a canvas bag, made by doubling a strip of canvas two feet long and a foot wide, and sewing the sides and top very closely with waxed cotton cord. When the bag is sewed at the top a small space is left open at one corner. In this is inserted the neck of a good sized bottle, care having been taken to cut the glass as smoothly and evenly as possible, so that there may be no danger from broken particles, and the canvas is sewed tight round it.

It will be found convenient to attach two stout cords to the top corners and to tie them to a short pole, which will serve as a handle by which to carry the bag. Fill the cooler with water, cork it tightly and hang it under a tree. There will be a certain amount of leakage and evaporation, and this will keep the water cool with the thermometer well above the hundred mark. — Youth's Companion.

Baby Basket Made at Very Small Expense

Fifty cents seems a very small amount to pay for a pretty baby basket, but the young mother who has time to sew and is clever with her needle can easily make one for this sum.

The articles needed are a wire dish strainer for 10 cents, two sheets of wadding for 10 cents and two yards of muslin for 30 cents. Cover the dish strainer with the wadding and over this stitch the plain muslin.

Pockets of various size should be sewed to the inside for holding little toilet accessories and a small muslin cushion tacked in one corner.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

STRAWBERRY WEEVIL HARD TO DRIVE OUT

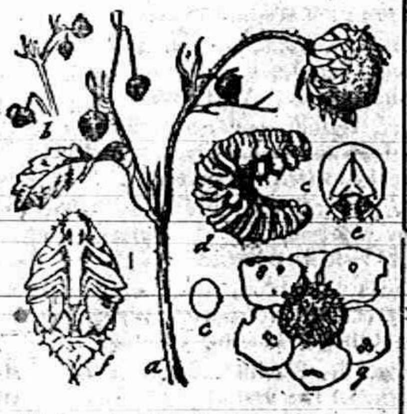
These pests have been increasingly abundant in some parts of the country during the past few years, and every effort possible should be made to control and destroy them.

These beetles hibernate in rubbish under leaves and any shelter they can find, and become active early in March and April. The eggs are laid as soon as the beetles can find buds in suitable condition and the earliest of these are on the cultivated strawberry. The females continue feeding and laying eggs until after the middle of June, attacking in succession after the strawberry, dewberry, wild strawberry and blackberry.

Development from egg to adult requires about one month. These feed but little and disappear into hibernating quarters shortly afterward.

The actual damage done by these insects is not really measured by the percentage of buds destroyed, because these are the earliest, that would ordinarily have been the finest berries and brought the highest price.

The injury cause is due to the feeding habit of the larva which requires pollen for its development. The female beetle, therefore, lays its rather large, white, glistening egg into a well developed bud or a staminate variety and, in order to prevent further development, punctures the flower stalk just below it. In a day or two the bud wilts, the stalk breaks at the point of puncture, and usually the bud drops to the ground, although it may hang on for some days by a few threads of tissue. This dropping to the ground favors the development of the larva which, exposed to the hot sun, might otherwise dry up, or the bud itself might become too hard and unfit for food.



Work of strawberry weevil; a, spray with punctured buds; b, wilting buds; c, egg; d, larva; f, pupa; all three enlarged; g, flower with feeding punctures.

There is no period in the life of this insect when it can be satisfactorily reached by insecticides. The adult feeds little, usually on pollen or by eating holes into the well developed blossom buds. Whether the insect devours the tissue when it cuts through the flower stalks is not known. The larva feeds in shelter continuously and is entirely beyond our reach.

As the larva feeds only on pollen, pistillate plants which bear none are free from attack and the obvious recommendation is to plant pistillate varieties with every third or fourth row of some profusely flowering staminate variety to serve as pollenizers and to attract the insects. This method has been actually adopted in some of the southern states with good effect. The objection is made that there is no known pistillate variety which does well in many of the northern states and fulfills the requirements as to time of ripening, shipping quality, etc. That there is no fruit so erratic in its action in different localities as the strawberry is well known, and there is no one variety which any grower is willing to recommend for all localities.

The method of a few growers is to plant very profusely flowering varieties of plants with the idea of getting enough buds to feed the beetles and to make a crop as well. But a much better plan would be to plant some very early profusely flowering variety on rows along the edges to serve as an attraction for the beetles and keep them from the main crop. This would mean, of course, planting for the beetles only, and the trap row might afterward be cut close, the foliage, etc., carefully raked up and burnt and then the ground sprayed with a miscible oil or kerosene emulsion 1 to 10 to soak the cut buds and kill the contained larvae.

Covering the rows with cotton, muslin or similar material has been recommended and, on a small scale, has been found successful. It not only keeps off the beetles but promotes earliness and extra fine fruit. How it would work on a commercial scale has not yet been determined.

While, theoretically, spraying with arsenites does not seem to offer the slightest prospect of success, it has nevertheless been asserted that applying Paris green with bordeaux mixture three times, once as soon as the earliest buds are well formed, a second time when the plant begins to bloom and a third time ten days thereafter, will serve as protection. This may be less by its direct effect upon the insect than by making the plants objectionable to them, and is worth trying. Arsenic of lead, 1 pound in 10 gallons of water or bordeaux mixture, may be used instead of the Paris green.

When a man returns from a visit to his folks, his wife looks at him as much as to say, "What have they been doing to poison your mind against me NOW?"

A Bird's Paradise.

Gaunt and bare, Puffin Island rises boldly from the sea at the most easterly point of Anglesey. Its sides, torn and discolored by the waves, offer scant welcome to the explorer, but there are several places at which a landing may be made from a small boat.

Naturalists will not object to the formidding appearance of this half-mile length of rock at which the timid look askance. Neglected of man, it is the chosen home of thousands and thousands of birds, which share its solitude with a few sheep and scores of rabbits. Puffin Island has more than one name. The Welsh call it Ynys Seirol, or the Island of St. Seirol, who had a hermitage there, and it is also known as Priestholme (the priests' island.)

Perched in the center of the island are the ruins of a tower built in the seventh century. But this scanty spot upon the waters should be named the home of the birds. In myriads they seek it to breed. The keepers of the lighthouse are almost the only human beings they see; they can live their happy lives without the shadow of man to frighten them.

Most in numbers is the puffin—being in the majority it has given its name to the place. This curious looking bird, so ungainly on land, rides on the waves wonderfully and dives as surely no other bird can. Come upon it suddenly—it plunges deep into the water and your boat has gone a long distance ahead before it comes to the surface again. In some places the puffin is called the sea parrot and in appearance it is not unlike pretty poll.

Stormy petrels find a resting place in this grim retreat; gulls are common; razor bills, cormorants, curlews and divers add to the population. Gannets have been met with and the peregrine falcon. Among these rare specimens the pigeon excites no remark.

Exceedingly curious is the clamor made by these creatures during the breeding time. On might imagine one's self in the house of commons during a "scene" in which wild words and incoherent sentences are hurled about. Only there is no Speaker to quell the tumult and restore order.—London Evening Standard.

As soon as a girl gets married she gets busy and tries to help some other girl get into the same kind of trouble.

Faithful Unto Death.

Former President Patton, of Princeton University, once delivered a sermon at Fifth Avenue Collegiate Church, his subject being "Faith." He spoke for the blind faith of the client who puts himself at the mercy of the lawyer in preparing an action for trial, and the confidence of the sick in entrusting themselves to the physician.

"A case of blind faith," said the clergyman. "The doctor writes out a prescription. Oftener than not you can not read it; you don't know what it is. He tells you to take it. 'Yours not to reason why, yours but to do and die.'"

Whether or not Dr. Patton meant it, there was a distinct ripple throughout the congregation.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Lace Owes Development to Men.

It is curious to know that lace, now almost the unique possession of women, owes its development if not its actual existence to men. When lace was being slowly evolved from drawn work the Popes and great prelates of the Church used it on their altar vestments and robes, fostered and encouraged its production and paid large sums for it.

Later lace became an absolute essential of masculine attire in ruffs, in collars, in sashes, in garters, and even as a decoration at the shoetop. Under the Stuarts the collection of laces became a passion of the court, and noblemen were as frequently known for their possession of rare lace as for collections of valuable paintings and gems.—Scotsman.

MAN CONFESSES CRIME

Wm. Johnson of South Haven Admits Burning House.

Another Man Has Just Finished Two Years' Sentence for the Offense.

Marshall, Mich., June 12. — If the confession of William Johnson of South Haven, in a letter received here is true, Albert Eaton has served two and a half years in prison for a crime committed by another.

Johnson, who says he is now living at a resort on Black river, just out of South Haven, confesses that he is guilty of arson, burglary and horse stealing. In 1907 he lived in Chicago. He claims that at that time he had trouble with his wife and for an assault he committed on her served six months in the workhouse. While he was in prison she secured a divorce.

Taking $800 of the money they had, she started up a millinery store in Gary, Ind. There she met Albert Eaton of Kalamazoo, who made a loan to her of $300, taking a mortgage on the stock. Later the millinery stock was moved to Marshall. Johnson says the goods were shipped in the name of Eaton.

He followed the stock to this place and located it. On March 30, 1908, he left Chicago for Marshall. He arrived at Battle Creek in the evening, secured a team and drove to Marshall. About 2:30 he entered the house and secured a trunk owned by Eaton containing about $150 worth of goods. This he put in the buggy, returned to the house and set it on fire. As the house started to burn he drove to Battle Creek and shipped the trunk to Chicago. He did not return direct to Chicago, but went to Indiana, where he claims he stole a team of horses, selling the team and the trunk in Chicago for $400.

He has spent most of his time since in Texas but returned to South Haven in the spring. At the end of his confession he dares the officers of Calhoun county to come and get him.

Eaton, the man who was convicted of the offense, was released from prison recently.

STORM HITS NORTH DAKOTA

Two Reported Killed at Thompson—Damage Done at Grand Forks.

Fargo, N. D., June 12.—As a result of a windstorm over North Dakota telegraph wires throughout the state are down and telephone service is demoralized. At Grand Forks the wind took the concrete cornice off the Y. M. C. A. building, blowing it down on the steps.

At Thompson it was reported that two persons were killed but the report could not be verified.

BLOOM PAPERS WERE STOLEN

So Says Colonel Garrard, Reprimanded by Taft.

NO PREJUDICE AGAINST JEWS

Garrard Says That Since Adverse Indorsement on Bloom's Papers Because Known Taft Was Forced to Action.

Washington, June 11.—Colonel Joseph H. Garard, in command of the army post at Fort Myer, who received a reprimand at the hands of President Taft because of his seeming prejudice against Frank Bloom, a private aspiring to a commission, because Bloom was a Jew, charged that the papers in the case had been stolen from the adjutant's office at Fort Myer. Then, he said, the matter became public.

Colonel Garrard said that there was no prejudice against Jews in the army or navy. He said that since the adverse indorsement on Bloom's papers had become known, President Taft was forced to take cognizance of the text of the indorsement.

Colonel Garrard said the president could do nothing else under the circumstances. Those papers were the privileged correspondence of the department, he said, and when the text became public an answer had to be made to what seemed to be a charge against the Jews.

The colonel has just returned fro a five day's field inspection. He did not known who stole the papers.

WOMAN SUBDUES A MANIAC

She Hypnotizes Him and Drives with Him to Authorities.

Ridgway, Ill., June 12.—Mrs. Annie Windhorst, of this city, has just done a most extraordinary thing, her friends say. When a madman rushed into the house and seized her she adroitly diverted his attention until she could get her frightened children safely under lock and key. Then she coolly proceeded to hypnotize the maniac, and after getting him under control put him in a carriage and whisked him away to the authorities.

Mrs. Windhorst lives in a lonely neighborhood east of the city. The door was thrown open and a hatless, wild-eyed man rushed into the kitchen. He grasped her by the arm and thrust her against the wall. Mrs. Windhorst looked the man in the eyes and quietly asked what he wanted. She then ordered him to sit. He obeyed. She spread her palms over his forehead and almost at once he fell back as if in a doze. Mrs. Windhorst then harnessed a team of horses and drove him to Ridgway to jail.

CALLS WHITECAPPING PROBE

Bloomington Judge Summons Grand Jury for Investigation.

Bloomington, Ind., June 12.—Judge James B. Wilson issued an order to the Monroe county grand jury to convene and make a thorough investigation of the recent whitecapping of Harvey McFarley, a farmer of New Harmony.

The six men arrested shortly after the whipping and who are out of jail on bonds, were tried in a preliminary hearing before Jusice Robinson and were bound over to await the action of the grand jury. They have all employed several lawyers and will fight the charges. The state has also made arrangements for additional attorneys.

TWO LOBBYISTS ARE INDICTED

Third Partial Report of Grand Jury Implicates Seven.

BONDS FIXED AT $5,000 EACH

Demurrers Against Indictments of Senator Andrews and Sergeant-at-Arms Diegel Argued Before Judge Kinkead.

Columbus, O., June 12.—The names of two more lobbyists who were active for several weeks with secret conferences in the halls and committee rooms of the general assembly have been added to the lengthening list of men who are charged by the grand jury with being implicated in the corruption of the Ohio legislature.

J. V. Meader, of Cleveland, and L. C. Miller, of Akron, are the two men whose names were the last to be made public out of the seven solons and lobbyists indicted by the grand jury in its third partial report.

These men were strenuous in their opposition of the Haas bill, which licenses and regulates the business of salary loan agents and limits their profits to an 8 per cent return.

With Charles Anson Bond, former mayor of Columbus, they appeared in criminal court and gave bond for their appearance at the trial.

After arguments by Bond's attorneys Judge Kinkead consented to fix the bond of the seven men last indicted at $5,000 each, and Miller and Bond immediately furnished this amount, while the four men who had put up $10,000 for their release were allowed to reduce the amount to $5,000.

Meader, however, explained that it would be impossible for him to give more than $1,000, so he was set free on that amount.

While the three indicted men were waiting for their bonds they listened to the arguments being made before Judge E. P. Kinkead upon demurrers to the indictments against Senator L. R. Andrews, of Ironton, and Sergeant-at-Arms Rodney J. Diegel, of Sandusky.

The demurrers were filed by Attorneys Belcher and Conner, assisted by a formidable array of counsel, and the arguments in this case were applicable to the joint indictments against Diegel and Senators George K. Cetone of Dayton, and Iseac E. Huffman of Oxford.

TAFT SILVER WEDDING

Second Anniversary of Kind for White House Occupants.

Washington, June 12.—On June 19 the president and Mrs. Taft will celebrate at the White House their silver wedding anniversary. This is the second celebration of a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary to be given by a president at the White House. Curiously both presidential couples were married in the same city—Cincinnati, O.

On New Year's Eve night of 1877 President and Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, who were married in Cincinnati on the last day of the year 1852, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at the White House. The President and Mrs. Taft were married on June 19, 1886, by the Rev. Dr. Moses A. Hoge in Cincinnati.

LAST WILL OF CARRIE NATION

Instrument Executed in 1907 [illegible] Washington.

ESTATE AMOUNTS TO $10,000

Consists of Real Estate, Bank Account and Life Insurance Policy—Only Child, Charlien A. McNab, Provided For.

Washington, June 12.—The will of Carrie Nation, who died at Leavenworth, Kan., Friday night, was filed in the probate court.

The instrument was executed in 1907 and in it Mrs. Nation declared herself to be a resident of Washington. The estate disposed of by the will is valued at about $10,000, consisting of houses and lots in Guthrie and Shawnee, Okla., an account of $1,000 in an Alexandria, Va., bank and a life insurance policy.

To the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the state of Kansas Mrs. Nation bequeathed her book of "My Life" and all rights thereunder. She leaves [illegible] month to Charlion A. McNab, the only child of Mrs. Nation, provided she is not in an insane asylum, with the provision that the money is not to be allowed if she is so confined. In the event of the death of the daughter, [illegible] and three lots in Guthrie are to go to the Free Methodist church of Oklahoma. Mrs. McNab's children are to receive the sum of $500 each. The remainder of the estate is to be given to the Carrie Nation Home for Drunkard's Wives and Widows at Kansas City and for a home for children twelve years old and under.

The will names Henry D. Gordon of this city as executor.

Mrs. Nation came to Washington in 1907 and was arrested at the White House and also at the capitol for alleged disorderly conduct. She was at one time arrested in the Union station here while she was trying to break up the bar. Mrs. Nation published a paper called the Hatchet here for several months and practically became a resident. Her executor declares that Mrs. Nation at one time refused an offer of $500 to break up a Washington saloon, this price being offered by the manager of the place for advertising purposes, but she refused.

Chamberlain says that the layoff of the men had been contemplated for some time past and that the demand for an increase in salaries by the employes had nohing to do with the action of the company.

DEAD IN RUINS OF BANK

Monmouth, Ill., June 12. — A body, believed to be that of one of five robbers who dynamited a bank at Seaton, was found in the ruins of the bank. The explosion of the dynamite charge set fire to the bank building, which, together with a block of small business houses, was destroyed. The only means of identifying the remains were a revolver and a watch found beside the body.

The four other robbers fled in an automobile and were pursued several miles by Dr. Everett in another car. He fired on them several times and in the return fire was struck by a seventy-two gun shot from the weapons of the escaping bandits. A telephone pole warded off the heavier part of the charge which struck the physician.

SCHOLARSHIP GIVEN TO GLEN GRISWOLD HONORED MEMBER OF CLASS 1911

The following letter was received by Glenn Griswold and speaks for him in a very pleasing manner.

Mr. Glenn Griswold,
Tecumseh, Michigan,
May 31, 1911.

Dear Sir:—

I am informed by the superintendent that you are valedictorian of the class for this year and as such will receive the scholarship issued by the Hillsdale College. This scholarship covers the tuition and incidentals for one year, and covers all the fees for the collegiate department excepting the matriculation fee of $8 and any labratory fees.

I certainly hope that you will plan to be with us in September, and avail yourself of this scholarship.

I understand that you are especially interested in engineering and I would say that Prof. Hetron has has arrangements with the professors of the engineering departmene at AnnArbor so that the first two years can be taken here, and all the work will apply directly on the engineering course at the University. As a result of this, it is possible for you to take up work in line with which you wish to do, and carry forward at less expense than it would be for you at AnnArbor.

I understand there are several students in Tecumseh who have engineering in view and I would be glad if you would call the attention of others to this arrangement.

Very truly yours,
G. A. Jackson,
Sec. and Treas., Hillsdale College.

ALUMNI PARTY

52 Couple Participated in the Festivities.

Witherell's hall was decorated in a most beautiful manner Friday evening for the Alumni Party, Bullrushes and other greens were used in great profusion. The ceiling was in panel effect, with oak leaves, pennants and Japanese lanterns were liberally used to carry out the scheme, the effect was charming.

Brown tile were used in various places in the hall filled with rushes. The platform for the orchestra was enclosed with the lattice work in the Class colors of 1911, iris and gold. rushes were used against the lattice work and lent an added charm to the scene.

About 52 couple enjoyed the festivities of the evening. One of the prettiest dances was the Pennant dance, all lights were turned out except those in two pennants and in the dim light the merry dance was like the dance of the fairies in the moonlight.

In an arbor of green, light refreshments of ice cream, lady fingers and punch ware served to all

The school year of 1911 with its fun frolic and festivities is now closed and after a few months of needed rest, another year will come upon the scene and the class of 1911 will be among the alumni.

OUR FLAG

June 14, 1777 the continental Congress of 13 states; should have a blue field with 13 white stars, also 13 stripes in red and white.

During the years that have intervened changes have come and gone, and as a new state has been added, so a new star has been placed upon the field but the stripes have remain the same.

Until very lately it has been the boast and pride of our nation, that ours was the first flag to contain the red, white and blue with stars and stripes but diving into old records and traveling among the ruins of old castles in the hilly country along the Mosel river has brought out the fact that in the times of fuedalism and romance there has been found a banner that closely resembles ours. It was the banner of Redingen, Luxemburg, lying between Germany and France. Here hundreds of years ago men in armor marched against the Knights of the Rhine, and they proudly followed was practically the same as our own Old Glory. But this fact, will never detract from the valor and love we give our flag it rather adds to its meaning as it too was an Emblem of Liberty to all.

While the old law that "there is nothing new under the sun." has been verified in this. Yet on June 14, 1911, we will rejoice that we have our beautiful banner of red, white and blue, also that as it floats upon the breeze it represents the peace and prosperity of "the home of the brave. and the land of the free."

FLAG DAY

It will be of interest to know that the originator of Flag Day was a Southern girl, Mary Louise Dalton the daughter of a Confederate soldier Her death occurred in June 1907 and by a strange coincidence she was burried on Flag Day.

Great honors were shown her by the Daughters of the Revolution and the members of the G. A. R. some of whom acted as pall-bearers.

It was through Miss Dalton's personal effort that a bill was passed prohibiting the use of the American Flag for advertising purposes and from this bill sprang the annual celebration of Flag Day June 15.

MABEL A. WARING

Twenty-one years ago last September Mable Alice Waring, youngest child of Mrs. and Mrs. J. E. Waring was born in Tecumseh; and on Thursday, June the first, she died in Laurel, Miss., after a short illness.

She passed her happy childhood days in our village, and was graduated from our high school in the class of 1908. She was brought up in the Presbyterian Sunday school and the Christian Endeavor Society, and in April, 1905 she became a member of the church to which she was always loyal.

About a year and a half ago she assumed the duties of governess in the family of Mr. H. N. Rogers of Laurel, Miss.

To the two little girls who were her charges she soon endeared herself; and that she had the love and confidence of their parents she received many a proof. In these last sad days they did all for her that love and money could have done for an own child.

It was her good fortune last summer to accompany them upon a trip to Europe. Many other good things were anticipated, and the future looked very bright to her.

She expected in a few days to visit her home and old friends, but it was not to be. Instead, a summons came to the Heavenly Home, and the real Mabel went there "To be forever with her Lord."

A short service was held in Laurel over the remains which were brought by Mr. Rogers to Cincinnati where they were met by her brother Charles Funeral services, conducted by Rev. B. R. Weld, were held a week ago last Monday at 3 o'clock at the family home. A large number of relatives and friends attended to express their love for Mabel, and their sympathy for those who cherished her in the bonds of nearest kinship.

She was endowed with a bright, active mind and was eager to learn for learning's sake. At the same time she was ever the liveliest one in any company, and seemed to enjoy life to the full.

It is indefinitely sad when a young life with all its possibilities is cut off, and we wonder why this life could not have been spared to accomplish what it so brightly promised. Then we remember that "His ways are not our ways," and that "He sees the end from the begining," and we cease repining, and believe that "If we could push ajar the gates of life,

And stand within and all God's working, see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery could find a key.
And if through patient toil, we reach the land
Where tired feet with sandals loosed may rest,
When we shall clearly see and understand,
I think that we will say, "God knew the best."

LINCOLN PARK ZOO TO GO AROUND THE WORLD IN MOVING PICTURES

All of Cy De Vry's Happy Family Are Snapped by Cinematograph Operator

Nero, the ferocious lion, Princess the Elephant, friend of the children Big Dan, the polar bear, Dick, the almost human monkey and all the other members of Cy De Vry's happy family at the Lincoln Park zoo are going to take a trip around the world.

Every one, from the ring-tailed monkey and the talking parrot to the big herd of buffaloes and the two trained sea lions, is going abroad in moving pictures.

The moving picture man invaded the big north-side playground and now people in every city and large village in the United States and in many foreign countries will see Chicago's wild animals.

The film was designed to be "educational." It shows the animals and birds, the fish and the sea lions in all their different moves. A portion of the film was taken at feeding time and this is most interesting. It shows the two sea lions catching the live fish as they are thrown to them by DeVry. It also shows the ferocious demonstration of the lions, tigers, bears and other wild beasts during the feeding hour, Every part of the zoo has been faithfully reproduced and people throughout the country will have DeVry's pets brought direct to their homes.

This educational and highly interesting pictue will be shown at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE (one night only) WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14. No extra price in admission-5c. to all, Don't fail to see this wonderful subject. A chance of a life time.

Specials at Gilbert's this week are No. 1 Lamp chimney 4c; Yeast 3c; Jaxon soap 3 1-2c; Rolled oats 3c; Brooms 23c.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY

Imperfect Digestion Causes Bad Complexion and Dull Eyes

The color in your cheeks won't fade the brightness in your eye won't vanish, if you keep your stomach in good condition.

Belching of gas, heaviness, sour taste in mouth, dizziness, billicusness and nausea occur simply because the stomach is not properly digesting the food.

The blood needs nourishment to carry vigor, vim and vitality to every part of the body and when food ferments in the stomach enough nourishment is not supplied.

MI-O NA stomach tablets give instant relief to upset stomachs, but they do more: they put strength into the stomach and build it up so that it can easily digest a hearty meal without giving its owner hours of misery.

"I had stomach trouble for six years for days at a time could eat nothing at all. After taking MI O NA treatment I am in perfeet health and can eat anything."—E. M. Cambell, 1200 S. Prospect St., Sedalia, Mo.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

AEROPLANE MAIL SERVICE.

Already the aeroplane has gone from the range of a highly exciting sport into the realm of commercial utility. When the postoffice department gives formal permission for the carrying of Atlantic mails from a steamship approaching port to New York the earning capacity of flying machines has been acquired. The aviator will take wing from the ship 50 miles or more off shore and beat the mail-tender maybe hours to the delivery of letters. If you write "By aeroplane" across the face of your letter, thus relieving the government of responsibility for loss, you can have the first direct and palpable benefit of the conquest of the air. Railroads which have been enjoying mail subsidies from the government can also begin to figure on new sources of revenue. The aeroplane threatens to cut into their mail receipts before many years.—New York Press.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. [illegible] of Sycamore, Ill. and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of [illegible] N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. [illegible] Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Chinese Egg Examiner.

The artificial incubation of ducks' eggs is a thriving industry in some parts of China, more particularly in Canton, where a large and ready market encourages the business. The first thing to be done is to secure suitable eggs, and this is done by men who devote themselves entirely to the task during the summer months. The examiner squats on the ground and holding the egg up to the light, turns it round and judges its suitability by the state of the shell and the clearness of its contents.

The least appearance of cloudiness entails its rejection, so particular is the examiner, but nevertheless only from 8 per cent. to 10 per cent. of the eggs are rejected; none over seven days old are accepted. The skillful examiner can deal with 6,000 eggs in a day. The selected eggs are placed in shallow, saucer shaped baskets with a lid similarly shaped, and each basket is set upon a wicker-work cylinder over a stove in a darkened room heated by charcoal braziers.—Feathered Life.

INTERESTING LESSONS IN PLANT PRODUCTION

To show that plants absorb moisture from the soil, take two 1-quart tin cans as near alike as you can get them and punch holes in the bottoms for drainage.

Secure enough garden soil to fill both cans, mix it thoroughly, and sift it to remove pebbles and clods. Fill both cans level full of loose soil, which should then be packed by jarring each can three times on the table or floor.

It is important to have the soil packed alike in both cans. Weigh the filled cans, and if one is heavier than the other, take out enough soil to bring them to the same weight.

Plant five or six kernels of corn in one can, water both cans alike, and set them aside for the corn to grow.

Whenever water is applied to the can containing corn, an equal amount should be applied to the other can in order to keep both soils in about the same physical condition.

When the corn is three or four inches high, wet both soils thoroughly, allow the cans to stand until water ceases to drip from the bottom, weigh them, and record their weights separately. Set both cans in a warm light place where the corn will continue to grow rapidly.

Weigh the cans twice on the following day—morning and afternoon—and record the weights. Keep this up for three or four days, or until the corn begins to suffer from lack of moisture. Water again and continue as before.

You will probably find that the can containing the growing plants loses moisture much more rapidly than the other.

This experiment may be performed in another way by using flower pots instead of tin cans. When the corn is three or four inches high, get two lard pails or cans just large enough to take in the pots to their rims.

Mark on the outside of the pails the depth to which the pots will extend on the inside, and at a point one inch above each mark make a dent which can be distinctly seen on the inside of the pail.

Now fill each pail with water up to the dent, water both pots thoroughly, and set them in the pails as shown in the figure.

Set both pails and pots in a warm light place so that the corn will continue to grow.

The next day remove the pots and you will find that the water is not up to the dents, you will conclude, and naturally, that the soil has taken up the water.

From an eight ounce graduate pour into one pail just enough water to bring it up to the dent again. Make a record of the amount necessary to do this. Fill the graduate and bring the water in the other pail up to the dent.

Repeat there operations daily for two or three weeks and you will be able to find out exactly how much moisture the growing plant absorbs.

In order to show that plants give off moisture, take a plant that is well started in a tamoto can or flower pot, a piece of cardboard, and a glass tumbler large enough to cover the plant, cut a slit in the cardboard and draw it around the plant, seal the slit with pitch, wax, or tallow, so that no moisture can come up through it from below; cover the plant with the glass and set it in a warm, sunny place. Moisture will condense on the inner surface of the glass.

If moisture does not condense readily inside the glass, cool the glass by exposing it to a current of cold air or by wrapping it for a minute or two in a cloth wrung out of cold water.

The outside of the glass should then be dried so the moisture on the outside will not obscure that within.

That water absorbed by the roots of plants is forced upward through the plant can be demonstrated by severing the stem of a geranium three or four inches from the surface of the soil, setting on top of the cut end of the stem a section of glass tubing several inches long, and fastening the two together by wrapping the joint with a strip of adhesive tape or surgeon's plaster.

Keep the root of the plant normal by supplying it with water. Note what happens inside the glass tube making observations every few hours.

To show that water and whatever substance it holds in solution circulate to all parts of the plant, fill a tumbler about one-third full of lukewarm water colored with a few drops of red ink or some other brilliant coloring matter, and place in colored water the freshly cut stems of white carnations, white roses, lilies of the valley, or other white flowers, or the twigs of trees with young leaves on, or almost any soft green plant.

Be sure that they are fresh. In a short time the colored water will rise through the stems or twigs and may be seen distributing in vein-like pattern through the petals of the flowers or through the leaves.

Hold the leaves up to the light and the coloring matter can be seen more clearly.

In this manner the steam of the plant carries food in solution which has been absorbed by the roots.

Broad sashes resembling the Japanese obi are seen on some of the evening gowns of the spring, their flat high loops in the back running all the way up to the shoulders or the edge of the decolletage.

For the Simple Frock

On many of the simple morning tub frocks the collar and cuffs are the sole trimming. There are all sorts of arrangements of these collars, some of which are more on the order of a fichu instead of a plain color. These fichu-like collars are generally made of net or lawn, and are arranged in folds around the neck opening of the frock, the ends fastening at the belt under a buckle or rosette.

China Decoration

Styles in china decoration are changing, the broad [illegible] of gold on fine china being [illegible] by delicate and refined designs, the most popular being a very [illegible] of color with a dull gold [illegible] at the edge.

Many of the [illegible] specimens of this china are made in America, although the manufacture of the highest grade is comparatively new here.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

PROFITABLE BREEDING OF GRADE LIVE STOCK

(BY DR. G. A. ROBERTS.)

Most farmers could materially profit by breeding and raising more animals. Profitable in two ways: First, directly from the use or sale of such animals; and second, by maintaining and increasing the productivity of our soils.

The increase in number of animals upon our farms should be made gradually, that we may accommodate ourselves and conditions to care for more. Such an increase would likely be made if we did more breeding and less buying of animals.

Other people are making money in raising animals to sell to us, and why not produce more of them ourselves?

For most of us the profit will not be in raising of pure-bred live stock [illegible] in the raising of scrubs, but will [illegible] the grading up of our animals. [illegible] consists in the using of pure-[illegible] sire upon native scrub females. [illegible] offspring of such mating would be one-half blood of the breed of the sire.

The next mating would then be between the female offspring of the first mating and that of a sire of the same breed as used before. This would yield offspring of three-quarters blood.

Continuing this process till the fifth generation, the offspring would contain thirty-one thirty-seconds of pure blood. Animals so bred for several generations are called high grades, and while they are usually just as good individuals as if pure bred, the males should not be used for breeding purposes.

The reason for not using a grade, even a high grade, sire lies in the fact that the longer a strain of animals has been bred for definite characteristics the more certainty of animals of that strain transmitting, by laws of inheritance, those characteristics.

On the other hand, the shorter the time of fixing those characteristics, as in grades, the less likelihood of transmitting them.

The sire should be selected largely with the view of fulfilling two requirements. First, he should be a good individual himself, a representative of the type desired.

Second, he should come from a long line of meritorious ancestors—a pure bred.

If the females on hand are somewhat undersize and it is desired to increase the size, as it should be in most cases, better results will usually be obtained by increasing gradually, therefore the extremes in size of male and female should not be too great, yet the usual fault to find is in the use of too small a sire.

There are several factors to be considered in determining what kind of animals—horses, cattle, sheep or swine—to raise, what type to select and what breed to choose.

Unless breeding animals for our own use, necessarily one of the important factors will be that of market demand.

A second factor concerns the conditions on the farm at the present, or possible changes, with reference to suitable buildings, the character of crops, the convenience to market, help, etc.

Again, a third factor may be the fancy of the farmer in being partial to some breeds more than to others, and he is likely to make greater success in the raising of those he favors.

ORCHARD HELPS THAT ARE NOW VERY TIMELY

In cultivating the orchard care should be taken to cover the ends of the whiffle-trees with leather or rubber, and high hames or other projections on the harness should be discarded to avoid breaking the trunks and limbs of the trees.

A muzzle upon the horse's nose will prevent many nipped limbs.

If a new peach, apricot or plum tree develops yellows or little peach, immediately remove and destroy it.

Care should be taken to remove all weeds, grass or other litter which might harbor mice. It is frequently advantageous to wrap the tree trunks with wire-netting, tar paper, or thin boards to protect them from mice or rabbits.

For success in fruit-raising it is absolutely necessary to keep the trees free from all injurious insects and diseases.

Spray, spray, and spray again.

WEED OUT THE STOCK.

Have you commenced weeding out your unprofitable cows? This is the most money-making feature in the dairy business. The present price of land, labor, feed, and dairy products makes it imperative that every cow in our herds should be steady, reliable income producers.

A Fiddler's Velvet Crab.

For the first time on the east coast a rare but ferocious species known as fiddler's velvet crab has been taken off Yarmouth, where it was captured in a shrimp net on Wednesday. It derives its name from the plush-like feel of its upper surface, which is densely covered with short silky hairs.

Its pincer claws are armed with extraordinary spiny processes, and its legs are marked with lines of brilliant blue in life, which rapidly fade after death.—London Standard.

UNKIND REMARKS ARE A BOOMERANG

Girls Who Criticise Others Give Bad Impression Themselves.

WHEN a girl is disloyal to her sex and to certain members of it in particular, she will find that before long the disloyalty will fall back on her own head, and the unfavorable impression she strove to create about a friend will in turn be reflected on her character.

It seems strange that so many girls should fairly writhe as they hear some one praising another girl. If they cannot join in the praise the least they could do, I think, would be to keep silent.

This, however, is only a mild form of disloyalty compared to that in which a girl in talking to her male acquaintances proceeds to shrug and smile and insinuate the character of her girl friends to the winds.

And even if the particular girl whose character is being discussed should not be of the most desirable sort, it is, nevertheless, a more honorable course for a girl to uphold the other if she can.

I undertook to praise the diligence of a little friend of mine the other day to a friend of both of us, and I fully expected her to agree with me. But not a bit of it.

"Yes," she reluctantly admitted, "she does work hard. But it isn't because she thinks she ought to; it's only because she likes the boss."

"Well," I returned, "don't you think it commendable that she should work hard because she likes him, instead of getting into his good graces and then shirking her work?"

"Yes," the girl replied again, "but you don't know what's in the back of her brain."

How much finer, I thought, it would have been had this little girl joined in my praise of her friend instead of casting about for an excuse to tear down the structure of praise I had reared.

And this attitude among girls toward other girls is only too prevalent.

In order to gain the friendship of men I am much afraid that the girls err again. When a young man mentions another girl, speaks of her as being a good sort, pretty, well dressed, very often the girl he is speaking to will proceed to enlighten him about the said [illegible].

[illegible]RQUISETTE FROCK TO BE WORN ON STREET

A marquisette gown sounds rather out of place on the street, but in black and white stripes, with the black dominating, this is really a sensible frock, since cotton marquisette sheds the dust beautifully.

This particular marquisette frock, which was seen in one of the large shops, was relieved with a touch of king's blue in the yoke and in the large rever which trimmed the front of the dress.

Made over a slip of black china silk, it was cool and smart, and eminently suitable for the street.

Baked Mackerel

Soak a mackerel in milk over night (after washing it in cold water several times and leaving it to soak for an hour or so); put it on a little grating in a dripping pan with a cup of water in the oven without washing off the milk, with plenty of butter and plenty of pepper and bake brown.

Put some melted butter over it or prepare in the same way and broil it. Serve with creamed potatoes. Take cold boiled potatoes or raw ones and cut in little dice and stew in cream; or, as a substitute, a little milk with a little butter and a teaspoonful of cornstarch cook until the potatoes are soft [illegible] the gravy [illegible]

CONFESSES FORGERIES

President of Defunct Muskegon Concern Awaits "Medicine."

NEW YORK BANKERS HIT

American Electric Fuse Company's Assets Are Reported as $200,000 and Liabilities $500,000—President Jones Claims No Personal Profit. Lieut. Gov. Ross a Stockholder.

Muskegon, Mich., June 13.—Lieutenant Governor John Q. Ross has stated that Frank G. Jones, president of the defunct American Electric Fuse Co., has confessed to him to having forged acceptances of stock to the amount of $450,000.

Jones is a prisoner in the Kent county jail. He is held for trial under $10,000 bonds, to the superior court. He is being shown no favors by Sheriff Hurley and is occupying a cell as a common prisoner.

Jones, who came here from Adrian, Mich., about eight years ago, bringing the company from that city, says he began his forgeries a few years ago when the business of the company, once prosperous, began to go backward; that he used all of the money in the business and has not personally profited. A majority of the creditors are Chicago and New York bankers.

The company's assets are reported as $200,000 and the liabilities $550,000.

Jones has a wife and one child. No warrant has been issued for his arrest, but he says he is "ready to take his medicine."

Lieutenant Governor Ross is a stockholder in the company and is attorney for the creditors.

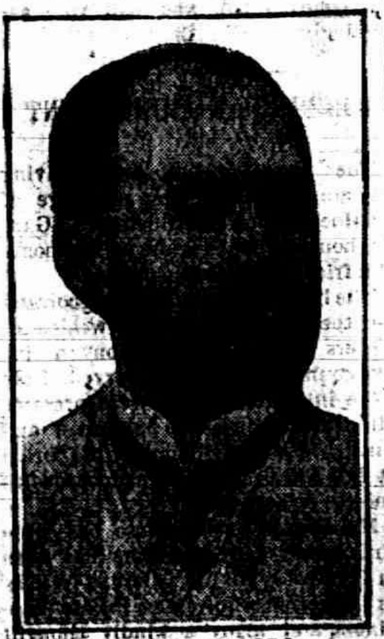
AGAIN LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

Castro Discovered on Ship Off Haitian Coast.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO RETURN

Deposed President of Venezuela Once Before Was Turned Back to Europe, and U. S. Will Take a Hand If He Attempts to Land This Time—Revolutionary Agitation His Object.

Washington (Special).—Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, has been located on board the steamship Consul Grostuck, an obsolete gunboat formerly owned by the Italian government, which is now at Port De Paix, Haiti, flying the German flag. He is undoubtedly on his way back to Venezuela to stir up a revolution against the present government there. The state department will promptly take steps to thwart his plans.



CIPRIANO CASTRO.

Castro apparently timed his arrival in Venezuela so as to land about the first week in July when the people of that country will be celebrating the centennial anniversary of the independence of Venezuela.

This is the second time he has endeavored to return to Venezuela since he was deposed several years ago.

The navy department has several gunboats in the West Indies near Haiti, and they may be assigned to keep watch on the Consul Grostuck.

SPANISH TROOPS ACTIVE IN MOROCCO

Alcazar and Tetuan Occupied —France Aroused.

Paris (Special).—The storm raised by Spanish military action in Morocco shows no sign of abating. The French press is unanimous in condemning the attitude of Spain, and the nationalist section is beginning to raise "the German bogey."

The Patrie declares that Germany is "poking up the fire" behind Spain. Meanwhile the latest dispatches from Morocco show that Spain is carrying out her program undeterred by the representations of the French government and the protests of the Moors. Alcazar and Tetuan are already occupied by the Spanish troops.

The Matin published an article declaring that Jean Cruppi, minister of foreign affairs has notified Spain that France will not consent to the occupation of Teutan and Alcazar and that Spain is bound by the Algeciras treaty to confer with the other powers before taking such steps.

LAURIER AT STATE FAIR.

Premier of Canada Invited to Attend During President's Visit.

Detroit, June 13.—Another big attraction for Detroit and the Michigan state fair, in the person of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada, is being sought. Several days ago President T. E. Newton of the state fair society received some pretty good assurances from influential Canadians that Sir Wilfrid would very much like to visit Detroit and Michigan on the occasion of President Taft's visit here, if he possibly could arrange his affairs to make the trip. Mr. Newton very promptly conferred with people across the border, with the result that Monday a formal invitation was extended the premier, through A. H. Clarke, M. P., of Windsor, to visit Detroit and the state fair on the same date President Taft is to be here, Sept. 18 or 19th.

President Newton also wrote Governor Osborn, requesting him to extend an invitation to Sir Wilfrid to come to Michigan as the guest of the state, and the governor has replied that he will be pleased to act.

Sir Wilfrid is at present in London attending the coronation ceremonies. He will return to Ottowa some time prior to July 18, on which date parliament convenes. It is expected adjournment will be reached about Sept. 1, which would make it possible for the premier to make the trip, and the importance and benefit to both countries of a meeting of the president of the United State and the premier of Canada, at this particular time, will be very strongly urged on Laurier by the people of Canada.

Saginaw—The Lutheran Mission festival for this district was held at the Auditorium Sunday, 2,500 people attending.

Detroit—Sunday was a day of accidents in this city. The street cars killed two and injured six, while a motor car figured in an accident in which one was injured.

Lansing—Wade H. Robinson, aged twenty-one, of Mason, was instantly killed at the station of the Commonwealth Power company in this city, when 4,400 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Charlotte—Three hundred Chester township farmers have just completed a three-day bee in which they have rebuilt and repaired the property destroyed by the recent severe wind storm.

GENERAL REYES.

Will Be Minister of War in Madero's Cabinet.

REYES WON'T RUN.

Madero Will Have Clear Sailing Into Mexico's Presidential Chair.

Mexico City (Special).—General Reyes, lately returned from his exile abroad, has announced that he will not run for president against Francisco I. Madero, Jr. This statement was made following a meeting between Madero, Reyes and Provisional President de la Barra and removes all opposition to Madero's election.

"If I am elected president, Senor de la Barra will be minister of foreign relations and General Reyes will be minister of war in my cabinet."

This statement was made by Madero following the conference.

Both men have consented to accept these portfolios, it is said.

Marines Ordered Home.

Washington (Special).—Orders have been issued for the withdrawal of 2,200 marines from Guantanoma, and 3,000 troops at Galveston, Tex., and San Diego will be withdrawn about June 18.

INVESTIGATION OF SUGAR TRUST ON

House Committee Will Make a Thorough Probe.

Washington (Special).—The house committee inquiry into the sugar business of the country began Monday. Witnesses of the leading sugar refineries in the east have been summoned to appear before the committee and will be followed by those interested in other lines of the sugar business. The committee has announced its purpose to make one of the most thorough investigations ever conducted of a great business by congress.

Rep. Hardwick of Georgia is chairman of the committee and will take a leading part in the examination of the witnesses. The committee first has taken up the American Sugar Refining Co. to determine if it is operating in violation of the anti-trust or interstate commerce laws.

James M. Beck, formerly assistant attorney general, appeared as counsel for the refining company, and Edwin F. Atkins of Boston, vice-president and acting president of the American Sugar Refining company, was the first witness.

Mr. Atkins testified that H. O. Havemeyer, the presiding genius of the organization, had maintained his supremacy with only 2,000 shares of stock. The holdings of Havemeyer at the time of his death, Mr. Atkins said, were valued at about $200,000, of a total of $90,000,000 in the American Sugar Refining Co.

PREDICTS EARLY VOTE.

Utah Senator Declares Reciprocity Bill Will Pass Before July 18

Washington (Special).—"It is my personal opinion that we will have a vote on the reciprocity bill July 16 or 17," said Senator Smoot of Utah, after a talk with President Taft at the White House. "The bill will pass and congress will adjourn with all business out of the way, I believe, about July 27."

Senator Smoot said that the Root amendment to the reciprocity bill would not invalidate the agreement. He declared on the other hand that the amendment would perfect the pact and that with the amendment attached the bill before congress was in every detail like the bill before the Canadian parliament.

OLD ASSESSMENT ROLL

Tecumseh 1829.

C. A. Slayton has in his possession an old assessment roll of Tecumseh for for the year 1829 by Gen. J. W. Brown, Assessor. The roll was on fools cap paper, six pages being the amount necessary for the complete roll.

There were 87 resident tax-payers on the list, and 40 non-residents.

Among the names we found several names that are familiar to some of the older residents now in Tecumseh, Ezra Blood, Isaac Bangs, Alanson Bangs, Stillman Blanchard, Thos. Griswold, Lyman Gray, Joseph Gray, Isaac Ketchum, Timothy Mitchell, M. A. Patterson, Wm. Tilton and several others whom we knew as old men.

When we compare the assessment roll, with that of today, the huge book, the long list, and the two men who make their annual call, the contrast is wonderful, and speaks volumes for the growth and prosperity of our village of Tecumseh.

SAVE THE FRUIT TREES

Many of the trees, especially apple, peach, plum in Southern Michigan have been attacked by the San Jose scale and injured to such an extent that all of the smaller branches have been killed. The trunks and larger branches are still vigorous and are sending up strong, healthy shoots. If the dead portions are cut away and the remainder of the tree sprayed with lime-sulphur solution about the 1st of July, it will be possible to save the trees.

At the time the young scales have appeared and can be readily killed by the use of commercial lime-sulphur solution if used at the rate of 1 part to 30 of water. Whenever possible to spray the trunks and larger branches with a strong solution, 1-12, without getting it upon the leaves or new growth, this should be done.

In the case of peach trees the application to the new shoots should not be stronger than 1-30, but stronger mixtures can be used upon the branches.

If the trees are handled in this way the injury from the scale may prove a blessing as the scale can be easily controlled and if the trees are cut back a new head will be formed which will practically renew them.

Persons who have trees apparent dying from some unknown cause are urged to send specimens of the bark from the two-year old branches to the undersigned.

L. R. Taft,
State Inspector of Nurseries and Orchards.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recomending Doan's Kidney Pills as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health Try them. 50c at C A. A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. G. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 235 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

GRAND JURY HAS FOUND NEW LEAD

Evidence in Dynamiting Cases Takes Unexpected Turn.

FRENCH LICK HOTEL EXPLOSION

Certain Testimony Tends to Connect Bridge and Structural Iron Workers with Outrage Supposedly Committed by Gambler.

Indianapolis, June 12.—The most important evidence which has been elicited by the grand jury in the dynamiting cases and which is alleged to lead unmistakably into the inner council of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers was secured on Friday of last week and is being followed by the prosecutor with indications of large developments.

The most important witness in this branch of the inquiry has disappeared but the officers are seeking him everywhere and descriptions of him have been sent out, and, if found, he will be arrested.

The story dates back to the dynamiting of the new hotel building that was being erected at French Lick and which the public was led to believe was the result of revenge on the part of osmeone who had lost heavily at gambling. It now develops that the dynamite was set off by a member of the iron workers, that warning was given that the building would be blown into the air if union men were not employed on it, that an affidavit was secured from the man who exploded the dynamite and at this juncture, it is claimed, Tom Taggart caused the investigation to be discontinued. The grand jury has gone into the matter and is trying to get the man who made the affidavit, but he has disappeared.

On the day following the explosion at French Lick Detective Morgan, of this city, went there and began an investigation. He learned that a member of the iron workers' executive board had been to French Lick and that following his visit an iron worker and a member of the union went to French Lick and represented himself as a non-union man and got employment on the building. This man was taken into custody by Morgan, but he denied exploding the dynamite. Taggart learned that the man was in custody and caused the investigation to be dropped.

One week later, Detective Gerber, who alternated with Detective Morgan, went to French Lick and, hearing the dynamiting discussed and not knowing that Morgan had been on the case, began an investigation, but had not proceeded far when Taggart interfered, saying that no real damage had been done and he did not care to have the affair sifted. The detective, it is said, reported the conclusion that Taggart did not care to get entangled with the iron workers' union and for this reason called off the inquiry.

Detective Morgan appeared before the grand jury on Friday and told what he had learned in connection with his investigation. One of the statements attributed to a member of the union was that they "could knock down more in a minute than them fellows could build in a week."

The authorities are said to be satisfied that the outrage was planned at French Lick and that men high up in the councils of the organization were concerned in it. Taggart will be called to tell what he knows about the affair.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

LAYS CRIME TO SPIRITS

Denver Gambler Tells of Slaying His Wife.

Says He Was Goaded by Spiritualistic Revelations Portraying Wife's Alleged Infidelity.

Denver, Colo., June 10.—Gus William Marshall, the gambler who fired eight bullets into the body of his wife, killing her instantly, declares he was goaded to desperation by spiritualistic revelations portraying his wife's alleged infidelity. After years of these mystic communications, he says, he became convinced his wife was unfaithful.

He stated to the police that he had a vision, before the tragedy, showing the woman in another man's arms. He went to a resturant, which, he says, she and Charles Chutes were conducting with his money. His wife, he says, was in tears, which had been induced by Chutes, who was also in the place.

Marshall upbraided Chutes and stated his wife and Chutes ordered him away. Marshall then hurried to a hardware store, purchased an automatic revolver and returned to the restaurant. Chutes had left. Marshall immediately opened fire on his wife.

USE PRISONERS ON ROAD

Saginaw County Will Begin Experiment This Week.

Saginaw, Mich., June 19.—As a result of the recent investigation by the sheriff, county road commissioner and committee of the board of supervisors, of the convict labor work on the stone roads at Kalamazoo, the sheriff will start a crew of minor crime men on the new stone road being built in Brady township, this county.

If the experiment proves satisfactory to the officers a favorable report for the general adoption of the system will be made to the supervisors, at their regular session in June.

WARDEN'S DAUGHTER WEDS

Jackson, Mich., June 19.—Frances A., only daughter of Warden Nathan F. Simpson, of the prison, was united in marriage at the residence to Ralph Zueblin Hopkins of Detroit. The wedding was a quiet, but unusually pretty ceremony. Nan Foster of La-Molle, Ill., was bridesmaid and Nathan F. Simpson, Jr., best man, only the immediate family of the young couple being present.

A happy feature of the wedding was when a chest among the presents was opened and found to contain congratulations from 200 inmates of the prison.

REDUCES COST OF CARRYING MAILS

Congress to Be Asked to Approve New Scale of Rates.

HASTEN DAY OF PENNY POSTAGE

Inquiry Into Cost of Railway Mail Service Develops Fact that Trunk Lines Get Lion's Share of Compensation.

Washington, June 19. — Many railroads are carrying the mails at a large profit, while others are furnishing the service at a loss, according to a statement made by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

The postmaster general is of the opinion that the railway mail service can be readjusted in such a manner as to effect a saving to the government of approximately $9,000,000 a year without doing injustice to any carrier.

Under the direction of the postmaster general government officials have been conducting an inquiry into the cost of the railway mail service. The investigation has progressed far enough to warrant the department in making the statement that the great trunk lines are at present receiving the lion's share of the excess compensation paid for mail carriage, while many of the smaller roads are transporting the mails at a loss. In readjusting railway mail payments, the postmaster general proposes to allow the roads a profit of six per cent and congress will be asked to approve a new scale of rates that will be submitted to it.

With the adoption of the new rates for railway carriage the postmaster general predicts an increase in the "postal surplus." Mr. Hitchcock further declares that the readjustment of railway mail pay on a more economical basis will hasten the day of penny postage.

TRAIN KILLS RICH MAN

Was Picking Up Coal on the Railway at New Athens, Ill.

New Athens, Ill., June 19.—Although the possessor of hundreds of acres of valuable Illinois farm lands and an independent fortune, the parsimonious habits of Christian Miller, eighty-one years old, cost him his life on the Illinois Central railway tracks as he was picking up peices of coal.

While bent at his task, his impaired hearing prevented him from noting the shriek of the Illinois Central Flyer when the train bore down upon him. He was instantly killed.

DARING ROBBER SHOT

Man Who Thought Chicago Robbers' Paradise Captured.

Smashed Window of a Big Jewelry Store, Seized Plunder and Ran —Stopped by Bullet.

Chicago, June 19.—Revolver shots fired at a fugitive following a daring robbery at the Jackson Jewelry company store, 142-44 North State street, startled pedestrians at 3:30 a. m., dozens joining in the chase, which ended only after the thief had been shot in the leg and ran for more than a block, leaving a trail of blood and stolen jewelry behind him.

The prisoner gave the name of Bonfact Moncuse and his age as twenty-one. He told the police that he had come from Denver only six hours before, and that after reading the newspapers he was convinced Chicago was a robbers' paradise.

According to the police, Moncuse was walking through State street when his attention was attracted by the jewelry in the windows of the Jackson company, and, picking up an iron standard he sent it crashing through a plate glass window, making a hole two feet in diameter.

Reaching in he took thirty band wedding rings from a tray and started on a run south on State street.

TO CATCH HORSETHIEVES

Sheriffs of Portions of Three States Organize an Association.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 19.—Uniting in an organization which has for its object making horse stealing more perilous and the detection of thieves more certain, many sheriffs of northern Indiana, northwestern Ohio and southern Michigan organized the Tri-State Sheriffs' association. Sheriff H. B. Wilson, of Vant Vert, O., was elected president and Sheriff A. M. Reichelderfer, of Fort Wayne, secretary.

The organization is the plan of the two officials to bring at least fifty county sheriffs in the three states into an organization. Each sheriff will organize his own county, obtaining trustworthy representatives in each city, town and village, as well as through the rural districts which are now connected with a network of telephone lines.

SILVER WEDDING AT WHITE HOUSE

Social Event in Washington This Evening to Be Brilliant.

WHITE HOUSE GROUNDS ALIGHT

Great Company of Notables to be En-Taft—Handsome Gifts Al-Taft—Handsome Gigts Already Received.

Washington, June 19.—Folks in Washington are awakening to the fact that the Taft wedding reception at the White House tonight is going to be unique in the annals of the national capital.

Thousands of the curious stood along the high iron fence enclosing the grounds of the executive mansion yesterday while dozens of workmen, rain dripping from their grimy hats and jumpers, strung miles of wire around the lawns and gardens and socketed the thousands of electric lights that will shed their radiance on the 5,000 guests expected to attend the function.

The illumination of the White House and grounds will be the most elaborate ever attempted. The historic structure itself will be outlined in streaks of fire, thousands of incandescent lamps will glow in the oaks and elms about the executive mansion, flooding the lawns with light, and searchlights on the roof of the state, war and navy buildings will throw colored beams of light on the playing fountain directly in front of the great portecochere of the White House.

Practically all the preliminaries have been completed. The lawns have been newly clipped, the trees and shrubbery trimmed, the stand for the marine band completed. This afternoon the White House conservatories will be practically cleaned out and the interior of the White House decorated with wagon loads of cut flowers. The shops of Washington have been swept clean of Japanese lanterns that, enclosing incandescent globes, have been srung in a great square around the grounds just inside the iron fence that will divide the guests from the interested public. Dozens of tables scattered here and there among the trees will bear the bowls of punch and light refreshments. On the lawn the marine band will play. In the east room the engineers' band will play. It will be a long remembered outdoor fete if the fickle weather of Washington holds kind and true.

The presents which have been sent to the president and Mrs. Taft form the most splendid collection of silver Washington has ever seen. They are banked in the red room of the White House and the pile grows higher and higher every hour. Some of these gifts have come from foreign countries, but the great majority of them were given by friends in Washington.

Those presents which were sent by organizations are particularly handsome. The tea set presented by the United States senate, the three dozen silver plates from the house of representatives, and the silver service from the United States supreme court are the first gifts ever made by these bodies to an individual, be he president or private citizen.

From Cincinnati have come numerous gifts. The Commercial club of that city, which has come in a body to attend the celebration, has sent a gorgerous collection of silver. The people of Maryland have presented a silver punch bowl, tray and ladle, while many organizations have remembered the distinguished couple with gifts. The members of the cabinet sent individual presents, as have many others in Washington intimately associated with the Taft administration.

The Philippine party of 1905, called "The Tafters," presented two solid silver Grecian ewers, twenty inches in height, and a solid silver waiter with the monograms of the president and Mrs. Taft marked "From the Tafters."

The Washington correspondents sent a solid silver fruit dish and the Gridiron club a solid silver pitcher and waiter engraved with the mark of the dates 1886-1911.

The celebration began at noon today when the president was entertained at the Chevy Chase club by the Commercial club of Cincinnati, composed of old-time friends of the Tafts.

The invitation list for the celebration is interesting. It includes nearly 5,000 people, some of them from the Pacific coast. First of all, the president invited all the surviving members of the family of former presidents of the United States, beginning with Robert T. Lincoln, son of President Lincoln.

Then Mrs. Taft invited the class of Yale '78, of which the president is a member, and the members of the Skull and Bones society of Yale.

The members of the cabinet, of course, with their families were invited and all the members of congress and the congressional press galleries. Other officials were included.

Prominent clergymen from all parts of the United States were included in the invitation list, the Republican national committeemen from all the states, members of the federal judiciary, and hundreds of personal friends scattered in every state of the union were bidden to come.

FRATERNAL MEMORIAL SERVICES

Large Crowd in Attendance

Sunday dawned bright and fair and the afternoon was all that could be desired for the Memorial Services of the fraternal societies.

Promptly at 2:30 the line of march was formed and to the music of the band they marched to the cemetery. There was quite a good delegation from each order. Arriving at the cemetery the committee in charge preceeded to decorate the graves of their departed brothers and sisters. Meanwhile the band playing several selections.

The programme was listended to with marked attention. Rev. B. R. Weld gave the invocation, then followed a selection "Savior with Thee" by the Male quartette. O. C. Wood chairman of the committee of the day made a few forcible introductory remarks and then introduced the speaker, Rev. W. B. Hartzog Ph. D. he chose for his subject "Fraternalism" commending the fraternal orders for binding together in the bonds of friendship and love, helping each other in time of need, with benefits and care in sickness and death, making preparation in their times of peace and plenty, for the time when they are called to leave their families to battle alone then the benefit that has accrued will be of great help. Rev. Hartzog cited the history of Joseph, in his interpretation of dreams and practical application in saving during the seven years of plenty, that the people might be helped during the 7 years of famine that followed. He showed the fraternal spirit helped greatly in adjusting the relations of the people of our country from the disturbing influences of the Civil war And as applied to Christianity he thought it an active factor in the worlds work. His remarks were listended to with close attention, and were enjoyed by all. The Male quartette gave another fine selection "Lead Kindly Light" that touched each heart. After the benediction by the Rev. B. R. Weld, the crowd dispersed feeling that it had been good to meet together on this Memorial occasion.

STAULTER—KING

Married in Windsor Canada, June 14 1911, Mr. Z King and Miss Clara Staulter both of Toledo. Miss Staulter was formerly of Tecumseh.

FAMILY REUNION

Sunday the home of James McDermott was the scene of quite a family reunion to have the mother and seven children with their companions and children gathered together. Tables were spread on the lawn and a most delightful time was spent.

Those present were: Mrs. Franc McDermott mother, of Clinton, Mrs. Williams and two children of Pale, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ketchem and two children of Dixon, Ill., Ed. Kelby and wife of Clinton, Frank Mc Dermott, Manchester, Louis Jones wife and two children and Jas. McDermott, wife and son of Tecumseh. Of eleven sons and daughters only one has been called higher and all have grown to man and womanhood.

Cheered Her Up a Bit.

A young lady living in Atlanta visited the home of her fiance in New Orleans. On her return home an old negro "mammy" long in the service of the family, and consequently privileged to put the question, asked:

"Honey, when is you goin' to git married?"

The engagement not having been announced, the Atlanta girl smilingly replied:

The old woman's jaw fell.

"Ain't dat a pity, now!" she ejaculated, and, after reflection, she added, consolingly: "Dey do say dat ole maids is de happiest critters day is once dey quit strugglin'.—Uncle Remus's Magazine.

Curiosity Squelched.

At dinner the professor of history was seated between two young ladies, who, in accordance with their training in the art of conversation, sought to draw him out upon the subject in which he was most interested. They did not meet with much success; his answers were short—"Yes," "Oliver Cromwell," "No," "1492," and the like. Finally one of them in desperation ventured: "Professor, we were wondering only this afternoon, and none of us could remember: How many children did Mary, Queen of Scots have?"

This was too much. "Madam," said the professor, facing her with squelching dignity, "I am not a scandalmonger."

According to the Text.

The father wanted to test the generous nature of his son, so as the boy was going to church one morning he said:

"Here, Benny, are a quarter and a penny. You can put whichever you please in the contribution box."

Benny thanked his papa and went to church.

Curious to know which coin Benny had given, his papa asked him when he returned, and Benny replied:

"Well, paper, it was this way. The preacher said the Lord loveth a cheerful giver, and I knew I could give a penny a good deal more cheerfully than I could give a quarter, so I put the penny in."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Too Pointed.

Mr. Howard was a man of exceedingly few words. He positively disliked to talk, as an Indian dislikes to smile. One day he went into a music store to buy the music of an opera for his sister. The clerk came up, and to him Mr. Howard said in his quiet way:

"'Mikado' libretto."

The salesman frowned.

"What's that?" he asked.

"'Mikado' libretto," repeated the other.

"Me no speakee Italiano," said the clerk, shaking his head.—Washington Star.

Operatic Criticism.

It appears that his tailor was very anxious to hear him sing, so the other day Martin sent him a couple of tickets for "Carmen."

A few days later when he saw the tailor he naturally asked him:

"How did you like it?" To which the tailor replied.

"It was simply awful. Your trousers didn't fit you at all!"

Mean Tramp.

"And will you chop some wood if I give you a slice of my own home-made pie?" asked the housewife.

"Ah, mum, it would be a waste of time," hastened Gritty George, tipping his hat; "I'd much rather maul rails."

"But why would you rather maul rails?"

"'Cause den I could use the pie as a wedge, mum."—Chicago News.

Useful Invention.

The latest invention to hang in the family dining-room is the gum board. It is a neat little circular board, plain or decorated, fastened to the wall. The name of each of the family is painted on the circumference and marks the spot where the gum is left until wanted. This saves carrying the gum to bed or getting it in one's hair or swallowing it in the night. It is obvious that the gum board supplies a long felt want, and he who invented the new fad will have the best wishes of the young ladies.

BUGBEE—BENTLY REUNION

At the Home of Miles E. Baldwin June 15, 1911

The 16th Bugbee and Bently annual reunion was held on Thursday June 15 at the comfortable home of Mr. and Mrs. Miles E. Baldwin in Tecumseh, Mich., where the word "WELCOME" was displayed and Old Glory was seen waving its beautiful colors in the gentle breeze of a clear bright morning to greet the many relatives and friends from their several homes, while the genial host and hostess was ever on their guard to clasp the hands, and bid their guests enter and enjoy the day with them. The first cousin came alone, opened the door doffed his hat and exclaimed Hip Hip Hurrah! for Miles Baldwin and as each train arrived until noon they gave glad tidings of more and still more, who had left the busy cares for one day which should be one gala day in the years to come. The morning was too soon passed for some others longed to be seated at those well filled tables so nicely arranged on the lawn where they could enjoy the refiewing of their physical strength.

At twelve noon the call was given and all were soon seated, Rev. Kennedy invoked Divine blessing after which each man, woman and child did their best to relieve the tables of their heavy load and the route to all hearts was laid bare, a jolly good time was enjoyed by all.

A reunion cake was made by Mrs. Geo. Ziehr decorated with Bugbee and Bently in the frosting which was presented to the company by the hostest and much enjoyed by all. Mr. Coller was there and preformed his part as soon as the group was arranged by using his camera.

A short business meeting was called by John Bugbee, Mrs Fred George acted as secretary Pro tem who read the minutes of last meeting in 1910. Roll call showed 46 present also four births, one death and two marriages were reported for the year. Both grooms were of the tribe of Bentlys and were present with their brides. A collection to defray expenses and a nice sum left in the treasury. Officers for three years were elected viz:

Pres.—Mr. Clarence Bentley,
Vice Pres.—Mr. John Bugbee,
Sec —Mrs. Winnie George,
Treas —Burt

with a certain fine pending for all those absent, Prayer by Rev. Kennedy the meeting closed. But ere the guests departed ice cream, cake and bannas were served, all feeling another link had been added to the golden chain of memories in the life of each and everyone present. The towns represented were; Adrian, Hillsdale, Middleville, Alligan, Hanover Ransam, Morenci, Toledo and Onsted.

UNDER ADVISEMENT

A Chicago lawyer tells of a newly elected squire in Minnesota, who was much elated by his honors, but not quite sure that he could sustain them gracefully. So for some time previous to his assumption of the office, he hung about the courts to get a tip now and then as to legal procedure. One phrase struck him particularly, and it was not long before he had an opportunty to utilize it.

When, sitting in judgement on his first case, the testimony was all in and the arguments made, His Honor cleared his throat and delivered himself of the following:

"The court takes this case under advisement until next Thursday morning, when it will render a verdict in favor of the defendant."

HE LEARNED WHY

A politician who was making a house-to-house canvass came to a farm house when he observed an elderly woman standing at the gate, and the candidate gracefully lifted his hat and politely asked: "No doubt, my dear madam, your husband is at home?"

"Yes," responded the woman.

"Might I have the pleasure of seeing him?" inquired the politician.

"He's down in the pasture a-burying the dog," was the reply from the individual at the gate.

"I am very sorry indeed to learn of the death of your dog," came in sympathizing tones from the candidate. "What killed him?"

"He wore hisself out a-barking at the candidates," said the woman.

Suitable cushions add a great deal to the furnishing of a room, and the woman of taste will study her house before putting delicately tinted satin cushions in a room fitted up in mission furniture and brasses, or heavy leather cushions in a dainty appointed parlor.

In the library one would naturally suppose the furnishings to be of a solid nature, and here the cushions would be leather, heavy linen or any material of a heavy appearance. The Persian tapestry squares are generally pretty and are heavy enough to be suitable for the room furnished in mission.

The dark yet glowing colors in these squares serve to brighten without lending a gaudy appearance. Another good choice is the corduroy cushion trimmed merely with a heavy metallic cord around the edges.

As a rule the drawing room cushions are better made of satin, embroidered, braided or in some cases hand painted.

Muslin scarfs, with borders of eyelet embroidery, will be carried with lingerie dresses during the summer, replacing the chiffon ones of last year.

Eyelet embroidery will also be much used on the tunics of the summer dresses. These tunics are many of them of lightweight linen made up or a colored material.

Clean Straw Hat

The woman who wore a becoming hat last summer and who wishes to bring it out for this spring again may clean it by using a mixture of sulphur and lemon juice. Scrub the hat with this until it is perfectly clean and then rinse it with fresh water.

OLD HOMESTEAD

While S. W. Temple was visiting in Vermont, last spring, he went to the old Temple homestead in Sunderland. This home has been in the Temple family for over 150 years, Deacon P. C. Temple and his brother, Stephen, came over from England together, Stephen settled in Mass., Palmer C. Temple in Vermont, he built the old house, the first in the town, and it still stands, an heirloom of the olden times.

Through the influence of S. W. Temple, his son, Herbert M. Temple of St. Paul, Minn., has purchased the property, he will repair the house keeping it in its original form as far as possible and intends to keep it in the Temple family and name.

PROSPERITY

The Detroit News of June 16 has a short article on Prosperity, that proves that despite all predictions to the contrary, Crops will be abundant. It says, "Prosperity seems determined to abound with us yet, awhile no matter how we abuse the common blessings.

Several predictions of a bumper crop have already been made in spite of the May drouth. It is predicted that the winter wheat crop will at least equal the production of last year. And it is said that the acreage of spring wheat in the northwest is 1,000,000 acres greater than last year with a prospect that has not been excelled in 20 years. The crop is from 10 days to two weeks in advance of the average stage of development.

The corn crop is equally promising. So as a nation we have at least the hope of being well fed.

In view of all this, it would be a good thing to have faith that plenty and prosperity will surely come.

THE PAGE FENCE ADRIAN

No More Weaving After July 1

It has been announced that after July 1, there will be no more fence weaving. Only a small number of men will be effected however, and will find ready work at the Monesson plant or the other fence factories.

Competition has made it impractical to manufacture fence in the City, and the advantages of water and rail connections at Monesson, make that place more desirable for the business

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin. N. Ottawa St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recomending Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agent for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach. Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health Try them. 50c at C A Wright & Son's.

The heart has eyes the brain knows nothing of.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C, A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly people suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. P. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

DIAZ PARTISANS BEING UPROOTED

New Mexican Regime to Deprive Them of All Power.

MANY FLEE FROM THE COUNTRY

Control of Mexican National Railways to be Wrested from Group of Cientificos—Limantour a Prominent Director.

El Paso, June 19.—Control of the Mexican National railways, representing hundreds of million of dollars, which now lies in the hands of a group of Cientificos, close friends of former President Diaz, is to be wrested from their control by the new Mexican government at the direction of Francisco I. Madero and associates.

This means that the enemies of the revolutionary party are to be deprived of the last vestige of their power. The Cientifico group, of which Senor Jose Yves Limantour, is the head, now has a majority on the board of directors. However the board can be changed by order of the president of the republic.

The present government will have enough members of the dominant faction to destroy the power of the old Diaz clique and replace them with men who can be depended upon. This action will be taken within a week.

Cientificos now in the city of Mexico are panicstricken and a majority of them are preparing to leave for the United States or Europe, following the example of Limantour and Escandon. The government, through the influence of Madero, is now preparing to make a rigid examination of all contracts and treasury accounts in which the Cientificos have figured.

The program resembles that of the United States government in its probing of the big corporations. Many will, no doubt, lose their concessions.

The investigation will also involve an inquiry into the affairs of a great corporation, representing the Pearson Oil interests which are backed by British capital and controlled by Lord Cowdrat, formerly Sir Weetman Pearson.

The investigation is to be hastened on account of the report received by the government that the Pearson company is considering a plan to transfer its holdings in Mexico to financiers interested in the John W. Gates Texas Oil company and the Gulf Refining company. The presence in the capital of representatives of these two corporations has added conviction in the minds of the new leaders of the truth of these reports.

BUSHNELL ARRAIGNED FOR TATE SHOOTING

Pontiac Man Admits Act, It Is Said.

Pontiac, Mich., June 13.—Harry Bushnell, who is accused of shooting and severely wounding William Tate of Detroit at Cass Lake two weeks ago, with a rifle, has been brought back to Pontiac by Sheriff Tripp from Milwaukee, where he was arrested on board the steamer Upson.

Bushnell, when arraingned on a charge of assault with intent to murder Tate, demanded an examination, which was set for June 27.

According to the sheriff, Bushnell, on the way to Pontiac, admitted that he shot Tate and claims self defense in explanation of his act. Bushnell also admitted that he had been wounded by shot from Tate's gun when the latter, after being wounded, fired both barrels at him. He showed the marks upon his face where shot had struck him and stated that he had taken the shot out himself with his jack knife.

Mrs. Cassie Ellis of Flint, the woman who was expected to connect Bushnell with the murder of Frank Bevier last July, was not able to identify the man further than to say his voice sounded the same.

Light Furnishings For Dark Rooms

In many of the city houses where there are a few rooms which are poorly lighted much can be done by the use of light furniture, wall paper and hangings. A brass jardiniere holding a bright flower or mirror, with a gilt frame, will do much toward lighting a dark corner.

Artificial light, of course, will always solve the problem, but this is not best for the eyes, while a sunny yellow paper, transparent curtains and no shades will brighten the darkest room.

To Stop Nosebleed

One of the commonest complaints among children is bleeding of the nose, and the remedies to be applied are of the simplest. A small wad of white paper inserted under the tongue or under the upper lip is generally all that is needed to stop an ordinary nosebleed, although pads of cotton dipped in ice water and placed at the back of the necks is the standby of many mothers.

Beef Kidneys

Cut the kidneys into round slices about half an inch thick. Dredge thickly with flour seasoned with pepper salt and all spice and fry slowly in very hot fat. When red juice comes to the surface of the slices turn each and cook the other side until it ceases to flow.

Take up and keep hot while you make the gravy by pouring hot water into the frying pan. Thicken with browned flour; boil up and serve.

A cake mixer which mixes batter in three to five minutes is shown in the kitchen department. Instead of using a heavy agate or wooden spoon or getting the batter all over the arms and hands, a handle is turned in the top of the mixer and in a few minutes the batter is ready to be poured into the cake tins.

A claret jug of rock crystal with a silver top also offers a suggestion for those who are thinking of wedding presents.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature R.V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

CONFLICT OVER TAFT

President's Presence Desired In Two Places at Same Time.

Indianapolis Civic Organizations and Railway Men Storm Washington with Telegrams.

Indianapolis, June 19.—The civic organizations that have arranged for a "safe and sane" Fourth and have been expecting the coming of President Taft to contribute to the celebration of the day have come in conflict with the Associated Brotherhood of Railroad Men, in train service, who have prepared a demonstration at the fair grounds. Both want the presence of the president at their respective places of amusement, but both events come off at the same time and a conflict exists.

The civic organizations have a track meet at the ball park and want the president to present the medals. The railroad men will have a head-on collision of locomotives at the fair grounds and want the president to attend. Charges of admission will be made at both places, but the civic organizations say their money is to be used only to defray expenses, while the fair grounds show is being put up for private gain and that the railroad men want to make money. Both sides are storming Washington with telegrams and letters, but it is not known which fete the president will decide to attend.

LONG-DISTANCE ASSAULT

Current Turned On Wire Connected with Faucet by Enemy.

Newark, N. J., June 19.—James M. Finnegan, employe of an electric company at Harrison, is under arrest charged with a long-distance assault by electricity upon Alfred Van Riper, a fellow worker.

Van Riper was knocked down by an electric shock when he touched a brass water faucet and has been in a hospital ever since. He says that the faucet was connected with a wire and that Finnegan with whom he had a quarrel previously, turned on the current when he started to wash his hands at the faucet.

AVIATORS BURN TO DEATH IN MID-AIR

Start of Circuit Race Witnessed Many Accidents.

Paris (Special).—Three aviators were killed, two seriously injured and three slightly hurt at the beginning of the European circuit race which calls for a flight to London and return with various stops.

Two of the air men were burned to death in mid-air, their engine tanks exploding and the helpless victims were wrapped in flames that killed them even before the speedy crash to earth of their machines.

Joseph Lenhow was killed near Chateau-Thierry, the oil in his reservoir exploded, the machine was consumed and the aviator's body burned beyond recognition.

Captain Princetan was killed in the same manner soon after the start from the field at Vincennes. His motor exploded in mid-air, he was flooded with gasoline and burned to death in a second.

M. Le Martin dashed into a tree; his head was crushed by his motor and he was instantly killed.

ATLEE POMERENE.

Ohio's New Senator Pleads For Prosecution of Trust Officials.

SENATOR ATLEE POMERENE

Asks Prosecution of Trust Officials.

Washington (Special).—Senator Atlee Pomerene, in a speech in the senate, called on the attorney general to undertake criminal prosecution of the officers of the Standard Oil and American Tobacco companies under the recent decision of the supreme court of the United States in the cases of the two corporations.

SENATOR LUKE LEA.

Saves Wife's Life by Giving Up Quart of His Own Lifeblood.

Gives Lifeblood to Save Wife.

Washington (Special). — United States Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, to save the life of his stricken wife, heroically sacrificed a quart of his blood at Georgetown hospital, and now hope for Mrs. Lea's recovery, which had almost been abandoned, is practically assured the anxious youngest senator of the nation as he lies near the bedside of his wife recuperating his strength.

TAFTS' SILVER JUBILEE

Celebrated at White House Monday Under Clear Skies.

Washington (Special).—Under clear, sparkling skies and in the soft and sweet air of a truly Virginian June night, President and Mrs. Taft celebrated the anniversary of that day 25 years ago when their lives were wedded and they started on the career that has been so happy and prosperous.

Fully 5,000 guests passed the receiving line.

BABES ASPHYXIATED.

Two Ann Arbor Tots Suffocated in Their Little Bedroom.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 19.—Two tots, Dorothy and Harold Stody, aged four and two, respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Stody of this city, are dead as the result of asphyxiation by illuminating gas, and the parents are prostrated over their terrible double affliction, the mother being in a serious condition from the shock, while the father survived only through heroic treatment of physicians who worked over him all night, he having a weak heart.

There seems to be but one explanation of how the gas was turned on. A light fixture in the children's room was a combination gas and electric one, and it is thought the little girl must have reached up to turn on the electric light and got hold of the gas switch instead and turned it.

Experimenting With Convicts.

Saginaw, Mich., June 19.—As a result of the recent investigation by the sheriff, county road commissioners and committee of the board of supervisors of the convict labor on the stone roads at Kalamazoo, the sheriff [illegible] started a crew of minor criminals on the new stone road being built at Brady township, this county. If the experiment proves satisfactory to the officers a favorable report for the general adoption of the system will be made to the supervisors at their regular session in June.

COMMISSION PLAN FAILS

VOTE STOOD 2,391 TO 1,214

Carrying Every Voting District in the City and Electing Their Charter Commissioners by Large Majorities, the Antis Won a Sweeping Victory at State Capital.

Lansing, Mich., June 20.—By a vote of 2,391 to 1,214, Lansing decided not to adopt the commission form of government. Carrying every voting precinct in the city and electing their charter commissioners by large majorities, the antis won a sweeping victory.

For nearly a year the agitation for the new form of government has been waged by a number of the leading citizens of the Capital city, and during the last few weeks the campaign has been exceedingly warm.

THREE YOUNG GIRLS DROWN IN CREEK

Canoe Capsized, Throwing Them Into the Water.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., June 19.—Lela and Lena Stewart, sisters, aged 16 and 14, respectively, and Fern Hall, aged 14, were drowned when their canoe capsized in Spring brook, a branch of Grand river, in this city.

The girls had been enjoying the afternoon by taking a canoe trip up the stream and it is supposed were on their way home when the accident happened. There were no witnesses to the catastrophe, and the first known of it was when the girls' canoe was found floating bottom up on the stream. Search was at once instituted for the occupants and the three bodies were found close together a short distance above where the capsized canoe was discovered.

The triple drowning has cast a gloom over the community.

The theory is that the canoe struck a snag, causing it to capsize.

Manistee Man Drowned.

Manistee, Mich., June 18.—Paul Olson, boiler maker, unmarried, aged 45, was drowned while bathing in Manistee river.

Caught Under Water; Drowns.

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 19.—While swimming in Bryant's mill pond, Thomas Van Wyke, an 11-year-old boy, was caught in an old buggy that had been sunk and was drowned.

The charitable institutions of the city are starting a movement to have the aged woman sent to the House of the Good Shepherd in Detroit, where she may spend her last days.

GEORGE V, IS CROWNED

Georgeous Ceremony Enacted In Westminster Abby.

U. S. NAVAL OFFICERS GUESTS

Every Nation On the Globe Represented Officially at the Coronation Ceremonies, and Most Conspicuous Among the Special Embassadors Was John Hays Hammond of U. S.

London (Special).—George V. and his consort, Mary, were crowned king and queen of England, Thursday, at Westminster abbey, before a brilliant assemblage of princes, nobles and ecclesiastics, with thousands of other spectators who had gained access to the great hall, and who had assembled long before the king and queen arrived. In point of grandeur the coronation Thursday was even more elaborate than that of King Edward, nine years ago. The Archbishop of Canterbury performed the crowning ceremonies while the people of the United Kingdom everywhere shouted, "Long Live the King!"

KING GEORGE V. AND QUEEN MARY OF ENGLAND.

The route from Buckingham palace to the Westminster abbey, over which the king and queen passed on their way to the crowning ceremonies was lined by a solid bank of humanity, and the buildings along the route were decorated on a scale never before attempted in London.

Every nation on the earth was represented officially at the coronation and thousands from every nation were in attendance unofficially.

Among the most conspicuous at the coronation ceremonies were Mrs. and Mrs. John Hays Hammon. Mr. Hammond is the special ambassador from the United States.

Captain Charles A. Gove and the six senior officers of the American battleship Delaware were guests of the admiralty and witnessed the crowning of England's king.

Much attention is being paid to the officers and men of the American battleship Delaware which is now anchored with the other foreign warships at Spithead.

MEXICO AFTER MONOPOLIES.

American Capitalists Will Be Affected by Reform Movement.

Chihuahua, Mex. (Special).—Reforms immediately affecting millions of dollars' worth of American property in Mexico were announced here. Governor Abraham Gonzales declared that under the new regime foreign concessions which might be regarded as monopolies would not be extended or renewed, and that every legal effort would be made to restrict foreign monopolies now existing in Chihuahua, one of the richest states in minerals and timber. The properties are largely controlled by Americans, British and German interests. The Americans are the largest holders.

Concessions Granted Strikers.

London (Special).—The most important development in the general shipping strike is the concession of an advance of $2.50 a month in wages to all employes involved by the White Star Co. and the Canadian Pacific railway, an example which has been followed by the Holt and another line at Liverpool.

Smith's Excuses Won't Go.

Washington (Special).—Joseph F. Smith of Salt Lake City, head of the Mormon church, must come to Washington to testify before the house committee investigating the so-called sugar trust, regarding his connection with the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. Replying to a message from Mr. Smith saying an attack of rheumatism and other obligations would prevent his appearance here, Chairman Hardwick of the committee sent this ultimatum: "Committee has determined to have your testimony; the only question left is will you come on the 22nd without subpena, or shall we send an officer to secure you? Please answer at once."

Residences for American Ambassadors

National dignity and self-respect requires that proper provision be made for our representatives abroad so that they might live in accordance with the standard already set up the representatives of other nations, and so that a poor man might follow a rich man, or the reverse, without occasioning any adverse comment. This reform has now been accomplished by the passage of the Lowden bill, which will in time, result in our Government owning a residence in every country to which it sends Ambassadors, one that will compare favorably with those of other nations, one to which American citizens can point, with pride, and to which they may go feeling that they have citizen's rights therein From "Permanent Housing for Diplomats," in the American Review of Reviews for June.

MICHIGAN VETRANS ENCAMPED AT YPSILANTI

June 21-23

50 years, who can realize the flight of time, as they recall the events of this stirring time, when at the call of their country full 91,000 brave sons of Michigan bade farewell to mothers, wives and sweethearts and went forth to die if must be for their country and their homes. And this week the remnant of that body of brave men and true, meet once more to renew old ties and friendships, and rejoice that they live in "the land of the free and the home of the brave," through their faithful fight for its prosperity.

Did you hear the fife and drum crossing? the players were on their way to Ypsilanti and as the train drew into Tecumseh, they started up with a few of the old time notes, that thrilled the hearts of those who lived in the sixties and brought back many a tender memory. And the old martial spirit woke again.

Among those who went from Tecumseh were A. W. Mills and wife, E. M. Camburn, Frank Harring, Geo. Chapman, Geo. Keysor, H. W. Stevens, J. D. Shull and J. W. Wightman.

The Standard Oil process will be used nearly everybody with a few exceptions, on the line has signed. The council has voted to appropriate $100 for the intersections of the streets. This road lies between the Stacy farm and the J. D. Shull corner, and will certainly be a great improvement and it is hoped it will spread to other streets.

AUTOMOBILES

Detroit to Toledo, on Niagara Falls

The Automobiles due from Detroit on Thursday afternoon, reached here about 2 o'clock under escort of a number of the Tecumseh cars. They massed on the corner by the State Savings Bank, and J. H. Smith as President of the village, met each auto and presented them with flowers, pennants and views of the town. Lemonade was also served. They left at 2:30 for Toledo, under escort of the Tecumseh Autoists.

AN AMAZING SUCCESS

There never was a time in the history of the world when good stories and articles could command such prices as they do today. It is an extremely expensive thing to publish a high-class magazine nowadays, filled with the best work of the most famous authors and artists. Yet it is exactly such a magazine that THE CHICAGO RECORD HERALD furnishes as an integral part of its Sunday issue.

The Sunday Magazine of THE RECORD HERALD, compares favorably with the best weeklies and monthlies, and has some merits, peculiar to itself. Its outward form and its cover pictures in colors are beautiful. The most famous writers and illustrators contribute to it. Some of the choicest novels of the year are published serially in its columns before they see the light in book form. Its editor has secured exclusive control of the writings of the best new humorist who has risen to fame in the last decade. To furnish such a magazine with every copy of a big Sunday newspaper is an amazing venture, yet several years of complete success have proved the wisdom of the idea. Nothing else of the kind can touch the Sunday Magazine of THE RECORD HERALD in popular interest and literary excellence.

JUNE WEDDING

AT THE HOME OF THE BRIDE MISS BERNICE REID AND JAMES J. BROCK WERE UNITED IN MARRIAGE JUNE 20 1911

About 50 Guests Present, Flowers And Gifts in Abundance

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Reid was transformed into a bower of beauty Tuesday, June 20, 1911 for the marriage of their daughter Bernice, to James J. Brock of Anderson, Ind.

The room in which the marriage ceremony took place was in green and white. All about the room in brown tile were tall stately boquets of Easter lilies also on the mantle and tables. A very beautiful bower was erected, using as a background asparagus inlaid with a perfect mass of daisies, and banked on each side were the Easter lilies, woodbine was draped around the room connecting the bower with the boquets, the whole ensemble being one of great delicacy and artistic effect.

The music room was in red, crimson ramblers lending themselves very handsomely to this decoration.

The bridal table was all in white spiria and daisies, a large basket filled with these flowers forming the centerpiece with other white flowers strewn about the table.

Promptly at 2:30 to the strain of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Edith Roper, of Clinton, the bridal party entered the room and were met by the Rev. W. B. Hartzog, where in the bower prepared for them the ceremony took place.

The bride looked charming in a dress of white embroidered batiste trimmed in baby irish and valenciennes lace. She carried a boquet of white rose buds.

After congratulations from the host of guests, they proceeded to the dining room where an elegant three course luncheon was served.

A large array of gifts were displayed, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held. On the table filled with cut glass, was a beautiful water set from the "Tecumseh club." An abundance of fine linen for their new home, a table of silver and many fine pieces of china, chairs, rugs and bedding were a few among the many presents displayed.

Mr. Brock has just completed a beautiful bungalow, and has it already furnished for his bride.

He owns and operates a large tailoring establishment in Anderson, Ind.

Miss Reid is a beautiful girl and is a great favorite among her friends. As a book keeper, she has held several responsible positions and has ably filled them.

About fifty guests were present from Chicago, Detroit, Adrian and Battle Creek.

The brides mother was dressed in white and received the many guests with a hearty greeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock left for their home Wednesday evening. Her going away gown was a blue silk with hat to match. They were started on their journey with the best wishes of all their friends.

MRS. ANGELINO NAPOLITANO

In behalf of Mrs. Angelino Napolitano sentenced to death by hanging, for the murder of her husband the following letter has been sent to His Excellency Earl Grey. Her crime was provoked by a vicious unprincipled man who would force her to sacrifice her virtue that he might profit by its price.

Tecumseh, Mich.,
June 21, 1911.

To His Excellency, Earl Grey,
Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

By the request of 140 of our best women whose signatures I enclose I am sending you their respectful petition that you interfere in that poor woman's behalf at Sault St. Marie. Her provocation was great. Her moral nature had suffered under a great shock. She rebelled against the attempt of her vicious and worthless husband to live in idleness on the price of her virtue. Her condemnation even to a term of imprisonment is to great a punishment for his worthless life. Her pardon would be a rebuke to those who make a traffic in female virtue. They are a menace to our homes and our best interests and deserve rebuke, condemnation and destruction.

Most Respectfully,
Geo. N. Kennedy.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agent for the United States.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

ATTACKS ROOSEVELT.

Colonel Termed "Virtuous Vaulter" In Los Angeles Times Editorial.

Los Angeles (Special).—"Colonel Roosevelt, virtuous vaulter," is the caption of a two-column editorial in the Los Angeles Times, in which Colonel Roosevelt's attack on General Gray Otis in the last number of the Outlook is answered. After quoting a recent signed statement by Roosevelt, "If the Times building was dynamited then those who did the work should be punished," the Times asserts there is no disagreement among experts as to what caused the explosion which wrecked its building and that therefore Roosevelt used the word "if" intending to throw doubt on something not doubtful, and because of malice toward General Otis.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 400 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Mrs. Maynard Hatch of Niles, has been a guest of friends here the past week.

Mr. McGlennon is putting up a building for the pickle vats near the railroad.

A Woman's Weigh.

One who has a run in the northern part of the city found a woman's pocketbook yesterday. It contained a couple of two-dollar bills and a card containing a woman's weight—120 pounds. The card was like one of those usually given by the weight-takers who charge a penny a weight.

At the end of the trip the conductor was about to turn the pocketbook in the office when a woman came up and sa'd she lost a pocketbook.

"Describe it," the conductor said. The woman did so accurately.

"It had a couple of two-dollar bills in it," she said, "and a card containing my weight." She told the weight.

"I guess it's yours," said the conductor, and he turned it over to her.

After looking in it to see that everything was all right, she said:

"You deserve something for being honest, so I will make you a present of the card containing my weight."

She handed it to the conductor and he was so astonished that he took it and even forgot to thank her.

After he fully recovered he turned it over in his hand and said: "What good is it to me? I'll keep it as a souvenir, anyhow, for being honest."—Philadelphia Times.

First Tramp—Wot would youse rather be dan anything?

Hoodoo Chicken.

Mrs. Cal Remy, a thrifty housewife of this place, recently had an experience witth some poultry which was unsual. to say the least. One of her hens hatched a brood of chickens, all of which were white but one.

The hen attempted to kill the one black chicken and was prevented from doing so only by Mrs. Remy transfering the black chick to another hen. This hen, however, also had a brood of white chicks, and she objected to the black chick to the extent that she tried to kill it.

Finally Mrs. Remy took the despised black chick, more dead than alive, and placed it in a cage with a canary bird.

Here the chick was not molested, but was permitted to peep to its heart's content. The peeping, however, finally got on the nerves of the canary, and he has ceased to sing and makes no noise save that of peeping in imitation of his cage mate.—Indianapolis News

Discouraged

The expression occurs so many times in letters from sick women, "I was completely discouraged." And there is always good reason for the discouragement. Years of pain and suffering. Doctor after doctor tried in vain. Medicines doing no lasting good. It is no wonder that the woman feels discouraged.

Thousands of these weak and sick women have found health and courage regained as the result of the use of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Refuse substitutes offered by unscrupulous druggists for this reliable remedy.

Sick women are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Pres't, Buffalo, N. Y.

ALWAYS BE FRIENDLY TO THOSE BENEATH YOU

No One is Unimportant Enough to Be Ignored By Business Girl.

"NEVER consider any one too unimportant to be friendly with," a dear old lady once said to me, "and don't throw any one aside harshly, for you don't know when you'll need them in the years to come. Just put them on a shelf and not in the dust heap."

Quaint advice, and homely, but of the best.

Too often in the mad rush for money and position a girl needlessly hurts the feelings of others who at the time seem of no use in her scheme of things.

"Well, what if I did hurt her feelings by not speaking to her on the street car," you will say. "That insignificant little thing will never help me nor hurt me, either."

Probably she won't hurt nor help you at the present moment, but who can tell in a year from now that you won't be glad to ask a favor from her, and then if she remembers the episode of the street car and is of the unforgiving kind, it will be in her power to make you mighty uncomfortable.

Always take the trouble to be kind and friendly, no matter how much beneath you in station the person may be.

Don't you remember the tale of the boy who rescued the carp from death? It's an old, old fairy tale, but one that teaches a fine lesson.

The son of a well-to-do farmer went forth in the world to seek his fortune, and after wandering about in a great forest he came at last to the bank of a stream.

As he wandered along under the trees he thought he heard a faint voice calling for help. Looking closer he found a fish on the bank gasping for breath. "Put me back into my home," whispered the fish. "Put me back, or I shall die;" and the boy tenderly took the carp in his hands and placed him in the water.

He then wandered on and on, and at last came to a great kingdom where he heard that the princess was in great distress, since she had lost a magic ring which her fairy godmother had given her. The man who could find the ring was to be rewarded with her hand in marriage.

Many kings and princes from distant lands had come to join in the search for the ring, but never a one of them had success.

"I will hunt for the ring," said the boy, and he went to the palace to beg leave to see the princess.

When it became known that there was a new arrival, a mere slip of a youth of twenty or thereabouts, a great laugh went around among the people in the court.

But the lad was undaunted by their jeers and laughter, and sat himself down by the stream which ran through the palace gardens.

In a few moments he heard some one gently calling him, and, looking into the water, he saw his friend the carp.

"You are hunting for the ring," said the fish, "and I have brought it to you. One day when the princess was sitting on the bank the ring fell from her finger without her noticing it, and I am giving it to you for the good turn you did for me."

The youth took the ring to the palace and the princess fell in love with him, for he was very handsome, and they were married and lived happily ever afterward, as they always do in fairy tales.

This is only a fairy tale, of course, but it illustrates beautifully the advice of the dear old lady, "Never consider any one too unimportant to be friendly with."

Congressman Curbed.

A new member of congress from one of the rural districts of Michigan was ambitious to distinguish himself by his oratory and accordingly watched for a favorable opportunity. At length an occasion presented itself. A motion was made in the house for enforcing the execution of some statute, whereupon the orator in embryo rose solemnly up, and after giving three loud hems, spoke as follows: "Mr. Speaker, have we laws or have we no laws? If we have no laws, and they are not observed, to what end are those laws made?"

So saying he sat down, his chest heaving high with conscious consequence. Instantly Cox, the clown of the house, with a twinkle in his eye, rose and delivered his thoughts in these words: "Mr. Speaker, did the honorable gentleman who spoke last speak to the purpose or not speak to the purpose? If he did not speak to the purpose, to what purpose did he speak?"

CATS' ADVENTURES.

The pet cat belonging to the Kingsland firemen has been found and restored to its owners. The animal had been in the habit of going out to fires on the escape and was lost at Stoke Newington a fortnight ago. Yesterday it was seen at Highburg, and being recognized by its collar studded with firemen's buttons, was taken to the nearest fire station and thence sent on to Kingsland.

They have a similarly intelligent cat at the general post office, Paris. He gets into the mail cart and accompanies the bags to the station and takes frequent long journeys in the mail van. Recently, however, he was sealed up in a mail bag and got as far as Marseilles.—London Globe.

President Dampens Dems. Spirits.

Washington (Special).—By a vote of 221 to 100, the house of representatives passed the Democratic wool revision bill. The announcement of the result was greeted with great applause by the Democrats. Democratic joy, however, was quickly changed to chagrin as Speaker Clark announced that a message had been received from the president. In the message the president said that the tariff board had not completed its report on the wool schedule, and that for this reason he found it impracticable to comply with the resolution recently passed by the house calling for the data on wool collected by the board.

RAIL MERGER IS DECLARED LEGAL

Opinion Handed Down by United States Circuit Court.

AFFECTS PACIFIC RAILWAYS

Federal Judges at St. Louis Uphold Control of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific Railway Company.

St. Louis, Mo., June 26.—The merger of the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific railroads is legal, according to an opinion handed down by the United States circuit court of the Eighth district.

Judge Hook filed a dissenting opinion, in which he expressed the belief that the government's petition was well founded and should have been granted.

The majority opinion of the court was written by Judge Elmer B. Adams. The case will be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

The government's suit in equity against the Southern Pacific Railway company and the Union Pacific Railway company to enjoin the continued control of the former by the latter was filed at Salt Lake City, Utah, on Feb. 2, 1908. The bill charged conspiracy and the formation of a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, passed by congress to protect trade and commerce against unlawful monopolies.

The defendants named in the case were the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, the Southern Pacific, the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake company, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern Railway, the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, Edward H. Harriman, Jacob H. Schiff, Otto H. Kahn, James Stillman, Henry H. Rogers, Henry C. Frick and William A. Clark.

Since the suit was begun Mr. Harriman and Mr. Rogers have died, and Robert S. Lovett, successor to Mr. Harriman in the railway system, was by stipulation, made a defendant. Attorney General Bonaparte and Assistant Attorney General Purdy retired from office while the suit was pending. Hearings were held in many cities of the country.

ARMY TRANSPORT LOOTED

Wireless Tells of Crime on Atlantic—Five of Crew Arrested.

New York, June 26.—A wireless message received from the army transport Kilpatrick, on the way from Galveston to New York, gave the information that the vessel had been looted by members of the crew. Five stewards were put under arrest.

Upon this information Assistant United States District Attorney Gruber obtained warrants for the arrest of the suspects, and on the arrival of the Kilpatrick the stewards were taken into custody.

DICTAGRAPH EVIDENCE IS IN Defense in Diegel Case Makes No Contest Over Transcript.

Columbus, O., June 26. — The fight expected in the trial of Rodney J. Diegel, sergeant-at-arms of the state senate, accused of abetting bribery, when the state introduced a transcript of the "dictagraph" evidence did not materialize, and there was little to enliven the criminal court room of Judge E. B. Kinkead.

The transcript of the notes of conversations heard by a court stenographer in a hotel room between detectives and members of the legislature was admitted without objection by the defense, after certain names were stricken out and the words "a voice substituted The defense also admitted without contest that a note introduced as evidence was written by Senator L. R. Andrews.

STRIKE DARKENS PORTLAND

Discharge of Electric Light Employe Causes Flurry of Trouble.

Portland, Ind., June 26.—When Superintendent B. W. Bissell, of the city electric light plant, discharged William Headington, a lineman, for alleged insubordination in refusing to connect up a meter, and the city council backed the superintendent in his action, seven other employes of the department left their posts.

Before doing so they shut down the power plant and for more than a half hour the city was in darkness.

West Hammond Industry Suffers.

Hammond, Ind., June 26.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the cattle feed factory of Chapin & Co. at West Hammon, with a loss of $75,000. Calls for help were sent to the Chicago and the Hammond fire departments and both responded. The building was owned by the H. H. Hammond Packing company.

FUNK TESTIFIES IN LORIMER CASE

Unfolding of Main Story Is Now Beginning.

HINES CALLED TO FOLLOW

Then Edward Tilden, Governor Deneen of Illinois, Roger Sullivan and Others Less Important Will be Heard.

Washington, June 26.—Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, took the witness stand before the senate committee which is investigating the charges of corruption in the election of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois.

Mr. Funk's testimony is the first direct evidence obtained by the committee as to the alleged request for a contribution of $10,000 from the Harvester company, which Mr. Funk charges was made by Edward Hines of the Edward Hines Lumber company. The testimony taken by the committee last week was preliminary and collateral to the main line of the investigation.

With Mr. Funk's testimony, however, the committee begins to unfold the main story of the allegations of bribery and corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer.

Mr. Funk will be followed by Edward Hines, who is charged with having requested the $10,000 from Mr. Funk. Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing company, who, Funk says, was mentioned by Hines as the receiver of the alleged $100,000 corruption fund, will also be heard this week. When these three witnesses have been heard, the main story of the inquiry will be revealed to the members of the committee and subsequent witnesses will be called to amplify and corroborate Funk's story. It is probable that Governor Deneen of Illinois and several other less important witnesses will testify this week.

A subpoena has been issued for Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, whose name was mentioned by Herman H. Kohlsaat, editor and publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald. Mr. Sullivan has never appeared before either the senate committee on privileges and elections, or the Helm committee of the Illinois legislature which investigated the Lorimer election last winter. While the members of the committee do not know whether or not Mr. Sullivan has any valuable information on the subject, Chairman Dillingham thought it advisable to summon him on account of his prominent position in Illinois Democratic circles.

A sufficient number of witnesses have been subpoenaed to keep the committee in session here for more than two weeks. Chairman Dillingham wishes to hear as many witnesses as possible in Washington, so that the committee will not have to be away from Washington for any great length of time while the senate is in session. It was the original plan to begin hearings in Chicago on July 5 next. It is not likely, however, that the witnesses who have been summoned here will be able to complete their testimony before the end of next week. Later the committee intends to convene in Springfield, Ill., to take testimony of members of the legislature which elected Lorimer.

BIGGEST NAVAL SHOW EVER SEEN

U. S. DELAWARE LARGEST SHIP

London, June 26.—The greatest naval display of modern times, with the United States battleship Delaware steaming as the largest and most powerful among all the dreadnoughts on view, took place in honor of King George and Queen Mary at Spithead.

From the deck of the royal yacht the king and queen reviewed the sea power of the British empire in the passing warships, and also representative vessels of the world's navies. In yachts and steamers round-about them and on shore hundreds of thousands of sightseers "looked on the wondrous sight."

King George, known as the "sailor," wore his naval uniform and appeared every inch the admiral. Queen Mary, who also enjoys the sea, bade defiance to the winds that raced across decks and made Union Jacks and Stars and Stripes, with multicolored streamers, dance bravely at mastheads.

To the delight of the distant onlookers, adding noise to the color spectacle, cannon aboard warships boomed and roared royal salutes as the vessels steamed proudly past the king's reviewing yacht. Then there were salutes for the British navy's leaders and for the admirals sent to participate by the United States and other countries.

Trains from London to Spithead were jammed all night and early in the day for the naval pageant, which was only one of the fetes following the crowning of King George.

The King and Queen remained on the royal yacht at night and all ships were illuminated with white and colored lights in honor of the occasion.

BEER INQUIRY IS NEXT

Hearing on Industry Will Be Held in Washington.

Formidable List of Questions Prepared for Witnesses by Dr. Wiley, Government Chemist.

Washington, June 26.—The beer industry of the United States is to undergo a searching inquiry at the hands of the board of food and drug inspection. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture and chairman of the board, has given notice of a general hearing on beer in Washington July 31.

For those who attend the hearing Dr. Wiley has prepared a formidable list of questions. These cover nearly every point of the manufacture of beer, ale, porter and stout.

One of the points on which the board desires light is the meaning of the term "lager" and "bock" as applied to beer. If any domestic brews are masquerading under the names of foreign products the board may find it out. Questions along that line are scheduled.

MAY VETO RECIPROCITY

Taft Will Have No Amendment Added to the Measure.

Washington, June 26.—It became known at the capitol that President Taft, talking over the long-distance telephone from Providence, repeated to several senators his determination to veto the Canadian reciprocity bill in case any amendment is added to the measure.

News dispatches from Providence that the president undoubtedly would veto any tariff bills passed at this session are accepted by senators as accurately reflecting the president's attitude.

TAXES AS PAID BY VARIOUS COUNTIES

Most of Michigans best counties send nearly the entire amount of state taxes assessed against them into the State treasury, according to a statement given out by Auditor Gen'l Fuller.

Of the wealthest counties Allegan has paid 99 per cent for the last three years. Cass and Lenawee did equally well, 93 per cent being the lowest, Roscommon Co. is credited with 66 and 65 per cent for 1908-'09. Not a bad showing for Michigan.

A STRANGE CIRCUMSTANCE

Well Dressed Man, of Good Appearance With Plenty of Money but Mind not Quite Right.

While out in his auto Saturday Mr. Geo. Hines overtook a man this side of Holloway, who seemed quite exhausted and he invited him to a seat in the auto. He insisted on paying for his ride, and Mr. Hines took his money returning it later. He brought him to Tecumseh and left him at the Barrett Hotel. He seemed utterly dazzed and did not talk but laughed, all the time. He had quite a sum of money on his person and in one of his lucid intervals asked that a receipt be given him for it. Dept. Sheriff Teachout took him over to Adrian and at last accounts he was not able to identify himself. He gave his name as H. F. Williams, he had a ticket for Chicago. The officers believe he was on his way west to join his family and boarded the wrong train.

He also had a ticket from Freemont, Ohio. Every question is answered with a queer laugh. It may be he was overcome by the heat and a few days he may rally.

ASCENSION LILLIES

I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs meet for Memorial Services

The Ascension Lilly that seems such an appropriate flower for Memorial day, was in its glory for the Decoration services held Sunday afternoon, by the I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs lodges.

In spite of the rain there was a fine attendance at the hall on Sunday afternoon, where the services were held. A short program was given, after which the Memorial Ritualistic services were given by the officers of the day, who were C. E. Williamson, Noble Grand, Mrs. Geo. Zimmerman, Vice Grand, Friend McNiel, Chaplain. Dept. Grand Master Henry McClure read the proclamation and Sec. Floyd Heesen read the names of the departed brothers and sisters.

A committee of 12 were appointed to decorate the graves, of which there were 150. There was a perfect wealth of flowers, the crimson rambler blending beautifully with the lillies in the boquets. As the carriages started out for the cemetery, the sun came out in all its glory, as if showing that natnre was in accord with the occasion.

BIRTHDAY GATHERING

About 40 of the members and friends of the class taught by Mrs. Leman Barnes in the M. E. Sunday School met at the home of Mrs. Christian Coller on Saturday afternoon, the occasion being the birthday of Mrs. Barnes. This class was formerly taught by Mrs. Geo. Griswold, whose birthday also occurred on the same date, and in whose honor these gatherings were inaugerated. At her death Mrs. Barnes took the class, and it is with great pleasure to all that the meetings will continue. An hour spent in social chat, was followed by some feeling remarks by Mrs. Barnes, singing by Mrs. Elizabeth Swick of Marshall, a lady eighty years of age, and the reading of a poem written by Lucy J. Train.

A picnic supper was next in order, which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Barnes has been feeble so long, that it was with great delight that her friends met her at this time, and in parting the whole class joined in wishing better health, for her and the hope of meeting another year. She received a number of gifts, the class presenting a birthday book.

"I don't care anything about it myself, for I'm no judge of such things," said Mr. Gaswell, "but my wife wants me to buy a rare old violin and she says they come high. Got any?"

"We certainly have," responded the dealer. "Here's one here in this showcase, genuine Stradivarius, that you can buy for $3,000."

"She said she thought they came higher than that. Haven't you some that are a little—er—starryvariousons than this one?"

"I hear," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "tha Dr. Cutler has recently turned to osteopathy."

"You don't say," replied her hostes after she had tossed a $5 gold piece to the hurdy-gurdy man outside and told him to move on. "I always expected something of that kind to happen to him. Didn't you ever notice that he seemed to have such a stony stare?"

A small boy, writing a composition on Quakers, wound up by saying that the "Quakers never quarrel, never get into a fight, never claw each other, and never jaw back." He added: "Pa's a Quaker, but I really don't think Ha can be."

FIRE

The farm house of William Willneau on the Adrian road about two miles out of town was burned to the ground Friday afternoon Mr and Mrs. Willneau were away from home at the time, preparation for supper. were in progress when the fire was discovered.

A few things were saved from the rooms down stairs but everything in the rooms above was lost. The house had lately been repaired and improved, and the loss is a heavy one, the family are left with just the wearing apparel they had on. Mrs. Emerson, a neighbor was soliciting help for them Saturday, of such articles of clothing as would help them until they know what they can do themselves.

There are a number of small children in the family, besides several older ones.

So far the origin of the fire is not known, but it is thought that sparks from the chimney may have set fire to the wood shed where it was discovered.

LENAWEE COUNTY FAIR

The Lenawee Co. Agricultural Society held its first fair at Adrian Tuesday and Wednesday October 9-10 1849 on the commons in the rear of the Court House on the southwest corner of Clayton and Front St. facing Clinton.

The weather was wet and cold but Wednesday there were 4,000 people on the grounds. Long sheds were used for the display of garden and dairy. Domestic articles were shown in the Court House, The principle stock was several yoke of oxen, and ploughs were the most conspicious farm tool.

Zeno Kelley also of Tecumseh exhibited a sewing machine which was quite a curiosity. It was of the chain stitch variety where the seam would ravel so easily if you wished or not it would just the same.

The principle attraction was the ploughing match. Several speeches were made Gen. Cass being among the speakers. All things considered, the Fair was a great success and has been held every year since.

FUEL, FOOD AND FLOWERS

Well, friends, readers of the Herald, how have you come through the winter? It is oranges to raisins that not one of you spent the winter with as little expense as we did and that you were no more comfortable with your extra expense than we were.

To keep our four rooms, and baths comfortable during our coldest and wettest weather we had only a small wood burning stove with which to heat all the lower part of the house and the fuel used did not cost to exceed $8. Gas for cooking averaged about 85c per mo. electric lights, 50c per mo. Bear in mind I am not claiming that everybody got through with so little expense for fuel and lights for I am only showing what a house of this size can live comfortable on as respets fuel and lights.

On an average our provisions cost us but little if any more than in Michigan and in fact I am quite positive they cost us less. One reason for this is that there are so many places where we can buy food of all kinds including pastry so cheap that it does not pay to do the cooking at home, this too cuts down the gas bill I will give a few illustrations. There are a dozen places here where we can go and buy enough cooked food and pastry, all hot, for from 25c to 35c for a meal for the two of us and often there is something left over. We seldom pay over 30c.

Yesterday we had a man and his wife to supper with us. We had two kinds of baker's bread two kinds of strawberries, succotash, cold pressed tongue, butter and tea, at an outlay of 60c and we had enough left over of each of the articles for our dinner next day. Two blocks from us is a bakery where we can get excellent baking powder biscuits right out of the oven for 10c per dozen.

We can get a meat pie for 15c, or a chicken pie for 25c large enough for our dinners with some left over. For a nickle we get enough soup good and hot, for us two for two meals. We can get an excellent meal at many restaurants for 25c.

FISH AND FISHING,

Many people especially tourists are very fond of saltwater fish of which we have many kinds and they put in an appearance at different times so we have a great variety of them and they take the place of meat especially at the present high price of the former.

Last week the pompanos which some resemble our Eastern "shiners" only larger were "in" and scores of fishermen had great sport catching them. They would be down over the pier before five in the morning. A friend told us that he caught 45 in a couple of hours while one man took in 135. Pompanos weigh about a pound each and are very fine eating. They are worth in this city 25c per pound and in Los Angeles 50c.

FLOWERS

We wish the Herald readers could come and take a look at the front of our house which is nearly covered to the peak with two climbing rose bushes red and white On these two bushes there are hundreds, yes thousands of roses in full bloom and buds. The white rose is a Lamarque. At the end of one stem no larger than lead pencil I counted this morning, May 8, five full bloom roses and a bud. Each perfect rose measured three inches across it. There are many clusters of two, three and four while the single ones are almost innumerable. The red rose is the Reine Marie Henriette. It grows in clusters as the white one does but the rose is not as large. I have trained them so that they are mingling over and in the chamber forming a rose bower over the roof of the porch.

As the windows extend nearly to the floor and cases hinged, we can step out on to the roof of the porch and into the little rose bower, from which we can get a glimpse of the ocean at the foot of our street, four blocks away. On the north side of our house is a bank of ivory geranium. On the south sides of our two little cottages are banks of different colossal geranium extending to the roof, in some places and a bloom with flowers over our back porch, and the front porch of our little cottage grow honey suckle and maderia vines, and in different places on our grounds which are only 25 by 150 feet are several patches of sweet elysium, and one bed of California poppies. We have also a Duchess der Brabount, a La Franc and another beautiful dark red rose, very fragrant of which we do not know the name. For trees we have three young bearing peach trees, one young fig tree bore 3 figs last year and a castor bean tree that is only five years old, and has spread at least 17 feet.

AN EARTH QUAKE

About 5:40 while we were yet in bed on Wednesday morning the 10th instant, we heard a loud rumbling noise and our doors and windows rattled but there was none of the trembling, shaking sensation which is generally felt at these disturbances. People up stairs in their houses felt it more perceptibly than those of us on the lower floor. The jarring was no worse than we have felt from heavy thunder. We prefer such quakes to electrical storms We have not heard of any damage from it anywhere in the state.

Plymouth Binder Twine

SAVES TIME AND GRAIN

Twine is a small item, but good twine saves a lot of expense in harvest time. Every time your machine is stopped the delay costs you money. Time in harvest season is always valuable, and sometimes extremely precious on account of the condition of weather or grain. Be sure you use the best twine,—PLYMOUTH TWINE. Then you will be safe from the annoyances, delays, expenses, which ordinary twine causes. Plymouth Twine works perfectly in every machine. More of it is made and used every year than any other kind, because it is known to be the best and has been for years. Binds more sheaves with less expense, no knots, no breaks, and is guaranteed full length and extra strength. Get Plymouth Twine from the local dealer. Look for the wheat-sheaf tag.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of it in Tecumseh But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.

Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Read the proof from a Tecumseh citizen.

George D. Chapin, N. Ottawa St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store and they lived up to the claims made for them. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know they are a reliable kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agent for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face and form, and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at C. A. Wright & Sons.

The heart has eyes the brain knows nothing of.

A HOPEFUL MESSAGE TO SCALP SUFFERS AND MEN WHO'S HAIR IS THINNING

Dandruff now—bald latter. The same is true of scalp diseases. In fact baldness is a scalp disease. The trouble with the greasy salves and lotions, the so-called dandruff and scalps cures you have tried so far is that they don't do anything but temporarily relieve the itching and cake the dandruff so it dosen't fall until its dried out again. Nothing can cure—really cure such troubles but a real scalp medicine that will kill the germs causing dandruff and scalp disease.

Learning from leading fellows druggists throughout America that they had found a whirlwind cure for dandruff, eczema and all diseases of the skin and scalp the C. A. Wright & Son's Drug store on proving to the laboratories compounding the treatment that is the most prominent drug store in this city secured the agency for the remedy. This remedy is ZEMO the clean, liquid preparation that kills the germs of disease and ZEMO SOAP to wash the scalp or skin clear and clean of the dandruff or scale and by its antiseptic qualities soothe and heal.

Sold and guaranted by druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son.

Obeying Orders.

There joined the police force of London a young Scotchman, but recently arrived from his native land. Being detailed one day to block the traffic on a certain thoroughfare, where members of royalty were expected to pass, he was accosted by a lady who thrust her head from the carriage window to remonstrate with him over the delay. "I canna' let you pass, ma'am," answered the man of the baton. "But, sir, you do not know who I am. I am the wife of a cabinet minister. "It dinna make no difference, ma'am," he answered, "I could no let you pass if you were the wife of a Presbyterian minister!"

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that thousands of other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it in the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of 137 W. Harrison street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample, and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy, as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective. It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet contains tonic properties. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. I xplain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

AIM TO REDUCE MINE FATALITIES

National First Aid to Injured Field Meet.

SEPTEMBER 16 IN PITTSBURG

President Taft, Secretary Fisher and Director of Bureau of Mines Holmes Will Address Expected Crowds.

Washington, June 26.—In line of the efforts to reduce the number of deaths in the coal mines of the United States the bureau of mines will hold a national first aid to the injured field meet on Saturday, Sept. 16, at Arsenal Park, Pittsburg.

President Taft, Secretary of the Interior Fisher and Dr. Joseph Holmes, director of the bureau of mines, will attend and speak to the miners. The bureau of mines will have the co-operation of the Pittsburg Coal operators' association and the American Red Cross. It is expected that between 20,000 and 30,000 miners will attend, and that many of the important coal companies will send their trained first aid and rescue corps to take part in the exhibition. Already a number of teams have entered and are in training for the event, which promises to be the most important gathering of miners ever assembled. Arsenal Park is the site of the testing station of the bureau of mines and the experts of the bureau are busy arranging for a unique program.

Teams from the coal mines will give exhibitions of their skill in bringing injured miners from the mines and binding the wounds and fractures.

In addition to the first aid teams the miners will witness gas and coal dust explosions in minature, which will be staged in the great explosive gallery of the bureau of mines. In Arsenal Park there will also be a temporary gallery which will resemble a coal mine. This will be placed at the bottom of a natural amphitheater, giving a clear view to thousands of persons. There will be a gas explosion in this play mine, miners will be "entombed" and one of the government rescue corps will enter and save the men. One side of the minature mine will be open its entire length in order that the onlookers may see anything that happens in an underground horror except loss of life.

DIE IN SUICIDE COMPACT

Young Women, About to be Separated, Take Carbolic Acid.

Ridgway, Ill., June 26.—As the outcome of a suicide pact, Jessie Cobbman and Lucy Davidson, seventeen and eighteen years old, respectively, are dead. The girls swallowed carbolic acid, when constables went to the home of Davidson to induce Jessie Cobbman to return to her parents, from whom she has been estranged. The girls had anticipated that the officers would be asked to take Jessie home, and agreed to die if they appeared. They placed carbolic acid in two glasses, which were hidden in their room.

When two constables appeared at the home Jessie Cobbman asked time in which to dress before accompanying the officers. She went to the bedroom and swallowed acid. She reentered the parlor, told the officers of her act and fell to the floor. An instant later Lucy Davidson also swallowed poison. Both girls died before medical aid arrived.

CELLMATE OF WALSH FREED

G. A. Conzmann, Former Banker at Terre Haute, Released on Parole.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 26.—G. A. Conzman, cellmate of John R. Walsh, former Chicago banker, was released from the federal prison on parole. Conzman, who was a banker at Terre Haute, Ind., began serving an eight year sentence Jan. 30, 1906.

"I hated to bid Walsh good-by," said Conzman, after his release. "He's a fine man, but he is a wreck physically. Worry has caused this decline in health. He has nerve, and that is what holds him up." Conzman left for Terre Haute to see his wife. He intends to take a month's rest before going to work, he says.

SENATE O. K.'S STATEHOOD

Territories Committee Reports Favorably on House Resolution.

Washington, June 26.—The senate committee on territories voted, 6 to 2, to report favorably the house resolution admitting New Mexico and Arizona to statehood, with the provision that the Arizona constitution containing the judiciary recall shall be submitted to the people.

Slight amendments to the house resolution were made.

Kills Herself Under Delusion.

Vincennes, Ind., June 26.—Mrs. John Thorn, aged fifty-three, wife of a Harrison township, farmer, hanged herself with a chain to an apple tree while under the delusion that she would be murdered or burned. Before committing suicide she covered the kitchen floor with kerosene and attempted to set the house on fire.

Potatoes as Food

Persons who cannot take bread or any other articles made from flour can frequently eat potatoes baked in their skins without any ill consequences.

The housewife with limited oven space will welcome the double roast pans, in which she can roast two articles of diet on the same shelf of the oven. This is simply a double decker pan, of agate, the top section being elevated an inch above the lower by means of perforated sides.

Cooke Acquitted.

Cincinnati, O. (Special).—Mrs. Jeannette Stewart Ford is in a hospital here, attempting to recover from the ordeal of her cross-examination in the trial of Edgar S. Cooke, accused of embezzling $22,000 from the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railway.

Cooke was acquitted.

Discouraged

The expression occurs so many times in letters from sick women, "I was completely discouraged." And there is always good reason for the discouragement. Years of pain and suffering. Doctor after doctor tried in vain. Medicines doing no lasting good. It is no wonder that the woman feels discouraged.

Thousands of these weak and sick women have found health and courage regained as the result of the use of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Refuse substitutes offered by unscrupulous druggists for this reliable remedy.

Sick women are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Pres't, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

MAKING HOTBEDS TO START FLOWERS IN

There are very few women who are already planning for their small suburban gardens who have hotbeds in which to start seeds during these early spring days; yet there are many plants which require starting under glass, and these may be planted in the house now if a sunny window is convenient.

Pansies, sweet william, ageratum or floss flower, African daisies and the early asters, to say nothing of tomato plants, radishes and lettuce, should all be started in the house the latter part of this month.

Get from the grocer some empty boxes about a foot deep, and fill them with dirt half way up after boring one or two holes in the bottom to drain off the water.

Buy a sheet of glass from the glazier the size of your box and lay this over the top, and then put it in a sunly window. This is an excellent hot bed for starting anything.

If you have two or three windows where the morning and noon sun comes in put a box in each window and plant your seeds in them, taking the glass off when the plants reach the top of the box, and finally planting them out of doors when they are good and hardy and the last danger of frost is over.

Not only will the plants flower earlier if started this way but the percentage of plants which come up from the seeds will be much larger.

Large tin baking pans may be purchased at the 5 and 10 cent stores to go under the boxes to prevent the water from running onto the floor of the room, and the boxes should be kept fairly well watered, so that moisture will generate on the glass after the sun has been shining on it for a little while.

One clever housewife who had a sunny window in the kitchen made such a hotbed for it and raised radishes, parsley and young lettuce, to say nothing of some of the smaller herbs for the cook, who took the greatest pride and delight in her little kitchen garden.

Such a box, if started now, will provide you with the dainty greens to decorate and season the spring food and shad which will soon be in the market.

NEW SUIT FOR THE GIRL OF ATHLETIC TASTES

One of the novelties which a fashionable tailor has made for his women customers who are inclined to athletics is the coat with the expanding plait on either side and running from the shoulders to the belt.

This plait allows free use of the arms without danger of splitting any seams.

The skirt to be worn with this coat is fitted with adjustable straps and by means of these and conveniently placed buttons can be lengthened to the ankle or [illegible] discretion for such purpose as mountaineering.

Scotch Eggs

Ingredients: Six eggs, six tablespoonfuls of forcemeat, hot lard, half pint of good brown gravy. Boil the eggs for ten minutes; strip them from the shells and cover with forcemeat. Fry the eggs a nice brown in boiling lard, drain them before the fire, eliminating greasy moisture, dish up, and pour round them a quarter to half a pint of good brown gravy. To enhance the appearance of the eggs, they may be rolled in beaten egg and sprinkled with bread crumbs; but this is scarcely necessary if they are carefully fried. The flavor of ham or anchovy must predonderate in the forcemeat, as it should be very relishing.

Don't Put Them Together.

No matter how busy the housewife may be, if she has a small plot of ground in which to plant flower seeds the first breath of spring sees her snatching a few minutes from housework to prepare the ground for her plants.

If she plants the seeds with an eye to the effect of the garden when the plants flower, she will first map out the ground, using paper and pencil and plenty of thought.

Each gardener has a different idea of what she would do with the same plot of ground, but if the housewife will draw the shape of her particular plot and then proceed to approximate the space which she thinks she can allow for each variety, taking into consideration the time each will bloom, the height of each and the color, the results from her planting will be altogether satisfactory.

For instance, no gardener would plant a bed of sweet alyssum next to a plot of cosmos, neither would she plant early nasturtiums and golden glows side by side.

Sufficient space should be left between the different kinds of flowers to admit of walking easily, and if the beds are too wide the gardener will find some difficulty in watching her plants.

So Many Trout They Trip Fishermen

Salmon trout fishing in the Sandy River is the leading sport just now. The fish have been running in great schools in such numbers that fishermen wading in the riffles were thrown off their feet.

At the falls, near the mouth of Bull Run River, the fish were so thick that they were pulled out by dozens. George Moulton and Oscar Carlson on Sunday brought home a wagon load which they snagged by means of a hook on a throw line. At almost every cast fish would be hooked and dragged ashore. Settlers are salting large quantities for winter use.—Portland Oregonian.

FIX TABLET TO PENN'S MEMORY

Unveiling in All Hallows Church, London, July 13.

VICAR OF CHURCH TO OFFICIATE

Edifice Is One in Which Founder of Pennsylvania Was Baptized Oct. 23, 1644—International Committee in Charge.

New York, July 3. — The Pennsylvania society of New York on July 13 will place a tablet to the memory of William Penn in the Church of All Hallows, Barking, London, in which Penn was baptized on Oct. 23, 1644.

The arrangements are in charge of an international committee, of which Philander C. Knox is honorary chairman, Andrew Carnegie chairman, and Admiral Lord Charles Beresford vice chairman.

Ambassador Whitelaw Reid will unveil the tablet, and Dr. Robinson, vicar of the Church of All Hallows, Barking, will officiate at the dedication ceremonies with the members of the international committee. The tablet was designed by McKim, Mead & White, who carried out the original ideas of the late Charles Follen McKim, deceased, a member of the Pennsylvania society. William Andrews Clark, vice president of the society, paid for casting the tablet and erecting it in the church. The tablet bears this inscription:

"In memory of William Penn, baptised in this church Oct. 23rd, A. D., 1644. Proprietary founder and governor of Pennsylvania, examplar of brotherhood and peace. Law giver. Lover of mankind. 'I shall not usurp the right of any or oppress his person.

"'God has furnisht me with a better resolution and has given me his grace to keep it.'"

On the evening of July 13 an international William Penn dinner, with covers for 200, will be held in London, at which Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the Pennsylvania society, will preside and at which the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, Andrew Carnegie, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford and James M. Beck will be among the speakers. At the same hour a William Penn memorial banquet will be held in Philadelphia and speeches and messages will be interchanged by cable between the guests in London and Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT IN INDIANA

Today He Is Honored Guest of City of Marion.

At Indianapolis Tuesday He Will Make Address on Canadian Reciprocity.

Marion, Ind., July 3.—President William Howard Taft is the guest of this city today. During his stay in Indiana he will speak to the Hoosiers on three subjects: Reciprocity, arbitration and currency reform.

In this city he talked this afternoon at the soldiers' home upon world peace and arbitration, and he will address the local bankers' and editors' associations this evening regarding the Aldrich plan of currency reform.

His Indianapolis speech on Tuesday night before the Marion club will be devoted to reciprocity.

On his way here from Beverly, Mr. Taft suffered as much from the heat as he has at any time this summer in Washington. At Springfield, Mass., a large crowd gathered at the station to greet him. Mr. Taft walked to the platform perspiring profusely and raised his hands against their pleas for a speech.

"It's too hot," he said.

"Aunt Della" Torrey left the president's car at Worcester, Mass. She lives in Millbury, Mass., and went from Worcester to her home. Miss Torrey has been away from home since the middle of June, when she came to Washington for the silver wedding.

The president did consent to a short talk at Pittsfield, Mass. They were celebrating the centennial anniversary of the settlement of their town and had invited him to be their guest, but he had been unable to accept.

CONFLICT SEEN IN TESTIMONY

Witnesses In Lorimer Case Disagree as to Facts.

ACTION FOR PERJURY POSSIBLE

Assertions of Funk and Cook Are Denied by Hines—Affidavits of Marquette Men Also Disputed by Him.

Washington, D. C., July 3. — The Lorimer investigating committee of the senate, which has adjourned to meet here again on Thursday, July 13, left the room in the senate office building, where the hearings have been held, conscious of an amazing conflict in the testimony of witnesses thus far heard, a clash which was responsible for Senator Kenyon's suggestion that "there ought to be prosecutions for perjury right here."

On the one hand are the assertions of Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, that Hines asked for a contribution of $10,000 to reimburse an expense of $100,000 in "putting Lorimer over," and of W. H. Cook that Hines said in his hearing over the long distance telephone that he would take down to Springfield all the money required.

There also are affidavits of four men as to a conversation at Marquette, Mich., in which Hines is alleged to have boasted of electing Lorimer and to have spoken of an expenditure of $100,000 in this connection.

Mr. Funk's testimony was confirmed by Cyrus H. McCormick and Edgar A. Bancroft, president and general counsel respectively of the International Harvester company, and H. H. Kohlsaat, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, to whom he had related the conversation to the first two named immediately after its occurrence and to Kohlsaat some time later.

Mr. Hines admitted meeting Mr. Funk at the Union League club, where the harvester manager said the conversation occurred. He admitted meeting Cook in the latter's room, from which the long distance telephone conversation testified to by the Duluth lumberman occurred.

But Mr. Hines denied absolutely that he asked Mr. Funk for any contribution and asserted on the other hand that the latter expressed a desire to pay a share of Lorimer's "legitimate and honorable campaign expenses." He did not testify to any such proposal when he appeared before the Helm committee at Springfeld at that time denying emphatically he ever had heard of any suggestion of money in connection with Mr. Lorimer's election.

Mr. Hines denied also he had called last February at Mr. Funk's office and attempted to place an innocent interpretation upon the Union league conversation as testified to by the harvester man. He swore he was constantly in Washington from Jan. 31 to Feb. 4, in 1909.

EARTHQUAKE DAMAGE SLIGHT

Shocks of Saturday Affected Wide Area but Not Seriously.

San Francisco, July 3.—Forty-eight hours have elapsed since the earthquake shocks of Saturday and reports from the shaken territory do not bring intelligence of any considerable damage done.

In San Francisco, Oakland, and other cities in the affected area, panic seized upon crowds in stores and restaurants, and there was a pell mell exodus from the large buildings. It was felt to the northwest of Sacramento in the Sacramento valley, and to the east to Carson and Reno, Nev., the former place experiencing the heaviest shock in its history.

EXPRESS PROBE NEXT

Interstate Commerce Commission Orders an Inquiry.

All Companies in the United States Are To Be Investigated—New Tariffs Are Filed.

Washington, July 3.—Investigation of all the express companies of the United States affected by the interstate commerce laws was ordered by the interstate commerce commission. The board made the order on its own motion.

Evidently in anticipation of this action by the commission, practically all the express companies except the Long Island, had filed new tariffs, believed to be material reductions in rates. It was said it would require several months to compare these rates with those in existence.

It was announced also that the filing of the new rates would not affect the proposed investigation, which will be one of the widest ever undertaken by the commission. Not only will the inquiry relate to rates, but to company practices, accounts and revenues.

WASHINGTON LETTER

There is a wide-spread idea that Washington is a depopulated city during the summer. Its normal population is over three hundred thousand, and it is probable that the summer population of 1911, owing to the fact that Congress is in session, is not less than this number. Washington has become a great center for conventions, whether religious, industrial, social or what not. They come here in great numbers, and there is of course no city on this side of the globe, where visitors can see as much or enjoy themselves as well as at the capital. The railroads bring large numbers of excursionists to the city in the summer—people who are on their way to the seashore, and who are glad to avail themselves of an opportunity to see the national capital, a minimun expense. Fully 76 per cent of the resident population remain here through the summer months, and those who take it for granted that Washington is dull at this season are mistaken. Ambassador Bryce of England said in a recent adress that Washington enjoys the distinction of being the most beautiful city in the world through its multitude of public buildings, its wide shaded streets and in its symmetry of plan.

"The most beautiful capital of its kind the world has ever seen", is, I believe, the exact language used by the ambassador. The words "of its kind" are of course limiting. The ambassador is a cosmopolitan as well as a diplomat, and he no doubt weighs his words and is careful in his statements. There are of course many other cities, not only in Europe and Asia, but also in America that go far beyond Washington in population and and some of them far excel Washington in wealth and in architectural effects, but with Ambassador Bryce's limitation, "the most beautiful capital of its kind", his statement will perhaps defy criticism. The cities of the world with regard to population and in the order of their bigness are London, New York, Paris, Tokyo, Chicago, Vienna, Berlin St. Petersburg, Philadelphia and Moscow. It will be seen that three of the largest as well as the next to the largest are in the United States, and it is predicted that within thirty years New York will be the largest city in the world. It is, however, bumptious to boast of big cities, and the excess of city population is believed by many to be symptomatic of national disease or degeneracy. The most thrifty and best-governed nations in the world are those which have a larger rural than urban population.

LOST—

THE WOOLVERINE MOTOR CO. OF DETROIT, ACCORDING TO THE MILAN LEADER

The appearance of a motor car in Milan isn't the occasion of unusual excitement, but to see 40 cars coming into town, all in line, would be a sight close enough to the unusual to attract more than ordinary attention. Consequently there was quite a sprinkling of people on hand to witness the big show. Finally two cars were seen coming up Main street from the east, and the cry was heard, "Here they come! Here they come!" Well they did come—that is, the two cars came and stopped in front of the Stimpson. Every eye was then turned to the east but not another car could be seen It was finolly learned that they had taken a number of different roads out of Ypsilanti and were soon scattered all over York and Augusta townships. A number even kept to the Ridge and landed in Tecumseh, others in Saline, Dundee, Whittakey, Willis, Oakville, and Monroe, when the objective point for dinner was the Stimpson hotel at Milan.

From Detroit the cars were to run first to Ypsilanti, then to Milan, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo and from there cross into Canada. It's impossible to tell where they are now. May be hiking about in the cornfields of Monroe county for all we know, although they were reported Friday to be lost between Toledo and Cleveland Ohio. But its only a newspaper report, which you can't afford to pin your faith to.—Milan Leader.

Mrs. James Murphy of Macon, was a shopper in town Saturday.

Mrs Fred Sheldon entertained Mrs. G. H. Ray and daughter Charlotte of Detroit Saturday.

Mr. T. Mingay was an Ann Arbor visitor Saturday, returning at night with Mrs. Mingay, who had been in the hospital there. He reports her as much improved.

Always Safe.

Whenever you hear a man boasting that he has horse sense it 's safe to write him down an ass.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A pretty party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Belcher on Friday afternoon in honor of the first birthday of Mary Isabel daughter of Boyd and Grace Belcher. The young Miss was the recipient of a host of pretty and useful presents and seemed to enjoy the occasion in her own sweet way.

It was difficult however to decide which were the happier the babies or the fond mammas who chaperoned them.

Mr. Coller was present and took a picture of the group. Light refreshments were served. The names of the young gentlemen and ladies were: Mary Eleanor Anderson, Esther Louise Brewer, Genevieve Austin, Joseph Hudson VanNess, Maxwell Coller, Elsie Alice Slayton, Elizabeth Snow, James Franklin Temple, Carolyn Louise Williamson, Eugene Fisher, Edwin Moore Williamson, Frances Catheryn Heesen, Eleaner Elizabeth Reed, John Hicks Anderson, Marion Elizabeth Jones, Stanley Chase, David Martindale, Walter Elliott Sear, Florence Reid Jones, Meredeth Louise Jones, Irene Lenore Pangle and Elbert Temple.

Getting to Like Aged Cigars.

The number of Americans who are getting into the habit of appreciating age in cigars, as in wine, is rapidly increasing, according to an authority at the Waldorf. In the vaults under the Thirty-fourth street sidewalk is a big room where cigars are kept and one lot has been there since 1898.—New York Sun.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cummings St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly recommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

The human tongue is the only instrument that does not wear out with constant use.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1054 Wolfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

Experience often comes in wholesale lots, but we pay the retail price.

He Who Laughs Last, Laughs—

Several young men and a portly German were seated at adjoining tables in an uptown cafe the other night. The German left his table, and upon returning tilted his chair too much as he sat in it. The chair struck one of the young men a glancing blow on the shoulder and then carried its occupant to the floor.

The German apologized profusely to the young man who was struck by the chair, and both parties resumed eating and drinking. Several minutes later the young man winked at his companions, and turned toward the German, said in a familiar manner:

"By the way, how did you enjoy your trip?"

"My trip? My trip? Trip where?" demanded the German, puzzled.

"Down there," promptly replied the youth, pointing to the floor, and then waiting for his companions to laugh.

"Well," replied the German, smiling, "you see, I did not have much time to stop with you, and of course it would have been more pleasant had you gone the rest of the trip with me."

Then the young man's friends laughed—at him—and the youth acknowledged the turn of the joke by ordering a round for everybody, the German included.—Philadelphia Times.

No matter how contemptible he may be, a woman always likes to think her husband isn't nearly as bad as he would have been if he hadn't married her.

EARLY BIRDS.

An observant Frenchman who has been making notes of the habits of the feathered fraternity has just made a time table of the hours they wake of a morning.

The chaffinch heads the list with 1:30 a. m.; at 2.30 the blackcap hails the morn, while at 3 the quail utters his quaint "Pay tes detes!" "Pay thy debts") The blackbird does not rise till 4 o'clock while the tom tit, even more of a stay abed, does not commence his day till 4:30, while the restless sparrow considers the air not sufficiently warmed for his approval till 5:30 a. m.

THE MILITANT MUSTACHE.

The practice of clean shaving has made such strides among English army officers that a general order has been issued reminding them that the regulations still require them to wear a mustache. Times have changed since Rawdon Crawley so vigorously protested against poor Joseph Sedley's mustache. Civilians in those days were supposed to wear a bare upper lip. Nowadays they wear what they like; it is only the sons of Mars who are not allowed the luxury of a clean shave nor yet that of a full beard.

Great Waste of Oil.

According to the American Machinist, it has been estimated that there are lost annually more than a million and a half barrels of oil by the burning of oil wells.

Constipation Cure Free

With the first signs of constipation you resort to the home methods of relief, such as hot or cold water on arising, lots of stewed fruit with your breakfast, etc., but what do you do when these fail?

The majority then start on salts and purgative waters, then change to cathartic pills, etc. If you have gone through these various stages you know they were all useless, so far as permanent results go. Now you should try just once again, but try something practical and sensible, a remedy made and intended for the purpose you are trying to accomplish. Such a remedy, as thousands can testify, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is guaranteed to be permanent in its results. Its ingredients are such that by a brief use of it the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to again do their work normally, so that in the end you can do away with medicines of all kinds. That it will do this Mr. O. Y. Dodson of Sanville, Va., will gladly attest, and so will Mrs. S. A. Hampton of Portage, O.

To those who are still skeptical there is a way to prove these assertions without a penny of expense: Simply send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and obtain a free sample bottle. After using it, if you are then convinced it is the remedy you need, buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of your druggist and continue to use it for a brief time until cured. The directions are simple and the dose is small. It is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe and is promptly effective, and these statements are guaranteed or money will be refunded.

This remedy is over a quarter of a century old and is personally taken by more druggists than any other similar remedy on the American market. Because of its effectiveness, purity and pleasant taste it is the ideal laxative remedy for children, women and old folks generally.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The Wrong Man.

Brown is going around with a variegated eyes. This is the story that he is telling his friends.

"It was such a petty thing that the more I thought of it the madder I got.

"The milkman leaves my milk before the sun is up. It is somewhat later when I feel called upon to leave my bed, and during the time that the milk remains on the back porch some one has been making a practice to steal it. It is more than provoking to find when breakfast is ready that you have no milk for your coffee.

"I set all manner of traps to catch the thief, without success. Then I hired one of my neighbor's boy's to sit up and keep watch. But the next morning I found the milk gone and the boy asleep.

"The other morning I chanced to be awake just before sunrise, and I heard some one fumbling with the milk can on the back porch. Hastily throwing on my dressing gown, I stepped softly to the door and threw it open suddenly.

"In the dim light I could see a man bending over the can, and without stopping to see if he was a bigger man that I, I sprang at him with blood in my eye. The shock threw him off the porch, and we rolled down the steps together, fighting like a couple of wildcats.

"We must have made an awful racket, for I heard the windows going up all around me, and some one was blowing a police whistle, while my wife was wringing her hands upon the porch.

"I got my man down at last and sat upon him. We were both a sight, being covered with milk from head to foot.

"It had grown a little lighter by this time, and my wife, taking in the situation, gasped.

"'John, that's the milkman that you are sitting on!'

"It was for a fact, and explanations were in order.

"I understand that the milkman is going around exhibiting his wounds and saying that I made a brutal and cowardly attack upon a defenseless man and increasing the amount of damages he is going to sue me for at every telling.

"Meanwhile some one is stealing my milk."

Butterfly Marquisette

Among the new materials for the year is a butterfly marquisette, which comes in a tan color effect resembling the sheen on a butterfly's wing.

Some of these are in rose and tan color, others in peacock blue and black and some in yellow and black.

How She Got Even.

"Barrette" is the stylish name for it, but common usage has made it the "straylocks" pin. Anyhow, it holds up, or tries to support, the stage setting at the back of her neck, blond or brunnette, brick-top or tow-head, raven locks or amalgamated sunshine, peroxide or what not, it is the pin which keeps the big wad of real and artificial locks aloof from the back of the neck of the stylish feminine person under the peach basket hat, a la mode.

The young fellow on the street car had taken a back seat and had voluntarily classed himself among those who can not resist a puff of smoke or two, even at the expense of the conventionality which places smokers and men with picks and shovels and oil cans and market baskets in the rear of the car. He was lovesick. It wasn't worrying him, he tried to make himself believe, that she had gone home with another fellow as escort after he gave her a "calling down" for paying so much attention to the rival that night at the park. Everybody at the store was talking about the estrangement; but surely this couldn't be the girl, his girl; she looked so different from the back.

If she would only turn around. The hair didn't seem to be the same color as hers. There were streaks in it. It didn't have the luster. He smoked and looked. If she would only turn around! Perhaps the little difficulty might be adjusted! Maybe he was hasty. He stared at the "stray-locks" pin and the bulge of vari-colored tresses in a bundle, hoping for one, lone glance backward. On sped the car.

He, the disconsolate, rode on and on, until, at last, the bell rang as a tapering finger touched the button. A peach basket hat began to rise. The barrette, alias "stray-locks" pin glittered. He puffed violently at his cigar. Would she turn her face toward him?

Y-e-e-e-s! She got off the car backward, of course. Their eyes met. They walked to the store together. "I knowed you never liked my hair done that way," she said, "and I done it for spite."

"Ding! ding!" The car moved on.—Indianapolis News.

Mr. Billyuns (an art lover)—My house is really full of Titians.

Mr. Newriche—Great Scott! Ain't there nothin' you can do to kill 'em.

A Long Courtship.

"Grandma," asked one of the little girls, "what was the longest courtship you ever heard of?" "What a question, child!" exclaimed the grandmother. "What put that into your head?" "Oh, I just wanted to know."

"Well, deary," said grandma, with a pensive smile, "I think the longest one I ever knew anything about was the courtship between your grandfather and me, more than 50 years ago. Listen, and I will tell you about it.

"It was a few years after they had discovered gold in California, and people began to flock there from all over the country. You know there were no railroads running out that way then, and everybody had to travel in wagons. In the little town away back East where we lived several families that had the California fever clubbed together and went in a sort of caravan. Our family was one of them. I was a girl of about 20 years.

"Your grandfather, who was a few years older, belonged to one of the other families. He began courting me almost as soon as we started, and he kept it up all the way across the country, but I didn't say yes till we got to California."

"How long did it take you to get there?"

"Six months."

"Six months " Why, grandma, that wasn't so awfully long a courtship?"

"Why, child," said gradma, "it was three thousand miles!"

A Fine Dodger.

Carol's grandfather had served in the Civil War, and Carrol liker to hear of the many battles in which he had fought. One day, after listening to the vivid recital of many heroic deeds, Coral said:

"Grandfather, you went through all those battles?"

"Yes."

"And the shot and shell fell all around you?"

"Yes."

"And soldiers were falling and dying everywhere?"

"Yes."

"Well, grandfather, what a fine dodger you must have been!"

All Depends.

"Had any experience at poker?"

"Some."

"What's the most you ever saw in a pot?"

In his early days Sir Walter Gilbey used to devote some portion of every year to mountain climbing. While in Switzerland, once, he had a somewhat weird experience. He was about to make an ascent when he thought he might as well make some inquiries about the guide who was to accompany him.

"Is he a thoroughly skillful climber?" he asked his hotel-keeper.

"I should say so," was the reply. "He has lost two parties of tourists down mountainside and each time has come off without so much as a scratch on himself."

"Doctor, you've been coming here a long time and my husband is still helpless in bed. Do you think he'll ever sit up again?"

"Sure, he'll sit up when he sees my bill."

He Shut Her Up.—"Why are you and your wife quarreling?"

"Oh, I acknowledge that I made a fool of myself in my latest deal, and she's mad because she has no chance to agree with me about it."

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ore.—Chief David Campbell of the Portland fire department was killed and three firemen received serious injuries in a blaze at the plant of the oil company on the east side.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Officials and citizens of Kingston tore up and scattered the tracks that the Lehigh Valley Railroad company had laid through a portion of the town without permission.

FOREIGN.

Washington—Senator Crane of Massachusetts has told President Taft that the Canadian reciprocity will go through the senate unamended.

Viterbo, Italy—Maria Stenardo, the only female Camorrist on trial, has been sent to prison for 10 days for spitting in the face of a witness.

Tokio—John E. Atkins, a seaman of the United States cruiser Saratoga, has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for killing John L. Saunders, a bluejacket of the New Orleans.

Madrid—A meeting of Republicans and Socialists passed resolutions condemning Spain's military operations in Morocco, and also protesting agaist the international eucharistic congress.

Helsingfers, Finland—The Finnish mail steamer Bor I., with 400 Stockholm excursionists on board, was wrecked off Korpe island in the Outer Skerries. It is not known here whether there was a loss of life.

Munich, Bavaria—A factory at Trostberg, employed in recovering nitrogen from the atmosphere, was destroyed by a terrific explosion originating in a reservoir containing supplies. Three lives were lost, and six persons were dangerously injured.

Montreal—A wharf at King Edward park, a summer resort on the [illegible] Gros Bois, collapsed under the weight of hundreds of persons crowding forward as their boat approached. About 60 of those caught in the wreckage were injured, many seriously.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Washington—President Taft has accepted invitations to address the Christian Endeavor convention at Atlantic City, July 7, to visit the New York state fair at Syracuse in September and to step off at St. Louis, Mo., later that month.

Washington—After several months of extreme suffering, resulting in hundreds of thousands of deaths, the Chinese famine is coming to an end. Reports from the consular officers in various sections of the affected district forwarded to the state department by Minister Calhoun bring the news that the crops are now being harvested and there is no longer need of the assistance from the United States.

Mt. Clemens—Because the assessed valuation of Lake township did not aggregate $1,000,000, the proposition to bond the township for $50,000 for construction of a paved drive along the lake shore, to be known as East Jefferson avenue, is void. The statute provides that a township shall not bond for a greater amount than five mills on the dollar of the assessed valuation.

Pontiac—William G. Empey was instantly killed at the factory of the Monroe Manufacturing company. Empey paused behind a new shaper operated by Bert Woodhull when an eight-inch knife became loosened and was hurled with great force from the machine. It clipped off the end of Woodhull's little finger and struck Empey in the abdomen, disemboweling him.

Pontiac—George Campbell was arraigned before Justice Stackwell Monday on a charge of manslaughter preferred by Sheriff Trippe. He was unable to give the $10,000 bail required. Campbell is accused of striking Benjamin Day during a fight on East Lawrence street on the night of June 17. Dad died later of a fractured skull which he sustained when he struck the curb.

New Treasurer For U. of M.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 27.—Robert Campbell of Port Huron, who for the past several years has been in the office of the state commissioner of banking, Lansing, has been appointed University of Michigan treasurer to succeed George Baker, who recently resigned.

[illegible]

The pretty girl in the fluffy pink gown rose from her chair with a bright and cordial smile, so bright, indeed that most persons would have been suspicious of it.

"How do you do, Mr. Hardtack," she said with all the sweetness a woman usually bestows on her victim before she slays him. "You are acquainted with Mr. Onthespot, are you?"

The young man who had just advanced through the portieres and the other young man who rose protestingly from his chair before the fire, close to the chair in which had sat the pretty girl, eyed each other with polite dislike.

"I—er—possibly we have met," admitted Mr. Hardtack, sitting down stifly by a pole with an air of its being merely a temporary seat till the first caller should go.

"Delighted to meet you," said Mr. Onthespot, with the firm attitude of one who declines to admit any previous acquaintance whatsoever.

"Why, I thought you both were at Helen's house party!" exclaimed the pretty girl, reprovingly.

Mr. Onthespot politely swung his chair around from the fire before he entirely banished his lowering brow. "So we were," he exclaimed, he confessed. "Names slip one's mind so But I do remember your face now, Hardtack! Pardon me!"

"Don't mention it!" said the young man by the table.

ALGECIRAS TREATY IS IN DANGER

All France Is "Riled" Over Germany's Action.

Paris (Special).—Not since the stormy days preceding the Algeciran conference have the relations between France and Germany been so near the breaking point as at this moment. All France is indignant over the reports that Germany has ordered a gunboat to Moroccan waters.

The excuse that "German subjects demand protection" is ridiculed, and official circles assert that unless Germany is blocked a seizure of territory is certain.

Tangier (Special).—The German minister has notified Sultan Mulai Hafid that the kaiser intends to occupy Agidir, the most southern port of Morocco. The gunboat Panther will be stationed at this port to enforce German demands.

This move is interpreted as meaning that Germany is going to break into the north African situation and foreshadows a collapse of the Algeciras treaty.

Sunstroke Kills Youth.

Lafayette, Ind., July 3.—Frank Atkinson, aged eighteen years, son of Wilbert Atkinson, a prosperous farmer living a mile and a half east of Atkinson, Benton county, dropped dead from sunstroke as he was trimming a hedge.

FOURTH CLAIMS 23 VICTIMS

Smallest Number of Casualties Ever Recorded.

706 ON LIST OF INJURED

Sane Fourth Idea Bears Fruit in Nearly Every City of the Nation—Fire Loss For the Day Was $346,600. Fireworks The Cause of Most of Deaths and Injuries.

Chicago (Special).—Dead, 23. By fireworks, 12; by firearms, 6; by gunpowder, 2; by torpedoes, none; by toy pistols, 3.

Injured, 706. By fireworks, 307; by cannon, 55; by firearms, 104; by gunpowder, 100; by torpedoes, 18; by toy pistols, 98; by bomb canes, 9; by runaways, 15.

Fire loss, $346,600.

The above is as near accurate an estimate of the casualties resulting from the celebration of the Fourth as can be made at this time.

The nation-wide spread of the Sane Fourth of July movement brought forth fruit in the smallest number of casualties ever recorded. In nearly every city or town where the use of explosives by individuals was absolutely prohibited there were no accidents reported. In others, where the discharge of explosives was permitted under limitations, there was a decided falling off in the number of dead and injured as compared with previous years.

Comparatively few cities or towns imposed no restrictions.

59 HEAT VICTIMS.

New York, Pittsbrug and Philadelphia Report Many Deaths.

New York (Special).—The cumulative effect of three days of the hottest weather this city has experienced in years manifested itself here Tuesday in a list of 20 deaths attributed to the heat. Prostrations were counted by the score, and nine drownings were reported.

Pittsburg (Special). — Pittsburg's heat figures Tuesday exceeded any in the past 24 years. Fifteen deaths were added to the heat toll.

Philadelphia (Special).—Nine additional deaths have just been recorded here, making a total of 24 within the last two days.

AMERICAN REGAINS GORDON BENNETT CUP

Weymann Captures Aviation's Greatest Prize.

Eastchurch, Eng. (Special).—With a remarkable exhibition of speed, daring and cleverness, Charles Terres Weymann, an American youth, regained for the United States the Coupe Internationale d'Aviation, the greatest prize in aviation. He was the only representative of the United States. Weymann flew 94 miles in 1 hour, 11 minutes and 36 1-5 seconds.

The Coupe Internationale, or James Gordon Bennett cup, was first won by Glenn Curtiss at Rheims in 1909. Last year Claude Grahame-White, the English flyer, won the cup at the Belmont park meeting in America.

M. Gilbert, a Frenchman, won the Dover trophy for the fastest passage across the English channel. Vedrines, Vidart, Kimmerling, Beaumont, Valentine and Garros reached Hendon closely bunched, all having crossed the channel safely.

Wolgast had the fight well in hand all the way.

12 INJURED IN WRECK

FAILURE OF AIR BRAKES CAUSE

Rear Coach of Passenger Train Completely Demolished, and Wonder Is Many Were Not Killed—Engineer Hall of Excursion Train May Be Fatally Injured.

Jackson, Mich., July 5.—Twelve people were injured at Clarke's Lake when a passenger train on the Cincinnati Northern was struck by a freight train while making a siding to allow the freight to pass.

The rear coach of the passenger train was thrown completely from the tracks and badly demolished. It was reported at first that a number met death in the coach, as the freight was traveling at a high rate of speed.

All the injured were rushed to the hospital at Jackson. It is believed that Engineer Hall of the excursion train is in the most serious condition.

It is stated that the brakes on the freight train failed to work. When it was found that they were not in working order the distance was too short for the freight to stop, although its speed was slackened somewhat.

TAFT WILL COME.

Assures Fair Management He Will Gladly Accept Invitation.

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—Early in the year President McRae of the Detroit Board of Commerce extended an invitation to President Taft to be the guest of Detroit and the Board of Commerce in September. President Newton of the State Fair society followed this with an invitation to visit the fair and to so time his visit to Detroit as to be the guest of the whole state at least one day at the fair.

President Taft replied to both invitations, accepting the same, and last Friday the fair management again wired the president, asking him to fix the exact date of his visit to Detroit so as to be able to go ahead with the arrangements. A reply was received from the president stating that while he could not at this time say just what day he could come, he would surely attend the fair some day between Sept. 20 and Sept. 25.

The Board of Commerce will now go ahead with its elaborate plans for the president's reception and entertainment.

It is proposed to have the Grangers, Gleaners and other organizations from the state attend the same date, and Mayor Thompson, the Board of Commerce officials and others will be appealed to with a view of having business suspended that day.

SHOOTS GIRL AND SELF.

Jealous Lover Makes Vain Attempt to Kill His Sweetheart.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 5.—Henry Dehmer of Chicago lies dying in Mercy hospital here. He attempted to kill his sweetheart, Miss Mary Paterson, also of Chicago, and himself.

After shooting at the girl, and supposing he had killed her, Dehmer, who is but 21, turned the weapon on himself and inflicted mortal wounds. The girl is only slightly wounded.

The shooting took place at Strong's resort, Paw Paw lake, and followed a violent quarrel. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause.

DEATH REVEALS STORY OF MOTHER'S DEVOTION

Western Woman's Tragic Life An Object Lesson For the Whole World

WHEN the doors of a little house in Waukegan, Illinois, opened the other day and the body of an aged woman was borne to its last resting place, the veil of mystery that for 30 years had hung over the home was lifted and the secret which the dead woman had guarded so pathetically was revealed by the removal to an insane asylum of her demented son.

For 30 years she has been a self-constituted prisoner within the walls of that house, guarding and caring for the maniac whose dementia pride and love bade her hide from the world. Day and night she had watched over him, fed him and loved him, never forgetting that the wild-eyed ill-kempt man in the room she had arranged for him was the son she had loved and cared for from babyhood to manhood.

Her story is one which stands forth as an object lesson for all the world; stands forth as a proof of the power of mother love to rise above circumstances, and her name stands out among the hundreds of unlauded heroines who go down to oblivion unnoticed by the world.

George Odette, the man who now raves and protests against the strange cell in the asylum where he has been taken, was up till he was 18 a normal, happy and healthy lad, devoted to his mother and with every prospect of a prosperous future.

But one day he went to the county fair at Waukegan, and, boy like, wanted to try all the novelties.

At that time the electric battery was new and a great curiosity. Odetta watched for an opportunity when the operator of the battery was absent, and then turned a lever, seized the handles and was soon writhing on the ground in agony. When he was released it was discovered that his mind was clouded.

After weeks of treatment his case was given up as hopeless, and physicians and relatives urged that he be sent to an asylum, but the mother cried out against it. She would not brand her son in the eyes of the whole world as a maniac. She, and she alone, had power to soothe his fit of wildness, and she would keep him with her.

A farmhouse was rented [illegible] miles from their home. Bars were put on the windows of one of the rooms and quarters arranged by the devoted woman for the man who only at rare intervals recognized her as his mother and cried out to her. Next to this room Mrs. Odetta placed her own quarters, and day and night for 30 years she was beside the man, who is himself now nearly 50 years old.

Neighbors knew nothing of all this; they knew, of course, that some mystery hung over the house, and many rumors were rife as to the reasons why Mrs. Odette never left her home, and why the blinds in the windows upstairs were always drawn, but it was not until death finally claimed the mother that the story of her tragic devotion was told in the countryside.

She gave up for him her friends, her pleasures and all her womanly pursuits; yet she never counted the sacrifice vain, since it was made for the lad who was her son.

It is a fine story, isn't it? A story to make mothers the more tender of their own children; the more thankful for the sturdy bodies and clear brains, and a story that should remain deep in all women's hearts as a standard by which to measure maternal devotion in these modern days, when, alas, so many children are left to the care of servants and governesses.

Pillow Covers Made Of New Soft Linen

One of the new materials is a soft loose woven linen suggesting a very coarse etamine, the border effects in this material being carried out in wide and narrow openwork or drawn work bands, giving a bold lattice effect.

For pillow covers with a border to match a decidedly summery effect is obtained, but before beginning the work of embroidery through the drawn threads it is wiser to shrink the material, also the embroidery cotton, since both are liable to shrink.

Sea and Snore.

Hyker—What did the highwayman say when he covered you with his revolver?

Pyker—He said, "Throw up your hands!"

Hyker—Huh! Had he been a pirate instead of a highwayman, I suppose he would have said, 'All hands aloft!'—Chicago Daily News.

DON'T PLAY ROLE OF BEING MISUNDERSTOOD

HAVE you among your friends, little business girl, one whom "nobody understands?" Or are you by chance one of the same sort? A girl whom everybody's hand seems to be against; a girl whose eyes are turned inward, who sees only herself and who can find no person in all the world who really understands her temperament, her aims.

If you know a girl of this sort, or if you are one of the "ununderstandables" yourself, then let me tell you, the first remedy to be applied is to get the inward vision turned outward.

It's just like an ingrowing toe-nail (not a very poetic simile), which causes a great deal of pain, but only to those who are afflicted with it.

As soon as the chiropodist or the doctor cuts the nail and puts a layer of absorbent cotton under it to turn the growth outward, the toe begins to heal, and very soon you are once more comfortable.

But in this case you must be your own doctor and turn your eyes away from yourself and your troubles, which in the majority of cases are only fancied, and look on the world, take in the beauty of it, and above all get some of your fellows' viewpoint.

That's it, get some of your companions' viewpoint on this uncomfortable ingrowing vision which makes you think that nobody in the world understands you, that the world is a cold and unfeeling place and that you are the only unappreciated creature in it.

There are really a great many "mute inglorious Miltons" who will not receive recognition even after they are dead, but I suppose that's cold comfort for most of us.

Three-quarters of those girls whom "no one understands" are really most commonplace mortals, who have more than their share of conceit, for while a small portion of this quality is eminently necessary, too large a portion is only a burden to the possessor.

The girl whom no one understands is sure that nature cut her out to fill in some exalted place in the world and if she has no especial talent there is always her temperament to fall back on, for the ununderstandable girl invariably lays great stress on this temperament business.

Sometimes the pose of being superior to, and, oh, so different from the rest of us common mortals is all a fraud, but more often, I think, the silly little girl really thinks she is the one person out of all the millions in the world who is different from the rest and who should be petted and humored accordingly.

And she is such an unhappy little girl, too, while if she would only put a layer of ordinary common sense in back of her ingrowing vision to turn it outward to see the sunlight in the world and the kindness of her friends she could be as happy as any.

Even her mother does not understand her, and as for her brothers who poke fun at her temperament they are really, ah, just unbearable.

But if you are one of these, little girl who works, don't, above all things, take it into the office, for in the prosaic, cut and dried life of the average office, your temperament and story that nobody in the world understands you will not increase your popularity one whit.

New Flowers

One of the prettiest of artificial flowers which the summer styles have produced is the big clematis. This is shaped true to nature and comes in all colors, although the natural purple and white are perhaps the prettiest.

AT REST

Alice Anderson the wife of B. P. Anderson passed away July 4th at 10 o'clock p. m. after an illness extending over a number of years.

Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Elona Barber of Detroit, and a granddaughter Mary Alice.

In the death of Alice Anderson we fully and keenly realize the loss but it is with a mingled feeling of sadness and joy that we know she is at rest, and that life again has assumed for her all the joy and happiness of which she has been deprived for these last ten years. A tender true wife and loving mother, a faithful daughter, these were the attributes of character that made her beloved by her friends and neighbors.

Disease laid its heavy hand upon her, notwithstanding the care and love that skilled physicans and loved ones bestowed upon her she steadily grew more delicate until tired nature could do no more and she fell asleep. The sympathy of her friends has been with her all these trying years of suffering and with her brave struggle for life and while the silence of death wraps and chills us at this moment memories sweet and pleasant come crowding in.

The funeral services were held at her late home Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the Rev. R. B. Weld officiating, the burial was at Brookside.

MASONIC FURNITURE

It was our pleasure to view the new furniture lately purchased by the Tecumseh Lodge F. & A. M. it consists of five new officers chairs. A tri-chair was the most elaborate piece, as its name implies it has three seats, the center one being about 8 ft. in hight those on either side 7 ft.. Two of the chairs are of massive construction, and two are large arm chairs. They are made of quarter sawed oak and are most highly polished the upholstering is in leather Masonic emblems are carved on the backs, to be better appreciated they should be seen. Guy E. Belding has them on exhibition at his store. Mr. Belding purchased this furniture for the lodge in Chicago at a cost of $275. The lodge rooms is already beautifully furnished and this furniture will be a great acquisition.

LAWN PARTY

July 4th 1911.

About 40 guests assembled on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Meyer on July fourth for a family reunion of the Heesen families. The first item on the program was not a small one, being the dinner call, it was heartily responded to by every one present. After this came a social time, with a do-as-you-please program, a few indulged in cards, but mirth and merry laughter prevailed.

At a late hour lunch was served, and as the evening shadows fell, a display of fire-works completed the days entertainment.

The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Al Heesen, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hall and son, Merivale, Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin and Geo. Adamson all of Toledo.

WHEN, HOW AND WHERE

Tecumseh People Spent Their 4th

The 4th of July was a very quiet day in Tecumseh, being sane.

The old familiar salute of 13 guns was omitted from the program and as far as the old time jollification was concerned everyone slept peacefully but we can't help wonder if the people did really enjoy this feature as they expected.

A few weak wabbly sky-rockets sailed heavenward and a few broken backed pin wheels whirled themselves around with a faint sputter and went out. Even the nigger chasers failed to chase going one hop then dying away. Where in former years had been shouts of laughter and jollification with these sane 4th of July fire works there was just a gentle ripple. The Spirit of '76 seems to have passed away and left no trace behind.

At the several resorts Tecumseh people were well represented.

DEVILS LAKE

The 4th was observed in fine style at the Club Hotel, a large crowd being present. The fish dinner seemed to attract many, 285 being served. There were 180 numbers sold for the dance

The guests from Tecumseh were: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lawrence, W. H. Jones, Mrs. Sadie Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. McClelland, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hanna, Herbert Orr, Bert Lowe, Mrs. Will Hazlett and daughter Gertude, Mrs. Isabell McKie, Mr. and Mrs. John McCann, Ted Codling, Fred VanTine, George Zeihr, Mrs. Hattie Kaiser, Mrs. Tom McCann, Mr. and Mrs. Will Coller, Mr. and Mrs. Will VanAntwerp, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs Elmer Gibbs, Mat Boot, Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Look and aunt, Roy Hanham, Harold Kolkloech, Ethel Deming, Ina Russell, Maude Saul, Margaret Lowry, Metta McKinney, Edna Gaston, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hunt and Grace Steinhoff.

WAMPLERS LAKE

Wamplers Lake had a large crowd of Tecumseh people the main feature of the day being the racing and other athlectics. LeRoy Bramble was first in the running broad jump, the broad jump and 100 yard dash.

All the cottages were alive with visitors both those who were there for the day and those who are making a longer stay. Among those from Tecumseh were: Leon Williamson and wife, Ralph and Percy Bowen, Earl Rector, Arthur Smith, Raymond Osborn, Roy Snell, Roy VanWinkle, Vida Rude, Bonnie Brown, Nettie and Mayme Kaiser and Eugene and Marion Rosacrans.

SAND LAKE

Sand Lake was very quite the 4th but everyone seemed to be enjoying the day. Boating and bathing seemed to be the chief amusements. There was quite a large crowd later in the day, and the supper hour seemed to be well patronized. Among those from Tecumseh we noticed, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Slayton, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. A. Fitzsimmons and wife, E. E. Powers of Chicago, Mrs. A. J. Bigelow and two grand children of Flint guests of Mrs. G. N. Stacy, Mrs. G. N. Stacy and Miss Loana Stacy, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Howland, Floyd Ager and wife, Earl Updyke and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Rogers, James H. Potter and wife, Alfred James and family of Detroit were counted in as Tecumsehites.

EVANS LAKE

At Evans Lake F. H. Ridley proprietor of the Hotel reports a fine crowd about 50 couple taking in the dance and an equal number enjoying the fishing and boating, the fishing never being better than now. Thursday morning before breakfast Henry Wilson and Will Coller went out and caught 18 fish averaging from 2 to 4 lbs. each. Quite a number are spending the week at the hotel, Robert Mc Elroy ane wife of Tiffin, O. A bunch who came especially for the fishing, Q. H. Dibble and wife of Adrian, A. M. Hite and family of Norrvell. Mr. Mr. Ridley has gone to Tiffin, Ohio where he has large lumber interests but will return in a few days. So far he is well pleased with the out look at the lake.

IDENTIFIED AT LAST

George Hayes of Buffalo, N. Y.

It is with a feeling of relief that we announce the news, that the man who was taken to Adrian from Tecumseh a short time since as not quite sane has been identified by his father and a brother from Buffalo, N. Y., as George Hayes a traveling salesman of bicycle sundries. His people say he is subject to spells that deprive him of his reason for a brief space of time. He has a mania for farm life in the west which accounts for some of his remarks. He is 38 years old well educated and of a genial merry disposition. He will be removed to Dearborn, Mich. where he will be cared for until reason is once more restored or until the father sends for him from Buffalo, his home.

QUEER ACCIDENT

A most peculiar accident happened Monday, in the blacksmith shop of Thomas Elliott. Mr. LaBounty was sitting in the shop while Mr. Elliott was busily engaged at work. He was handling a red hot rod of iron, and cut off a piece [illegible] fell to the floor, and bounded into the open shoe of Mr. LaBounty, quicker to see the danger than Mr. LaBounty, Mr. Elliott at once tried to remove the iron with his fingers, finally Mr. LaBounty succeeded in removing his shoe and in removing his sock [illegible] of the same with it. Mr. Elliott also [illegible] some badly burned fingers, such an accident might not happen again in years, and both men are very thankful that it was no worse in its results.

CATARRH DOCTOR

Cures Catarrh Acute or Chronic or Money Back

Would you pay one dollar to rid yourself of disgusting catarrh?

Then go to C. A. Wright & Son to-day and ask him for a Hyomei outfit and you will not engage, but you will own outright a little catarrh doctor that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the specialists on earth.

In the $1.00 box which contains the Hyomei outfit, you will find a little hard rubber vest pocket inhaler

Into this inhaler you pour a few drops of Hyomei. Then all you have to do is breathe through the little inhaler, either through the nose or mouth, according to where the catarrh is located

When you breathe HYOMEI you breathe a powerful yet soothing, antiseptic air, which as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane penetrates every fold and crevice and destroys the germ completely.

Stomach dosing never cured catarrh, sprays and douches always fail; and why? because they don't get where the germs are, and as catarrh is a germ disease you must kill the germs, before you can cure catarrh. HYOMEI is guarrnted by C. A. Wright & Son and by druggists everywhere to catarrh, cough, colds, croup and sore throat.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon, Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly recommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

The human tongue is the only instrument that does not wear out with constant use.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1054 Wotfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

Experience often comes in wholesale lots, but we pay the retail price.

RESUME INQUIRY JULY 13TH

How Long Sessions Will Continue Is a Question.

Washington (Special).—The Lorimer inquiry committee of the senate will resume taking testimony here July 13.

Nobody can yet guess how long the sessions will continue here. They will continue long enough, however, to make it possible to bring the earlier prosecutions for perjury if the committee obtains such evidence of perjury as warrants a federal grand jury in finding indictments.

Indications are growing that congress may conclude its extra session earlier than has been generally expected. Many senators, together with Representative Underwood and other Democratic house leaders, are figuring on the first week of August as a possible adjournment time. The situation, however, is not sufficiently clear to warrant a positive prediction.

State Fair Auto Show.

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—Indications are that the automobile show in connection with the state fair in September will be larger than a year ago, when the feature was inaugurated. Manager Wilmot is very optimistic over conditions. In drawing for the space, the ground floor was divided among dealers. The second floor has been alloted to Detroit manufacturers, and outside and accessory firms will find place there. The parking place for autos this year will be in the big field in front of motor hall, just off Woodward avenue. Early this spring this field was graded and sodded and is now a beautiful greensward. A macadam drive is to be built from Woodward avenue to the main entrance, and all machines entering the ground will take this route. For the convenience of autoists and the interurban traffic a broad stone walk is also to be constructed from Woodward avenue past motor hall to new exits being built by the D. U. R.

Eliot's Remarkable Declaration.

Boston (Special).—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, delivered a remarkable oration at the patriotic exercises in Faneuil hall here. He declared that all men are not created equal nor have they any "inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The doctor explained by saying that under a regime of liberty the inborn diversities of capacity and character in different individuals in each one's life goes on and inevitably po[illegible] [illegible] and general conditions of

BANDITS STEAL GIRL

Bold Crime Committed In Central Park, New York.

Five Young Men In a Taxicab Shoot the Girl's Escort and Then Carry Her Away.

New York, July 3.—Five young men believed to have been members of a notorious west side gang jumped from a taxicab in Central park late at night, ran through the shrubbery to a bench, shot a young man there and carried off the young woman who was with him.

They put the girl inside the taxicab and were gone before any one of the number of spectators, including a policeman, could reach them or could even get the number of their automobile.

Frederick Held, twenty-one years old, is the man who was shot. He escaped with a scalp wound. One bullet, fired at close range, cut a gash along his right temple, but did not break the skull. He declined to give the name of the girl who was stolen from him.

General Search for Boy.

South Bend, Ind., July 3.—Police authorities throughout northern Indiana have been enlisted in the search for Mark Du Bois, the South Bend boy, who made a sensational escape on the way to the Plainfield reformatory. His picture and description have been sent broadcast. The boy was last seen at Kokomo, where he eluded his guard and jumped from a moving train.

Constipation Cure Free

With the first signs of constipation you resort to the home methods of relief, such as hot or cold water on arising, lots of stewed fruit with your breakfast, etc., but what do you do when these fail?

The majority then start on salts and purgative waters, then change to cathartic pills, etc. If you have gone through these various stages you know they were all useless, so far as permanent results go. Now you should try just once again, but try something practical and sensible, a remedy made and intended for the purpose you are trying to accomplish. Such a remedy, as thousands can testify, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is guaranteed to be permanent in its results. Its ingredients are such that by a brief use of it the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to again do their work normally, so that in the end you can do away with medicines of all kinds. That it will do this Mr. O. Y. Dodson of Banville, Va., will gladly attest, and so will Mrs. S. A. Hampton of Portage, O.

To those who are still skeptical there is a way to prove these assertions without a penny of expense: Simply send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and obtain a free sample bottle. After using it, if you are then convinced it is the remedy you need, buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of your druggist and continue to use it for a brief time until cured. The directions are simple and the dose is small. It is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe and is promptly effective, and these statements are guaranteed or money will be refunded.

This remedy is over a quarter of a century old and is personally taken by more druggists than any other similar remedy on the American market. Because of its effectiveness, purity and pleasant taste it is the ideal laxative remedy for children, women and old folks generally.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

LOOT GALIEN POSTOFFICE

Yeggman Escape to Indiana Sand Dunes with $400 in Stamps.

Galien, Mich., July 3.— Burglars blew the safe of the Galien postoffice and secured about $400 in stamps and about $10 in change. This is the second time within two months that the village has been visited by yeggmen, the general store of Ex-Senator Blakeslee having been entered in the spring.

Sheriff Johnson believes the work is that of professional cracksmen, who are operating in northern Indiana and southern Michigan. It is believed they have headquarters across the line in the sand dunes that border the lake. After blowing the safe with nitroglycerin, the robbers made a successful getaway in a stolen rig.

REWARD FOR HIS HONESTY

Carpenter Restores $200 to Owner and Is Given Good Job.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 3.—Although he was looking for work and had only enough money to pay his fare back to Reed City, H. H. Hawley, a carpenter, turned over to the police $200 he found on the sidewalk.

Hawley came to Kalamazoo only a few hours before and it was while he was walking about the streets trying to find employment that he found the money. The cash was lost by W. E. Forler, who not only gave Hawley a good reward but also placed him to work. The $200 laid on the walk where hundreds traveled for over two hours before it was found.

JUDGE SWORN IN BY WOMAN

Son of President Angell Now Federal Judge at Detroit.

Detroit, July 3. — Alexis C. Angell, son of James B. Angell, former diplomat and president of the University of Michigan, was sworn in by a woman judge of the United States district court and circuit court for the eastern district of Michigan. He succeeds Judge Henry H. Swan, who has occupied the bench for twenty years.

Miss Carrie Davidson, who administered the oath, is the only United States commissioner in the country. President Angell came over from Ann Arbor to witness the induction of his son into office.

Finds Man in the River.

Port Huron, Mich., July 3.—The police and coroners are puzzled by the finding of the body of a man between thirty-five and forty years of age at the foot of Thomas street, in St. Clair river. The body was discovered by a small boy who was fishing and who was terribly scared. He notified the police. Indications showed that the man had been drowned about four days.

Kirkland, Ill., June 12.—Advices received from New York are to the effect that Mrs. Isaiah Roabaugh, wife of a farmer living near here, is one of eight heirs to a fortune of $16,000,000 left by John Colter, a New York real estate speculator, who died recently.

Colter was a bachelor, and up to the time of his death was a recluse, as far as members of his family were concerned. The news of the fortune came to Mrs. Roabaugh from attorneys in New York who have charge of the settling of Colter's estate. Her husband is a poor farmer and she is the mother of four young children.

Meno was destroyed and the roofs of four houses had caught fire when the fire department arrived. By hard work the firemen managed to get control of the blaze.

Zudzense, the eccentric monkey lover of Sparta, Mich., was filed in the Kent probate court here by Anna Sellers, who was the doctor's housekeeper. She claims the original of the will was lost. The feature of the document is the allowance of $8 a month which Dr. Zudzense makes for the care of his pet monkeys during their lifetime.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOREIGN GRANTS ARE UNPOPULAR

Politicians Work against American and Other Enterprises.

GUADALAJARA DEMONSTRATION

Meat Dealers and Sympathizers Make Protests to Government Against Modern Packing Companies.

A vigorous campaign is being waged by the followers of the political leaders against American and other foreign enterprises that are operating under concessions granted by the preceding administration. In one of these demonstrations just made here the men engaged in the meat business in this city and scores of others gathered at the Independence monument plaza, pinned on their hats signs reading, "Abajo El Monopolio," (Down with the monopoly) and marched to the government palace to register a formal protest against the Pacific Packing company and an American concern which in January last inaugurated here the most modern meat packing plant in Mexico. A committee was sent to confer with the provisional governor and a demand for the abrogation of the concession under which the plant was built was made.

Governor Guiterres Allende told the committee he would make an investigation.

MEXICAN WASTE LANDS

Government Moves in Matters of Irrigation and Reclamation.

Mexico City, July 3.—The first step toward economical betterment in the republic was made when a dispatch was sent to the governors of all states asking them to co-operate in a plan for national irrigation.

The suggestion was made that all prisoners in the jails be organized to construct dams and canals for the reclamation of the waste lands. It was also suggested that the squads work to insure crops on the lands already under cultivation.

Arrested for Bank Robbery.

Monterey, Mex., July 3.—A dispatch from Chihuahua says the ex-chief of police of that city and several members of the police force have been arrested charged with robbing the Banco Minero. Enrique C. Creel, formerly governor and later minister of foreign affairs, is at the head of the bank.

Strike at Mexican Mining Camp.

Mexico City, July 3.—Eleven thousand men struck at Mapami, the great mining camp near Torreon. Trouble is feared and troops have been sent to keep order. A special train also went to bring away American women. The men demand increases in wages ranging from 20 to 100 per cent.

COOLER WEATHER COMING

Present High Temperature to Be Moderated About Wednesday.

Washington, July 3.—This week will be one of moderate temperature in the south Atlantic and Gulf states and generally over the region west of the Mississippi river. High temperature will prevail the first part of the week in the northern and middle states east of the Mississippi river, followed by a change to lower temperature in these districts about Wednesday.

A barometric depression that now covers the Rocky Mountain region will drift slowly eastward, preceded and attended by local showers and thunderstorms and cross the Mississippi Valley Tuesday or Wednesday and the Atlantic states Thursday or Friday. It will be followed by cooler weather over the [illegible] states, then to the Mississippi valley and the region east thereof.

"IRONQUILL" IS DEAD

Eugene F. Ware, Ex-Commissioner of Pensions, Dies in Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 3.—Eugene F. Ware, ex-commissioner of pensions, who was known by his poetic writings under the pen name of "Ironquill," died here. He was ill only five minutes.

Somebody once asked "Ironquill" why he chose the columns of the Topeka newspapers for his poems and why he didn't find some means of writing for a larger audience. "What's the good of it?" he said. "If the stuff has any vitality a little obscurity won't kill it; and if it hasn't publicity won't keep it alive."

Sense of Humor a Saving Grace

THERE is nothing that gets for its possessor so much that is worth while as an appreciative value of the fun in things. There is a certain foolishness in the sanest things in life just as there is often a portentous dignity and pathos in the most absurd.

We may have none of the worldly possessions that are supposed to make people happy, but if we have a sense of humor we appreciate the freedom that comes to those who are unpossessed by belongings.

A woman who has stood about all that it was humanly possible for her to stand in the way of unhappiness at home suddenly rose triumphantly above it all and became a creature, if not of joy, as they say in magazine poems, of amusing and comforting humanity.

Before she had had very little sympathy to express, now she overflowed with kindness to all.

"I woke up one day," she said, "to face the grim truth that my sense of humor had folded its funny little wings and left me forever. I was so taken up with my husband's faultfinding, with the continual nagging of a mother-in-law who hated me, with a life that was odious to me in every aspect, that I hadn't in all the ten years I'd been married once thought of the situation holding anything but the disagreeable.

"I shut myself in my room and looked things in the face. Here I had married a man who ten years earlier, to my inexperienced girl's eyes, seemed to be a hero and a romantic lover.

"I had found him, instead, to be a man whose first passion was the table and who had no interest in romance. I had met his nagging in a spirit of resentment.

"But on this particular day I sat down and took an inventory. I had a husband who really wasn't worth worrying over. If he'd whirled in to thrash out a big issue with me, I could have stood before it, but it was about the tiny things he continually whined.

"The cream wasn't thick enough and it was my fault the milkman cheated us; the bread wasn't the kind that kept a man from indigestion. The coffee was weak. Looked at from a coldly impersonal viewpoint I realized that my sense of humor had her face turned in my direction laughing.

"Here I was a strong, able-bodied sane-minded and big-hearted woman making myself acutely unhappy because the man Destiny dealt me as husband had proved himself to be a poor excuse of a man.

"Why consider him anything but a matrimonial joke on yourself," my sense of humor pleaded.

"With my husband catalogued as a joke on myself—and that's all he really was—a really poor sort of joke too—I turned to consider my mother-in-law.

"She realized all that comic paper editors have written about the type I had in the beginning tried honestly to love her and I wanted her to love me.

"I felt the sadness of a mother giving the boy dearest to her to a strange girl. If I had a son I'm not sure any girl in the world could be dear and charming enough to reconcile me to giving him up.

"Well, she didn't love me. She hated me, and she always reminded me of one of those sharp-beaked birds which peck at you. It was the pecking that was wearing my soul away. But with my sense of humor readjusted and working nicely I left that room, determined to accept her simply for what she was—a pecker.

"She has pecked away since then—but, encased in my sense of humor, she isn't my mother-in-law. She is an absurd old person, and I refuse to allow her to ruin even one minute of my life any longer."

We may not be successful in our special line of endeavor, but if we have a sense of humor we find a certain quiet enjoyment in our own efforts to succeed. Failure, even black heavy-heeled failure, isn't such a figure of gloom and despondency when we can laugh over the ridiculous figures our hopes made when they came limping in, the last of the "also rans."

Glace ribbons are used for trimming spring hats, some being used where bows needing a certain amount of stiffness are concerned, and the latter banded round in folds or twisted into torsades.

In the smart models one is very far from the simple contrasts described as shown in the toques provided for morning wear.

Very daring and very complicated schemes of color are brought to a successful issue by dint of care and taste in the treatment this season.

One sees little bows of bright cerise or crimson velvet used to fasten down a cockade of plumage into the violet or heliotrope draperies of a toque in hair tissue.

Hats made up of braid glace in several shades of Violette de Bois have crowns which are covered with heliotropes of an orchid purple.

Dahlia-colored satin ribbons combined with porcelain blues and crude green with bright blues, with feathery white aigrettes to crown the whole.

"The valedictorian was a very fluent talker."

"What was his address about?"

Laurie Bailey, bon vivant, man about town and general all-around good fellow, has a nephew who lays it over any nephew any uncle ever had. Uncle Bailey is proud of the boy and all he does.

Some one had been telling the "wonderful boy" about a little dog that asw hard of hearing. This little dog was sitting on a railroad track and along comes a train and cut the bow wow into smithereens.

"The other day," said Daisy, home and little Mike—I call him Mik for short, although that isn't his name—starts to tell me that dog story. He is only four years old and can scarcely talk plainly. But bright—Here laurie raises his eyes to the heavens until you get the impression that Mike is a very bright boy indeed.

"Well Mike starts to tell me that story about the hard-of-hearing dog. "Uncle Laurie,' says Mike, 'the little dog couldn't hear the train. He was sitting on the railroad track. Toot toot!' (imitating a warning whistle.) There was a dramatic pause and Mike finished the story with one word.

"'Mincemeat!' said Mike.

"Now, isn't that bright?" [illegible] Bailey.—Philadelphia Times.

False Tales Bring Swift Retribution

ONCE a great many years ago there lived a lad who tended sheep for a living. Now, this boy was much like other boys, and liked fun once in a while; but, like a great many boys, also, his fun sometiems had anything but laughable results.

One day this lad thought it would be great fun to scare his master, so he ran as fast as he could to his master's house and said that a bear had carried off one of the sheep. Immediately there was great consternation and acrowd of men ran to the sheep, but as soon as they reached the hill the boy laughed at them and said that he only told them about the bear for fun.

Not long after he played the same joke and again the people ran out in numbers to rescue the sheep, and again the little shepherd had his laugh.

But his punishment came surely and swiftly, for a few days after the second "joke" a bear really did come and carried off a couple of sheep and killed several more.

The boy ran as hard as he could to his master's house, but this time his storyhad no effect, for they all thought it was another of his jokes.

He implored the men to save his sheep, but neither his tears nor excited words moved them. "You only want to see us run and then laugh at us," they said. The next day the boy brought in his ocks and showed his master the remains of two sheep which he had rescued from the bear, and then they saw that his last story had been the truth.

But a second punishment was in store for the lad, for his master had him soundly beaten, and instead of being trusted with the sheep he was made to carry the meals to the men in the fields.

I offer apologies to Aesop for this rendition of his fable, but it is as near his story as I can remember. And you wonder how this fable of the boy and his sheep can apply to the little girl at her typewriter.

Then let me tell you.

Have you never known a girl who came to you often with tales of how miserable she felt? Her head was simply burning up with a headache, and she had so much work to do that if she were given more she was sure she would go crazy.

This isn't a bit exaggerated, for there are many such girls in the world. Whether it is to gain sympathy or to make them appear important I do not know, but true it is taht their tales are calculated to move a heart of stone.

At first we believe her, and think she is much to be pitied. We are sorry that her head aches, and that she has so many letters to write and that her employer is such an unfeeling wretch; but after a while we begin to wonder if she hasn't over stepped the line between truth and falsehood, and then doubt creeps in.

After a while, when we have come to believe that her tales of woe are simply the product of a fertile imagination, we tire of them.

When the time comes that she is really in need of sympathy and a helping hand, how many do you think will be likely to believe her? Do you not think they will rather take the same stand the people did to the shepherd lad, and laugh, as they say that this last tale is like the others?

Repairs Free for Poor Scholars.

It is proposed that the boots and clothes of necessitous children in attendance at the London County Council's day and residential special schools shall be repaired free of cost to the parents in connection with the boot making and tailoring classes conducted at such schools. It is held that the work would afford useful and necessary practice for pupils in these classes, and no expense beyond that already authorized would be incurred.—London Standard.

REVISING THE TARIFF

It is quite true that the Tariff Board can make useful researches, and that under ordinary conditions Congress might wisely await the reports of the board on one schedule after another. And this, of course, is what would happen in the normal order, if at the polls last November the voters of the country had preferred to indorse the position of the Republican party on the tariff. But it so happened that the voters did the opposite thing. They elected a Democratic Congress for the sake of having the Payne Aldric tariff energetically overhauled, without reference to the painstaking work of a tariff board.

Doubtless the Democratic bills revising the textile schedules are not the ultimate thing; and the work of a tariff board may well help to give us a more complete revision of those schedules at some future time. But Congress knows enough already about a good many of the schedules, including wool and cotton, to justify a sharp reduction of rates, and the country expects it.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for July.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

The annual school meeting of Dist. No. 7 was held at the Library on Monday evening, July 10th. There were 18 present four of which were people who had children in the schools Whether from a lack of interest or thoughtlessness. If our people would realize the importance of attending these meetings and expressing their opinions on the subjects under discussion there would be less fault found.

The meeting was called to order by E. H. Halliday, President. The yearly report was presented by Director C. F. Patterson. He stated that the wages for teachers to be raised $10,300 to assist in this we get in primary money $3,000, 1 mill tax $200 cash on hand $746.

Following this report was the report of the Treasurer D. E. Brown.

C. F. Patterson read the Library report in which mention was made of the improvements of the last year among which was the installing of the drinking fountain by the Civic Improvement Society, the book racks and the fitting up of the childrens' room.

Prof. McAlpine was then called upon to give a talk on our public schools, and to recommend what was needed for their improvemet, for the ensuing year. Prof. McAlpine's remarks were right to the point, and were listened to with great interest, they were practical and inexpensive and things that could be easily carried out, and would be of benefit to the schools and to the town.

In the beginning of his remarks, he paid a compliment to the high standing in which our school has always been held in the colleges. The colleges rate schools as A, B, C, which are subdivided as A-1 2 and 3, and we are rated as A-No. 1, and he not only wished to keep up this high standard, but to advance. He said in the old days certain courses were laid out that a child was compelled to take whether fitted for it or not, but now there are certain studies that they have to take to serve as a foundation for their education.

Aside from this they have a long list to choose from to add to their course Prof. McAlpine thought that the school house was closed to many hours during the year, and recommended many things to make it interesting for the pupils during the evenings and summer months. Among the things recommended by Prof. McAlpine was the purchasing and maintaining of an athletic ground, the purchasing of a stereoptican in which slides could be used to advantage, illustrating the history, literature chemistry and biology for the classes.

He wished to purchase quite extensively the aperatus to be used both for the good of the school and for the town if there were any tests to be made by our farmers they could be brought to our high school and the work done here. He also wished to purchase tools and lumber for mechanical drafting and woodwork. He spoke of a course of agriculture being added but did not think it practical at present. He estimated the expense of the improvemeots suggested at about $200.

The subject that seemed to interest most in Prof. McAlpines remarks was the appointing of a physician to examine the pupils especially those who lagged and seemed physically inadequate to do their work.

Prof. McAlpine spoke of his appreciation of the help he received from the people here, especiallyl when he goes to other places and saw how little help the teachers received. following his remarks came the election to fill the places made vacant by the expired terms of J. H. Smith and C. F. Patterson who were elected to succeed themselves the meeting then adjourned.

Bicycle Rider's Narrow Escape.

An unusual mishap befell Wm. Thomson of Old Meldurm, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, lately. While cycling against a very strong wind, the ashes from his pipe were blown behind his neck and set fire to his rubber coat, his shirt and muffler. Soon he was wrapped in flames. In vain he tried to beat them out, and he was severely burned before a farmer, who heard his shouts for help, drowned out the fire with water.

Sand Lake, July 4th 1911
Editor Herald:—

Your request for a letter from this locality is hereby complied with in part. I am not attempting to tell you of the people who are stopping here, nor of the pyrotechnical display we had on 4th July evening, nor of the style and prevailing color of the bathing suits worn by your fellow townsmen, or others. nor even of the quantity and weight of the fish caught each morning and evening, nor of the big snake supposed to be an alligator which is said to have escaped from the fish pond and has been sunning itself on the beach. All these things are well known and the alligators escape is ancient history.

I can not tell you of the cottage occupants because "Arab like is pitched their tent and straight again is furled" and before this letter meets the eye of the Herald readers they are gone and new faces are there on the porches, but of the cottages themselves if any one inquires of you how many there are you may tell them that all the groups of little summer homes around the lake can be counted in multiples of seven. On the south shore, beginning at Putnams are four sevens, or twenty-eight, farther on at the west side are two sevens, fourteen, continuing along the shore to the north shore we find some more, the Kies cottage which is one of the first ones built being the last of the group, then coming back toward Putnams again we find seven more located on what has been named Indiana Avenue. This name has seemed very appropriate and imposing because at the end of the line are two cottages built and owned by Indiana people, and the others are generally well filled by occupants from that state, and also because it is the only row which is located on the public highway.

When the mail carrier, the meat man, the milk man and vegetable wagons pass your door, and automobiles fly past unhindered by miles regarding speed limit, though our deputy sheriff resides on the corner at the end of the row. All the other sevens are situated on little cow paths or Indian trails. But Indiana Avenue is the great highway where all frequenters of Wamplers and Evans Lake pass and where one may see more "funny looking human bein's" in an afternoon than are found on our street in town in a week. This is no advertisment for renters for cottages along there for they are all full until September.

Continuing to apply the magic number seven, we find that there are seven Tecumseh people owning summer homes there.

Often we hear the inquiry, how many cottages at Sand Lake and no one seems to know. This counting makes eight sevens or fifty-six, and seven new lots have just this week been sold on the north shore to Toledo people who expect to begin building this fall, they are now tenting on the ground and laying out their plans. With this addition to the summer population and the electric line coming, we shall soon see the time when Sand Lake will be but a Tecumseh suburb.

ACCIDENTS

Blinn Tallman

Blinn Tallman was the victim of a bad accident Saturday. He is the owner of a fine span of black colts, in harnessing them that morning the hired man put the wrong bridle on one of them, later Mr. Tallman started to make the change, failing to put on the halter the horse sprang and threw him to the ground the hired man grabbed the other horse and held on as long as he could, but the teams at last got away, they were hitched to a hay rack, and the wagon passed over Mr. Tallman bruising him badly on one leg, arm and side. While the [illegible] are not serious yet he will be laid up for some time.

Merritt Conklin

Friday Mr. Merritt Conklin was assisting in unloading hay, the tug broke and the whiffletree flew back and struck him in the side, throwing him to the ground rendering him unconscious, he was taken at once to Alva Waring where he boards, and a physician was at once called, who rendered the necessary assistance. Friday and Saturday there were fears of internal injuries, but later the doctor thinks he will soon recover, and nothing serious will result. His many friends send their sympathy and congratulate him that he is doing so well.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines. does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medical professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for growh persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Chicken Lice Eat Up Profits

If your fowls don't do well, or seem to be in any way below standard, look for lice. The presence of these pests explains more poultry diseases, more poor egg records and more loss to poultrymen than any other cause. Lice are everywhere that chickens are—no matter how clean the place may be otherwise. They cost the poultryman more money than all the other items of poultry expense combined. They kill thousands of chickens every year. Every poultryman knows he must fight these pests. The question is: How? The answer is:

Conkey's Lice Powder

It Kills Them All

Conkey's is the scientific louse exterminator—a combination of the best lice-killing agents known. It is guaranteed to please. It gets clear down to the base of the feather and kills them right and left. Quickest, surest insect killer on the market, but absolutely harmless to chickens. It deals death to body lice. Their bodies drop off the fowls by hundreds, leaving fowls free from irritation. Chickens feel soothed and refreshed by treatment. It restores health and vitality to your poultry. Not only frees fowl from torture, but is an absolute safeguard against more lice if applied at intervals. Most economical remedy on the market. Costs little and means big saving. Pays for itself twice over in a single treatment. Sold in 25c packages or any quantity you desire. Order at once. Having tried it, you will always use it. Thousands of poultrymen all over the United States keep it always on hand. You will be surprised at the saving it will make for you.

Any Mites in Your Poultry House?

Go after them right with Conkey's Lice Liquid. That will fix them. It drowns them out in the cracks, where they breed and thrive and hide away through the day until the fowls come back to roost at night. Get into old clothes and with a sprayer or sprinkling can full of Conkey's Lice Liquid, go over the whole place and paint the roosts with the same stuff. Try this. We guarantee it effective. Conkey's Lice Liquid 35c qt.; 60c 2 qts.; $1.00 a gallon.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly recommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Woman Who Understands

Somewhere she waits to make you win,
Your soul in her firm white hands—
Somewhere the gods have made for you
The woman who understands.

As the tide went out she found him
Lashed to a spar of despair—
The wreck of his ship around him,
The wreck of his dreams in the air,
Found him and loved him, and gathered
The soul of him to her heart—
The soul that had sailed an uncharted sea,
The soul that had sought to win and be free,
The soul of which she was part;
And there in the dusk she cried to the man,
"Win your battle—you can—you can!"

Helping and loving and guiding—
Urging when that was best—
Holding her fears in hiding
Deep in her quiet breast.
This is the woman who kept him
True to his standards lost—
When, tossed in the storm and stress and strife,
He thought himself through with the game of life
And ready to pay the cost—
Watching and guarding, whispering still,
"Win—you can—and I know you will!"

This is the story of ages—
This is the woman's way—
Wiser than seers or sages,
Lifting us day by day—
Facing all things with courage
Nothing can daunt or dim;
Treading life's path wherever it leads—
Lined with flowers or choked with weeds,
But ever with him—with him;
Guardian, comrade, and golden spur
The men who win are helped by her

Somewhere she waits, strong in belief,
Your soul in her firm white hands
Thank well the gods when she comes to you—
The woman who understands.

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sour stomach, sick headache and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets, salts, "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary reliefs. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Flood of Low Collars

The neckwear departments of the stores still display the high stock, the high turndown collar of plain or embroidered linen, the soft outing collar with its jeweled safety pin, but all these old favorites are fairly submerged in the flood of low turndown collars, stiff and soft.

For the most part, however, these low collars are made in soft materials, the stiff variety being the regular Eton and the Eton with the long points in front.

Smart Belts

Exceedingly good looking belts are shown for wear with the two or three piece suit for early spring. Generally they are very wide and crushable, made up in moire, in soft, rich ribbed silk, in velvet, suede and soft kid, with plain buckles covered to match the belt. Belts of the same kind are seen in vivid colorings, as well as the darker shades, and these are very smart when worn with the linen suit or two piece frock.

STUDY OF CANCER SHOWS ADVANCE

MALIGNANT CANCER EASILY GROWN OUTSIDE THE BODY BY PATHOLOGIST.

MAY BE SOLVED

Doctors Experimenting Succeed in Accomplishing Marvel With Tissues.

New York, N. Y.—It was announced recently that Dr. Alexis Carrel and Dr. Montrose T. Burrows, experimenting in the laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, had succeeded in accomplishing a physiological marvel by cultivating tissues and organs taken from the body so that they were actually being kept alive and their cell growth multiplied.

A number of physicians and surgeons have been informed in the last few days that a portion of a cancerous tumor is being propagated by these surgeons in a similar way, and that its increase can be observed by the naked eye. The cell multiplication and structural growth are, of course subjects for microscopical study.

The significance of the growth of this tumor outside of the body is apparent; the medium in which it flourishes has been selected by the surgeons themselves—a fluid prepared by them; it remains to discover something which inhibits or destroys the growth and at the same time can be used with safety at the seat of malignancy in the body itself. This "something" undoubtedly would be a cure for cancer. The subject of the present experiment is, of course, in this direction.

The New York Medical Journal, commenting editorially on the published reports of the growth of normal tissue outside of the body says.

"The viability of the cells of the body independently of the life of the organism of which they are a part has, of course, long been recognized, and the fact of the separate existence of myriads of living units, working together in that marvelous co-operative community, the body, constitutes one of the most mysterious phases of the eternal riddle of life itself. Familiar evidences of this fact are found in observation of the amoeboid movements of the leucocytes after the blood is removed from the body for examination, in the continued physiological action of excised organs under suitable conditions, such as the rhythmic contractions of the heart when perfused with Ringer's solution, etc.

"It has remained, however, for Alexis Carrell and Montrose T. Burrows, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research to accomplish the astonishing feat of cultivating adult tissues and fragments of organs in suitable media, so that their growth could not only be watched by means of the microscope, but could even be detected by the naked eye.

"Carrel and Burrows' work was suggested by the successful experiment of Harrison of cultivating the embryonic nerve tissue of the frog, and the later cultivation by Burrows of embryonal tissue of warm blooded animals. The medium used consisted of plasmatic fluid taken from the same animal from which the tissue was derived, and the preparations were sealed in hollow glass slides and kept in an incubator at a uniform temperature.

"Tissues successfully cultivated were the arterial sheath, connective epidermis, thyroid, spleen, kidney, etc., of the adult dog, cat, and frog. There was a distinct tendency toward a reproduction of the tissues inoculated, as, for instance, in the case of the kidney, in which new tubules were formed and pushed out into the surrounding medium. Furthermore, in several instances a subculture was successfully grown, the developing tissue being transplanted from one preparation to another. The authors state that apparently normal cells may be cultivated with no more difficulty than many microbes.

"The enormous value of this discovery in the field of pathological physiology is obvious. For instance, as Carrel and Burrows suggest, micro-organisms can be cultivated in conjunction with living tissue cells, and their interactions studied, and the method will without doubt contribute much to our study of new growths. They have already succeeded in inoculating plasmatic fluid with sarcoma of the fowl. It seems not unreasonable to prophesy that this discovery will mark an epoch in the history of biological investigation."

How He Could Do It.

We may or may not be an extravagant nation, but if we were minded to buckle right down to it there would be silver dollars rolling along the sidewalks and porterhouse steaks left over from every dinner table.

Oour coattail buttons cost millions of dollars a year.

All neckties could be worn a month longer.

Two quarts of milk can be watered to make four.

A return to rag carpets would save a billion dollars a year.

A beef bone will yield soup seven different times.

No man ever has a knife in his pocket when asked for it, and yet we spend $10,000,000 a year for cutlery.

Potatoes can be mashed with a brick, and yet the jammers cost the country $4,000,000 a year.

Americans tip waiters and servants to the tune of $5,000,000 a year. All this could go towards raising turnips.

If all the potato peelings now thrown away were made into raspberry jam we could do away with a thousand poorhouses.

By sitting with bedquilts around us we could reduce the fuel bill one-half.

Folks got along without forks up to the year 1665 and were happy.

Two raw turnips will fill a man up just as much as a $10 dinner at Delmonico's.

Heels are a superfluity on boots and shoes, and yet they cost us $80,000,000 a year.

An old coat for a pillow would save us $6,000,000 a year in geese feathers.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

Little Remarks Sting the Most

Tactlessness Is Weapon That Wrecks Many Feminine Friendships.

DESERTED by her husband, although he still supports her lavishly, and almost without friends, a young matron whom I know has crept home to her mother's house heartbroken and facing years of loneliness because—well, truth to tell, simply because she could not control her tongue.

Could not in fact resist the temptation to make those stinging little remarks that sometimes pass for wit, but which are usually merely a barb that pierces through the sensitive nerves of the hearers and leaves them aquiver with unreasoning anger.

Haven't you met that sort of woman? The woman who always comes in on the day you didn't dust and who remarks casually upon how the dirt does show at this time of year? The woman who tells you sympathetically that it's a pity that your dress isn't wearing better, and the woman who likes to make a game of nagging her husband until he loses his temper and then who—all in the right and justly indignant at his wrath—declares she was "just teasing him!"

Many women are tactless because they don't think before they speak, but there are, alas, hundreds of others who go through life searching for the weak spot in the armour of complacence and pride which others wear and who drive their barbed arrows home with honeyed sweetness.

The wife of whom I spoke was just such a one, and her house despite its charming, artistic qualities and her husband's comfortable income, was never a real home. It was a place that both he and his friends came to with reluctance and left with relief.

And the more he stayed away the more he winced under the stinging lash of her tongue, the more bitter she became in her words. The more she pulled out and stabbed his little foibles and those of his friends, until at last he could bear it no more, and told her frankly that she must learn to be more gentle in speech or he would leave her.

She laughed at him, taunted him, and so he left. Providing for her, too, generously, to take any legal steps necessary, but seeking comfort away from her, although he admits frankly that, when he can forget all the little things which rankled so, he still loves her.

Perhaps she is paying too highly and bitterly for the possession of a sharp tongue, but, as a great philosopher said once, "The woman who speaks gently of others is worthy of every man's homage, but she who speaks poison with her tongue should be punished as if for a crime."

She Is Never Popular

Sharp words are, too, a boomerang, for the woman who says them is never popular; she never has real and close friends, for she estranges them too often. For, after all, 'tis the little words that rankle and that we can't forget. We may forgive some one who struck us, or who in anger or misapprehension spoke bitterly to us or of us, but do we ever forgive the woman who smiles and thrusts us to the heart with a witty speech alleged to be most friendly.

It may be about yourself, it may be merely the supposed repetition of what some one else said of your children, it may take the guise of a suggestion, or a bit of advice, but it always rankles, and the woman who wants to be loved and to be popular and to make others happy must learn first of all to be gentle, and no matter how clever an epigram comes to her to repress it if it can hurt the feelings of the hearer.

Nathan Straus, discussing the absurd difficulties that confront sanitists in their endeavor to pass laws compelling the pasturisation of milk said:

"The legislators who oppose this law bring forward arguments about as weak as that of the Maine milkman.

"A lady, summering in Maine, said to her milkman, severely:

"'Look here, this milk of ours is half water and half chalk. What do you mean as advertising it as pure?'

"'Madam,' said the milk manufacturer, with reproachful dignity, 'to the pure add things are pure.'"—Washington Star.

Miss Jeanette L. Gilder, editor of Putnam's tells this story:

A serving maid had just come from Ireland, and a Brooklyn woman engaged her. A bell hung in the girl's room, and the morning after her arrival her mistress rang the bell to get her up. But the maid did not get up, though the bell rang and rang. Finally, therefore, the mistress herself rose, and, slipping on a dressing gown, she hastened to the new servant's room. There, wide awake, the maid lay, laughing at the top of her lungs.

"What on earth are you laughing at, Norah?" said the mistress.

"Faith, mum," Norah answered, "Oi'm laughing at that bell. Its sure as Oi live Oi havent touched it, an'—just see—it's waggin'."—Philadelphia Record.

OSCODA AND DESTROYED

Fierce Forest Fires Rage Unchecked, and Thousands Are Homeless.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE IS FEARED

City of Alpena Swept by Flames, and Loss There Will Run Close to Million Mark.

HIGH WINDS PREVAIL; DANGER IS STILL GREAT

BAY CITY SENDS FIRST AID TO FIRE SUFFERERS.

Bay City, Mich., July 12.—A special car, consisting of an engine, baggage car and passenger coach, carying food for 1,500 homeless people left in the fields and swamps around Oscoda has been sent out from this city, in response to a message from the Oscoda authorities asking for food and clothing for the fire sufferers.

East Tawas, Mich., July 12.—Oscoda and Au Sable were wiped off the map, Tuesday afternoon, by fire.

Forest fires northwest of the towns were swept into the slab yards by the fierce gale which was blowing, and in spite of everything that could be done the business sections and most of the residences were burned.

Hundreds of people are homeless and have nothing expect what they had on when they escaped. The fierce rush of the flames drove hundreds into Lake Huron, and while it is impossible to ascertain whether any lives were lost, it is feared that many have perished.

It is impossible to estimate the loss, but it will mount into millions. The business and industries of the towns are gone, and the citizens are left without a means of livelihood. The charitable citizens of the state will have to care for them until such time as they can look after themselves.

Everything had been rendered dry as tinder by the intense heat of the past ten days, and once flames touched anything, its destruction was the work of but a few seconds.

ALPENA RAVAGED BY THE FIERCE FLAMES

Alpena, Mich., July 12.—Sparks from fire in brush and sawdust on the outskirts of Alpena spread to piles on the river bank, and the flames ran along the long rows of old timber with amazing rapidity under the influence of a heavy wind. In half an hour it was a question whether the entire town would be burned, and calls for assistance were sent to Harrisville, East Tawas, Tawas City and Bay City.

Every mill, factory and store in the city shut down and mill and factory hands, store clerks, proprietors and men of all classes united in the effort to save the city. A shift in the wind was all that saved the city from utter destruction.

The loss will total nearly the million mark, it is estimated.

THREE OF FAMILY DROWN.

Young Girl Only Survivor in Boating Party of Four.

Traverse City, Mich., July 11.—The first fatality on the lakes in this vicinity is the drowning of Mrs. Clara Kavitch, 30, her sister, Mary Durga, 14, and brother Elmer Durga, 21. The party also included Elsie Durga, 18, who escaped.

When a short distance from shore, in an attempt to cross Long lake, the boat capsized. All were thrown into the water, and only Elsie escaped. She and Elmer fought desperately to save the others, but were unsuccessful, the young man finally becoming exhausted and losing his life in the attempt to save the others.

Leonidas, Mich., July 11.—Harlan Soule of this place was drowned while bathing in Portage lake. His family had gone to the lake for a picnic.

Twine Plant is Idle.

Jackson, Mich., July 12.—H. R. Swan, superintendent of the binder twine plant, has been discharged by Warden Simpson for his refusal to accept the responsibility of keeper in conjunction with his ordinary duties, and three foremen in the same department have been also given their walking papers for the same reason. As a result the twine plant is shut down, and the warden is looking for experienced hands to take charge and resume operations.

HISTORICAL FIREWORKS.

State Fair Management Closes Contract For Magnificent Spectacle.

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—The night spectacle and fireworks display at the state fair this year will be a most elaborate and costly spectacle. Contracts were closed by state fair officials for this part of the big show. It is to be known as "Pioneer Days and Chief Pontiac's Attack on Fort Detroit," and will be given in connection with the state fair, Sept. 18 to 27th.

An entirely new and original spectacle is being designed at a cost of thousands of dollars which will accurately depict pioneer days and will be both thrilling and realistic. It will require the construction of a stockade and fort on the infield in front of the grandstand that will cover about 20,000 square feet. All the scenery and costumes will be new, and 250 soldiers, Indians and pioneers, all in regulation costumes, with prairie schooner wagons drawn by mules, will be used in attacking the fort, and an absolute reproduction of this historic event is guaranteed. There will be military maneuvers by the soldiers, a war dance by the Indians and a realistic sham battle and general engagement of troops against Indians.

FATAL R. R. CROSSINGS

Claim Trio of Lives in Michigan on Monday.

Bay City, Mich., July 11.—Charles Fyke is dead, his wife is expected to die and a child, a daughter, is badly bruised, the result of a crossing accident at the McKinley Avenue crossing of the Pere Marquette.

Owosso, Mich., July 11.—Mrs. Charles Gildna, 40 years old, was instantly killed, her 12-year-old daughter, Mamie, was fatally injured, and her son, Joseph, was severely but not seriously bruised when a buggy containing the trio was struck by an electric car on the Lansing & Northern railway near here.

Plymouth, Mich., July 11.—Jessie Tisordo, aged 20, is dead and her brother John, aged 12, is probably fatally injured as the result of a crossing accident on the D. U. R., about a mile east of here.

Campaign For Pure Milk.

Lansing, Mich., July 11.—Dr. Robert L. Dixon, the new secretary of the state board of health, who last week announced that he would inaugurate a campaign for the saving of babies in Michigan by calling the attention of all the people to the absolute necessity for sanitary methods in the handling of milk, has prepared a statement outlining his ideas for the proper methods of caring for milk from the time it is drawn until used.

Failures Increase.

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—During the first six months of 1911 there were reported to R. G. Dun & Co., 7,061 failures, an increase over the corresponding period in 1910 of 673, but though greater in number the business defaults of the year showed reduced aggregate liabilities.

Cyclone Blows Barn Onto House.

Port Huron, Mich., July 11.—Picked up and carried several rods by a small cyclone, Joseph Brimer's barn in Kimball township was deposited on top of his house, the latter building being demolished. None of the occupants were injured, all managing to escape before the walls of their home fell in.

Ann Arbor.—Charles Sink, secretary of the university school of music, received a cablegram from Professor Albert A. Stanley, head of the university school of music, stating that Mrs. Stanley, his wife, was dead in London.

R. F. D. CARRIERS GET INCREASE

$4,000,000 Added to Salary Roll by Hitchcock.

Order Will Mean Boost of $100 Per Year For Carriers on All Standard Routes, With Proportionate Increases on the Shorter Routes of Rural Delivery System.

Washington (Special).—The 40,000-odd rural free delivery carriers in the United States are to receive salary increases as a result of a decision reached here by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The order will mean an increase of $100 for all on standard routes, with proportionate increases on the shorter routes.

Congress provided last session an extra $4,000,000, but left it to the discretion of the postmaster general as to how it should be expended. Mr. Hitchcock's desire is to compensate the carriers for any additional burden if the parcel post system he has recommended is approved by congress.

"Now that the men are to receive such generous increases in pay," he said, "I feel that congress should lose no time in authorizing the carrying of parcels on rural routes. A parcel post system on rural routes can be conducted without any extra expense to the government other than the $4,000,000 salary increase, which, in my judgment, would be more than offset by the parcel post revenue."

AMENDMENTS KILLED.

Begins to Look as Though Trade Bill Will Pass Intact.

Washington (Special).—The senate Monday voted down the amendments to the Canadian reciprocity agreement offered by Senators Cummins and Simons. These amendments were designed to increase the number of Canadian manufactured articles to be admitted to the United States under the bill free of duty.

The defeat of the amendments clears the situation in the senate and leaves the reciprocity bill much nearer final passage.

FRED A. HINES.

Imperial Potentate of the Mystic Shriners Retiring.

Rochester (Special).—Thousands of Shriners are in this city in attendance at the annual convention of the imperial council of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. John Frank Treat of Fargo, N. D., has been elevated to imperial potentate.

WILLIAM SHAW.

General Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The men's meeting on the million-dollar pier in connection with the twenty-fifth International Christian Endeavor convention was one of the largest ever held in this big resort. In the crowd that pocked the auditorium was August Herrmann of Cincinnati, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, who held their annual reunion here this week, and nearly his entire delegation.

TO SAVE FORESTS.

Five States Co-operate With Government For Protection of Timber.

Washington (Special).—Forest fire co-operative agreements between the department of agriculture and five states have been completed. These agreements provide for the expenditure by the federal government of $25,200 on the forests in these states for their protection from fire during the ensuing year. They are made possible under the terms of the so-called Appalachian forest reserve act.

The states which have so far completed plans for receiving a share of the money appropriated under the law are: Maine, $10,000; Vermont, $2,000; New Hampshire, $7,200; New Jersey, $1,000 and Wisconsin, $5,000. The money given by the federal government is to be used exclusively for the employment of patrolmen. To obtain a part of the money each state must agree to expend a like amount during the same period, and the plans for the fire protection must receive the approval of the department of agriculture.

Young Turks on Warpath.

London (Special).—Europe is again on the verge of a volcano. The Young Turks, long restless, are advancing on the Balkans. King Nicholas of Montenegro has called out his reserves and will fight the invaders to the last ditch.

Russia, though friendly to Montenegro, has been so far unable to interfere. Not only are the Albanians in danger, but hundreds of English and American missionaries face death unless the powers intervene at once.

Twelve Die in Railroad Wreck.

Bridgeport, Conn. (Special).—Twelve battered bodies in the morgue, 44 sufferers in the hospital and a mountain of junk at the foot of a 20-foot embankment at the western end of this city tell the tale of the worst wreck in 58 years' history of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The train jumped the embankment.

Boat Sinks; Three Drown.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 11.—Steamer John Mitchell was sunk in collision with the steamer W. H. Mack, seven miles above Whitefish point, Lake Superior. Three of the Mitchell's crew were lost.

CRAWLING STONE LAKE.

Its Floating Rock Once the Throne of the Great Spirit.

In the northern part of Wisconsin is a large lake whose waters abound [illegible]. In this lake there is also a great rock which floats in its waters. [illegible] a writer in The Red Man [illegible] the Chippewa Indians as a sacred monument to the great Manito.

Stories are told generation after generation that this great rock was at one time the throne of the Great Spirit. Here he sat and ruled the people, the animals of the forest around and the fishes of the waters of this lake. As time went by this rock was gradually being worn away and the Great Spirit had to go to a new home.

Every summer the Indians hold dances near the place where the rock stands. This they do to celebrate the time when the Manito took his leave. They bring food and tobacco and place them on the rocks so if the Great Spirit does not get enough to eat in the other world he comes down and gets the food that is placed by his former subjects.

No white man is allowed to catch fish in this lake, for the fish were put there by the Great Spirit for the Indians only. The rock floats about, being pushed by the waves, hence the name, "Crawling Stone Lake."

The Teeth of the Sheep.

It is much easier to tell the age of sheep than it is to guess a woman's age, says the Pennsylvania Farmer. Prof. Gaumnitz of Minnesota, who has been studying the sheep, says that fine wool sheep live much longer than medium or coarse wool sheep. The former have been used as breeders from one to eight years and the latter from one to six, and more rarely seven years. This indicates the extreme period of usefulness in the flock. The prime of life probably extends from one to five or six years. The lamb has a short and small head as opposed to the head of the mature sheep. Its teeth are smaller in every way. They are usually smooth and white, as opposed to a more corrugated darkened surface in the old sheep. The age of sheep is told by the four pairs of incisors which are found only on the lower front jaw. These are all present by the time the lamb is six weeks old. In the yearling the central pair of small incisor teeth are replaced with a large pair when the lamb is 10 to 14 months old. They are almost twice as wide and much better than those at either side. At two years old the animal gets a second pair of large teeth. At three years it gets a third pair of large teeth. It would then have three pairs of large teeth and one pair of small or lamb teeth. The four-year-old has a full mouth of four pairs of large teeth. The outer ones are never as large as those in the center.

MARBLE FROM TIBER.

One of the most beautiful things about the magnificent waiting-room of the new Pennsylvania Terminal in New York is the stone facing, which was imported from Italy and taken from the bed of the River Tiber. This stone, carefully dressed, has been used a good deal in the ceilings and upper walls. The waiting room which is 277 feet long, 103 feet wide, is deeply impressive as one enters it from Seventh Avenue. A large man feels very small because of the tremendous dimensions of the room. This room is faced by the big concourse and on either side of it are smaller waiting rooms, one for men and one for women, with dining rooms, comfort and other rooms.

Passing from the waiting room out into the concourse, where one finds the train signs and the stairway leading down to the trains, creates the feeling of going outdoor because of its great height, and the fact that its whole upper part is made of plate glass that takes on the varying shades and tints of the clouds and sky above it. When the sky is of deep blue, so is the roof of the waiting room. When the clouds are pearly gray, so are the glass sections of the roof of the concourse.

The steel supporting beams are massive and suggest that they ought to last for centuries. The cross beams are fifteen inches or thereabout wide, and close together with a layer of cement concrete showing between. The weight of this street bridging steel is 24,000 tons. The loading per square foot on the avenue bridging is one and threefourth tons. The maximum loading per square foot on the bridging east of Seventh Avenue is five tons. There were required 160,000 cubic yards of concrete for retaining walls, foundations, street buildings and substructures. Figures given out last week show that the capacity of all the tunnels will be 144 trains per hour.

RAIN AND ANIMALS.

"Lions, tigers and all the cat tribe dread rain," said a zoo keeper. "On a rainy day they tear nervously up and down their cages, growling and trembling. We usually give them an extra ration of hot milk. That puts them to sleep.

"Wolves love a gray day of rain. They are then very cherry. Treacherous as the wolf is, no keeper need fear him on a rainy day. He is too happy to harm a fly. Snakes, too, like rain. They perk up wonderfully as the barometer falls and the damp makes itself felt in their warm cases of glass.

Rain makes monkeys glum. They are apt from instinct, when they see it through the windows, to clasp their hands above their heads and sit so for hours. That attitude, you know, makes a kind of shelter. It is the primitive umbrella."—Selected.

GLAZING, LIQUID GLASS.

In the glazing of pottery many different mixtures are used. Nearly all of them are composed of one or more of the following articles: Litharge, flint, feldspar, paris white and white clay.

Water glass or liquid glass, as it is sometimes called, is a potassium dilute, prepared by fusing together three parts of silica (sand) and two parts of potassium carbonate with a small quantity of charcoal in an ordinary reverbatory furnace. The product is soluble in four or five parts of boiling water. As it is not affected by ordinary atmospheric changes it is frequently used as a preservation of eggs. As a cement is is known as mineral lime. Other uses are in fireproof and waterproof paint, as an ingredient of soaps and in the manufacturing of earthenware.—Boston Globe.

The pieces commonly used for corning are the cheaper cuts of meat, such as the plate, rump, cross ribs and brisket, says W. H. Tomhave of the university farm of St. Paul, Minn. The meat should be cut into medium sized pieces, so that it will pack well in a jar or barrel. It should be well cooled or corned before decay sets in, or it will spoil the brine. For each 100 pounds of meat weigh out eight pounds of salt, and sprinkle a layer of about a quarter of an inch in depth over the bottom of the vessel, and then pack in a layer of meat five or six inches in thickness. On top of this put a layer of salt, followed by a layer of meat, until all the meat is packed in the vessel. Keep enough salt for a good layer over the top of the last layer of meat. After this has stood over night add for every 100 pounds of meat four pounds of sugar, two ounces of baking soda and four ounces of saltpeter, all dissolved in a gallon of warm water. When this is cool, pour it over the meat, and add enough cold water to cover the meat. Weight it down with a loose board, held in place by means of a clean stone, to keep the meat under the brine. It should be left in the brine from 35 to 40 days before it is ready for use.

GIVE KIDDIES WHAT THEY WANT

Children Should Be Shown Some Preferences In Their Whims

Naturally, we mothers wish to make the birthdays red-letter days in the calendar of our little folks; but sometimes, it seems to me, we do not give due regard to the preferences of the children. This was brought home to me when my ten-year-old boy asked if he might have just the birthday he wanted. I replied guardedly that I supposed he could, and asked his views.

For one thing, he said he didn't want a candle cake—he wanted the cake all right, but he wanted to eat it, and instead of candles he would like as many dimes as he was years old. Very good, I thought, and agreed.

Instead of a regular birthday dinner or supper, with company, he said he would prefer to have exactly what he wanted to eat for all three meals, and enjoy them in the bosom of the family.

To this I agreed with some misgiving. He ordered shrimp for breakfast, pickled pigs' feet (where he ever ate any before, I do not know) and ice cream for dinner, and cinnamon buns for supper. These were all provided.

In the afternoon he asked, as a very especial favor, to be allowed to give to a poor negro boy his last pair of straight pants, because he hated to wear them when all the others were out of commission.

He gave them away and spent the rest of the afternoon at a moving picture show, taking, with his own dimes, five of his little friends.

Tired but happy, and without any symptom of the stomach ache I had feared, he told me at bedtime that he never had had such a good time in all his life before.

This taught me the futility of attempting to make children conform to adult standards. Particularly in their amusements.

GUM ARABIC WATER FOR VERY FINE MATERIALS

Ordinary starch is not the best stiffener for fine fabrics, laces and nets since, if the starch is not well mixed, it is likely to form lumps over the material and cause trouble in the ironing.

An excellent stiffening, however, is a solution of one cupful of cold water to an ounce of gum arabic. This is put in a wide-mouthed bottle and set in a saucepan of water over a slow fire until the gum is dissolved. Then the liquid is strained through a piece of muslin.

When cold, add one gill of alcohol. This solution may be kept indefinitely, and for fine lace half a teaspoonful mixed with a cupful of cold water will be sufficient, while for heavier articles more of the thick gum water is used.

An Underskirt You Can Adjust

One of the most troublesome problems in dressing little girls is to have the petticoat the right length for the dress. This can be overcome by leaving the shoulder seam open on the waist of the skirt and cutting the back shoulder piece several inches longer than the front. This one overlap and pin with a small safety pin, and the length of the skirt can be varied from one to four inches. Even if a dress of a growing child has to be let down, a petticoat fixed in this way can be adjusted to the proper length.

Love is indestructible;
Its holy flame forever burneth;
From heaven it came, to heaven returneth.

IN MEMORIAM

MARY A. VINCENT

Mrs. Mary A. Vincent after a long and beautiful life passed away from the scenes of her early girlhood and womanhood, into that beautiful life beyond, on Monday, June 19 1911.

Mrs. Vincent was born in Picton, Canada, August 10, 1822, and at the age of ten years moved with her parents to the territory of Michigan. Here she found no fertile fields, no beautiful houses and big red barns; on the contrary she found a forest primeval wherein the bear and the wolf roamed.

In 1840 she was united in marriage to Isaac Collins, a New Jersey man by birth and a Friend by religious training and ancestry. Together with him she settled on the property purchased from the goverment and now owned by her son, Charles Collins. Here amid the great forest trees a log house was built, and a home noted for its hospitality and gentality was established.

As the years passed, a family of three sons and two daughters came to add joy to the hearts of the parents and to gladden the family hearthstone. The sons, Albert, Allen and Charles, are still residents of Macon. One of the daughters, Mrs. M. S. Gray, is a resident of Middlefield, O. and the other, Mrs. W. O. Burns, resides in Monroe, Mich.

The husband of her young womanhood dying in 1880, Mrs. Vincent continued to live on the farm until 1882, when she married Mr. Andrew Wilson and moved to Tecumseh. In this marriage she was privileged to spend seven most happy years. A period of widowhood intervening she was united in marriage to Rev. James Vincent, a graduate of Knox College, a resident of Tecumseh, and an honored member of the Michigan Congregational Association. The home life of these two aged ones was rich in its mutual love manifest refinements and christian sympathy.

After the death of Mr. Vincent she continued her residence in Tecumseh until a year ago she came to spend the last days on the old homestead, rich with memories. The ministries of her children and grandchildren were constant, unwearied and cheerful until as the crimson was dying away in the western sky on the evening of June 19, she quietly passed from the earthly to the heavenly home, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Singularly sunny and sweet in her disposition, optimistic and hopeful in her outlook upon life, capable and efficient in whatever came to her to do, thoughtful, neighborly, sympathic and unwavering in her faith in God, the memory of this mother, friend and neighbor will tarry with us as a silent beneficent influence.

The funeral services held June 21, at 2:30 p. m. at the Macon home were conducted by Rev. Weld pastor of the Tecumseh Presbyterian church of which the diseased had been a member. Accompanied by a large number of kindred and friends, her four grandsons and two grandnephews as pall bearers bore her loved form to its last resting place in the beautiful cemetery on the bank of the Macon.

WOMEN CARELESS ABOUT WATCHES

Few Know Correct Method of Keeping Timepiece in Good Order.

A SLIGHT knowledge of the works of a watch and the care it should receive would keep many good dollars in the pockets of people who for the slightest cause take their watches to the jewelers.

The man who repairs watches says: "Never get into the habit of holding the stem and winding the watch; always hold the watch and wind the stem."

And if notice is taken of the people who possess watches it will be seen in many cases they grasp it firmly by the stem and proceed to twist the watch until it is wound or until something breaks.

Another thing to be remembered is that the watch should be wound at pretty nearly the same time every day, as it is bad for a time-piece to be wound too often or allowed to run down entirely.

Many women have a habit of carrying the tiny watch in their handbag, where it knocks around, and if the bag is dropped the watch generally stops with an aggrieved tick.

If the owner has no fob, chatelaine nor chain, then it should be pinned firmly to the dress. The leather wristband is another cause of many broken springs, since the delicate hair-like wire is more than likely to break at the sharp jar it receives when the wrist comes in contact with one of the hundred things it is liable to bump against.

And, lastly, once a year the watch should be sent to the jewelers to be cleaned and regulated, and if this is done, and the watch handled carefully, there will be no trouble with its "works."

"Our milkman is surely honest."
"How do you know?"
"I overheard him tell the kitchen girl that he boils all the water he uses in his milk."

CATARRH DOCTOR

Cures Catarrh Acute or Chronic or Money Back

Would you pay one dollar to rid yourself of disgusting catarrh?

Then go to C. A. Wright & Son to-day and ask him for a Hyomei outfit and you will not engage, but you will own outright a little catarrh doctor that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the specialists on earth.

In the $1.00 box which contains the Hyomei outfit, you will find a little hard rubber vest pocket inhaler.

Into this inhaler you pour a few drops of Hyomei. Then all you have to do is breathe through the little inhaler, either through the nose or mouth, according to where the catarrh is located.

When you breathe HYOMEI you breathe a powerful yet soothing, antiseptic air, which as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane penetrates every fold and crevice and destroys the germ completely.

Stomach dosing never cured catarrh, sprays and douches always fail; and why? because they don't get where the germs are, and as catarrh is a germ disease you must kill the germs, before you can cure catarrh. HYOMEI is guarrnted by C. A. Wright & Son and by druggists everywhere to catarrh, cough, colds, croup and sore throat.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy, for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly reccommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

The human tongue is the only instrument that does not wear out with constant use.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it, E. M. Stewart, 1054 Wotfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

The famous little pills.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines, does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medicdl professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. For sale by all druggists.

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor bowel circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of [illegible] ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, [illegible] stomach, sick headache and similar [illegible]. Its ingredients will so strengthen and tone the stomach and bowel muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. [illegible], Staunton, Va., was a [illegible] sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets called "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary reliefs. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Scarf Fringe

Ball fringe is one of the stylish trimmings of the spring, and many of the new scarfs are edged with this fringe, which comes in all colors, white and [illegible] and [illegible] of beads or silk or cotton covered wooden molds. It is the last variety which is used for the spring frocks of linen and gingham, while the silk and bead ball fringe makes an effective edging for the scarf.

Until a calf is three weeks old it should be fed on new milk at as near a blood temperature as possible. It is not necessary to feed a calf more than morning and night, except in very cold weather. As a rule for the first week a calf that is to be raised by the hand should not be fed to exceed two quarts at a feed (a Jersey calf even less than that). The second week add a pint, and the third week another pint. The third week the pint may be warm sweet skimmed milk. The fourth week make the feed half new milk and half sweet skimmed milk. The fifth week make the ration four quarts at a feed of sweet skimmed warm milk, and mix a ration of meal for it consisting of ground oats, 20 pounds; wheat middlings, 10 pounds, and linseed oil meal, five pounds. Place a handful of this on top of the milk in the bucket, but don't stir it in the milk. Part of this will stay on top of the milk and part will go to the bottom, but after the calf has drunk the milk it will lick down the meal, and in doing it will secrete a lot of saliva to allow with the meal, which aids in the digestion.

USES OF THE EUCALYPTUS.

They Range From Timber to Cough Drops—Only Bark Wasted Now.

Since the introduction of the eucalyptus into California from Australia its friends have been trying to push its cultivation by making known the many uses to which it may be put. It is declared that eucalyptus wood is suited to all purposes for which hardwoods are used.

Barring the countless other uses to which it is adapted, as a means to reimburse the forest supply alone eucalyptus is invincible to the country, it is asserted. Then the eucalyptus is valuable as wind breaks for orchards and dwellings, for land reclamation, for conservation of water, improvement of climate and as natural antitoxins to malarial germs.

The beauty of the grain, the color and the texture of eucalyptus rivaling many species of oak has led to its popularity as a furniture product. Offices and residences have been finished with the wood, and cabinet-makers and wood workers throughout the country have been led to make a practical study of the eucalyptus wood as a finishing product.

Much of the fuel consumed in California is eucalyptus wood, which retails at from $10 to $14 a California cord. For fuel the fastest growing varieties are planted. Of the kinds planted for other purposes the weakling trees, limbs and waste are utilized as firewood.

In house construction, mining timber, flooring and street paving eucalyptus has assumed importance, and for miscellaneous uses, for posts, telegraph poles, railroad ties, piles, bridge timber, wagon tongues, spokes, handles for implements and tools, logs for corduroy roads and insulator pins the popularity of eucalyptus is growing.

Eucalyptus blossoms yield profit to the beekeepers. An oil is distilled from the leaves and used as a compound for many medicines. An extract from the leaves forms the foundation for cough syrups. The buds are used in making portieres and souvenirs.

Efforts are being made to find a use for every portion of the eucalyptus tree—even for the bark, which so far is waste.—Charleston News and Courier.

Nothing Was Right.

Mr. Mayburn of the state insane institute in Ogdensburg was witness of a funny incident when in charge of affairs at the asylum in Utica, N. Y. He was escorting a party of friends through the building, accompanied by a patient who was rated as almost cured. The four occupied considerable time although no one realized it until a big clock in one of the corridors was reached.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed one of the visitors, "is that clock right?"

"Of course, not," replied the patient, "It wouldn't be here if it were. This is an insane asylum."

Judge Giles Baker, of a Pennsylvania county, was likewise cashier of his home bank. A man presented a check one day for payment. He was a stranger. His evidence of identification was not satisfactory to the cashier.

"Very likely," replied the judge. "But when it comes to letting go of cold cash we have to be mighty careful."

Strength In Nature.

The loosest weed that drifts and waves under the heaving of the sea or hangs heavily on the brown and slippery shore, has a marked strength, structure, elasticity, gradation of substance; its extremities are more finely fibered than its center, its center than its roots; every fork of its ramification is measured and proportioned; every wave of its languid lines is love. It has its allotted size, and place, and function. It is a specific creature.—Ruskin: "The Seven Lamps of Architecture."

COX IN DEFENSE OF DR. H. W. WILEY

Asks for All Objections and Protests against Head Chemist.

'SPECIAL INTERESTS' OPPOSE

Resolution Offered in Congress Sets Forth that Wiley's Faithful Administration of Law Hits Certain "Interests."

Washington, July 17.—"Powerful special interests whose welfare in life attaches more to the dollar than to the health, happiness and prosperity of the people," are behind the efforts to have Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the government's pure food expert, removed, according to the preamble of a resolution introduced in the house by Representative Cox of Indiana.

The Cox resolution, introduced with the idea of disclosing the activities of these "special interests," in opposition to Dr. Wiley, directs that the secretary of agriculture and attorney general furnish the house "with all letters, records, telegrams, protests and objections," against the retention of Dr. Wiley as chief of the bureau of chemistry and against his ruling in connection with the administration of the pure food law.

"Dr. Wiley," the resolution sets forth, "has fearlessly performed his duty in the enforcement of the pure food and drug law to the benefit of the many millions of people throughout the country. In so doing he has incurred the wrath and animosity of powerful special interests throughout the country, whose welfare in life attaches more to the dollar than to the health, happiness and prosperity of the people. These selfsame interests, finding themselves thwarted in being unable to get him to deviate from a true and proper administration of the law, have persistently sought to have him removed from office by lodging protests against his retention in office."

Mr. Cox is chairman of the committee on expenditures in the treasury department.

UNION HOD CARRIER SHOT

Another Victim of Bloody Labor Warfare in Chicago.

Chicago, July 17.—Dominio Zecco, hod carrier, was shot by an unidentified assassin during a meeting of the Hod Carriers' Union in German Hod Carriers' hall, West Harrison and Green streets. This killing adds still another to the long list of victims of bloody warfare being waged in union labor circles in Chicago. Seven men, including Frank Gagildo, are under arrest.

As was the case in the killing of Vincent Altman in the Briggs House, of William (Dutch) Gentleman in Pat O'Malley's saloon, 162 North State street, the victim died without giving any material information concerning the shooting.

New York, July 17.—A four year's hunt for Charles Tindall by the New York police has just ended with his arrest on a charge of grand larceny. In 1907 he was indicted but disappeared and was thought to have gone to England, where an unavailing search was made for him.

Tindall told the police when arrested that he had never been out of New York since the day he left his employers.

BLACK HAND KILLED

Signal by Lighting Stogie Answered With Bullets.

Pennsylvania Man Shoots Agent of Society Who Calls to Receive Money.

Jeannette Pa., July 17.—On the signal of the Black Hand to turn money over to its agent, George Labarto, a wholesale fruit merchant, shot and killed Venei Ceciliano, an Italian barber, and immediately thereafter eight letters from the Black Hand society demanding money of Labarto, upon pain of death, were turned over to the police by Mrs. Labarto.

Ceciliano entered Labarto's store and stood lighting a stogie, when Labarto opened fire with a revolver from the rear of his establishment. The lighting of the stogie was the signal for Labarto to pay Ceciliano $2,000. This signal was explained to Labarto in a letter he received after his barns were burned down and several horses destroyed.

One shot carried away a little finger on a hand of Labarto's daughter, who stood in line of the firing. Ceciliano was taken to a hospital, where he died, and Labarto escaped.

STRIKERS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Fines and Jail Sentences Given Colorado Miners.

14 FEEL THE JUDGE'S WRATH

Men Are Punished for Contempt of Court in Disregarding Injunction Forbidding Violence and Intimidation.

Denver, Col., July 17. — Fourteen striking coal miners of Lafayette and Louisville, Col., members of the United Mine Workers of America, who have been on trial for the last week before Judge Greeley Whitford on charge of contempt in disregarding the court's injunction against violence and intimidation, were found guilty by Judge Whitford and received sentences ranging from imprisonment in the jail for one year to fines of $250 and costs.

Attorneys for the miners were denied the right of appeal to the supreme court, but were allowed thirty days to file a bill of exceptions.

Testimony at the trial dealt mainly with assaults upon ad intimidation of strike breakers in the northern coal fields and with statements by the union men concerning Judge Whitford, who previously had sentenced sixteen strikers to jail and later had released them.

Following Judge Whitford's first action in sentencing strikers to jail, impeachment proceedings were brought against him in the legislature, the failure of which was followed by the arrest and conviction of Mrs. Margaret Miller on charges of perjury.

The woman told the legislative committee she had acted as a go-between in giving a bribe of $3,000 to Whitford from the mine owners. She is serving a term in the Canon City penitentiary.

Charges of conspiracy growing out of the impeachment proceedings are pending against John McLennan, president of the state Federation of Labor; A. P. Ardourel, a member of the legislature from Boulder county, and several others.

AMERICA NAMED THERE

Event of 1507 Celebrated in Saint Die, France.

Minister Lebrun and Ambassador Bacon Exchange Felicitations for Two Nations.

Saint Die, July 17.—The celebration of the naming of America in this city in 1507 was continued. At 8:30 a. m. there was a reunion of the music bands at the Place de Care and at 10:30 there was a grand concert at the park. The chanting of the hymn, "America," and of the Marseillaise were conspicuous numbers of the program.

At the conclusion of the concert at noon the city officials and their guests, including Minister Lebrun, United States Ambassador Robert Bacon and Henry Vignaud, honorary secretary to the ambassador, adjourned to the Hotel De Ville, where a banquet was served.

Camille Ducoux, mayor of Saint Die, eulogized American genius and America's democratic manners, holding them up as a model for France. "We helped you to conquer and gain independence, you must help us become a great democratic state," said the speaker.

Ambassador Bacon, in responding, said that all that Americans had heard of America's godmother was pleasant, but that he was greatly surprised at the reality, and henceforth Saint Die, as was Versailles, would be an object of American veneration.

Minister Lebrun spoke in English. He thanked Ambassador Bacon for the expressions of fellowship which helped to tighten the bonds of France and America.

In the afternoon there was an aviation race.

PRESIDENT TAFT WANTED TO KNOW

Started Investigation at Time of Lorimer Election.

USE OF NAME UNAUTHORIZED

Had Secretary MacVeagh Ask Governor Deneen How It Came that He Was Reported to Favor Blonde Senator.

Washington, July 17. — That President Taft instituted an investigation two years ago to ascertain who was responsible for the unauthorized use of his name in the selection of Senator Lorimer of Illinois, was disclosed during the cross-examination of Governor Charles S. Deneen of Illinois, before the senate committee which is investigating charges of corruption in Mr Lorimer's election.

"In August, 1909," said Governor Deneen, "Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, who was in Chicago, sent for me and asked about Senator Lorimer's election. He said he wanted to ascertain for President Taft certain information about the Lorimer election and he added that the impression prevailed in Washington that I had aided in Mr. Lorimer's election. I told MacVeegh that the president himself was responsible for the election because he had sent the message which purported to pledge the support of President Taft and the administration to Mr. Lorimer. I then related to Secretary MacVeagh the substance of the telephone conversation I had with Edward Hines, in which he said that President Taft was to send a message through Senator Aldrich asking me to favor the election of Mr. Lorimer. I thought it very unusual for the president to send such a message to me through Mr. Aldrich, whom I had never seen."

MEXICO NEAR ANARCHY

Chaotic Conditions in Many Places Becoming Worse.

Officials Refuse to Turn Over Offices to Successors—Postmasters Decamp with Funds.

Monterey, Mex., July 17.—In scores of towns and cities of the country there is semblance of government; official affairs are allowed to run themselves; chaotic conditions are rapidly becoming worse. Local and district officials are refusing to turn over their offices to the new Maderists appointed.

In several towns the postmasters have decamped with the government's money. A dispatch from San Juan Bautista Tabasco, says: "The postmaster of this place has fled to the mountains to escape being killed by the Maderists who have risen in arms in this state. The postmaster, Manuel Hernandez, was asked to turn over a large sum of money to a chief of the Maderist forces, but he evaded the demand. Upon learning that the postmaster had hidden the money to prevent him from coming into possession of it the chief ordered that Hernandez be shot and killed, for which he escaped into the mountains, where he is in hiding."

FORSAKES AMERICAN TURF

Rumored that James R. Keene Is to Sell Castleton Stud.

New Work, July 17.—Has James R. Keene decided to sell his famous breeding establishment, Castleton Stud, thereby abandoning the American turf forever? Mr. Keene, who has been very ill in Europe, recently sold his entire lot of yearlings, fifty-seven in all, to Harry Payne Whitney for $45,000, and now comes the widely circulated rumor that the veteran turfman will pay no further attention to the thoroughbred industry in this country.

Mr. Keene, it is said, prefers to breed and race horses in England or France, where there are no restrictions on the sport of kings and where stakes are worth something.

BUILDINGS TIED UP

Strikes Ordered on Nineteen Apartment Houses and a Church.

Chicago, July 17.—Strikes were called on nineteen apartment buildings and one church where plumbers have contracts. Carpenters, bricklayers, lathers and building laborers were all called out. This is considered the most serious blow the United Association of Plumbers has received since the beginning of the jurisdictional fight against the International Association of Steamfitters. The Joint Arbitration association called the strike.

This was done in accordance with a resolution adopted recently by the board to stop construction work on buildings where steamfitters that are affiliated with the plumbers' organization have contracts.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS 21 MEN

Lives of Miners Snuffed Out in Pennsylvania Shaft.

DEADLY WORK OF AFTERDAMP

Few Persons in Mine at Time of Disaster—One Victim Mutilated Beyond Recognition—Other Corpses Not Marked.

Dubois, Pa., July 17. — Twenty-one lives were snuffed out by an explosion of gas in the Sykesville shaft of the Cascade Coal and Coke company. Every miner in the southern portion of the workings perished.

Few of the men were killed by the explosion itself, and from the position of the bodies found by rescuing parties it was evident that following the flash many of the men gathered up their belongings and were endeavoring to reach the outlet when overcome and suffocated by the fatal afterdamp, that invariably follows an explosion of a gaseous nature. Only one victim was mutilated beyond recognition and this was Ralph Marianna, who was identified by the brass number check worn around his neck. Most of the dead men bore no marks whatever, indicating that death came through suffocation.

To those on the surface the first knowledge of the explosion came when the safety door on the big ventilating fan was thrown open. Immediately a rescue party under direction of Fire Boss John Brown descended the 150 foot shaft to investigate. At the bottom no indication of the awful tragedy was apparent and the rescuers penetrated a mile and a half under ground before they came onto a group of six men huddled together in death. These victims were sent to the surface and eighty-three volunteer rescuers began a thorough search for more bodies, with the result that eleven more were rescued, with four still missing, but known to have been working in the devastated section, probably buried under rock and dirt, as in places the roof was tumbled down by the explosion. The government relief car with a corps of experts arrived at the scene and an investigation is being made. Theories as to the cause of the explosion are many, but the most generally accepted is that a pocket of gas was struck and ignited from a lamp, creating the conditions for the afterdamp.

The Cascade company is a Buffalo corporation and the mine is furnished with all the latest safety appliances and was regarded as a model so far as conserving the lives of the workmen.

Thousands of people surrounded the scene of the disaster all day, but the mine officials foiled the morbidly curious by sending the first six victims to their late homes and keeping the other bodies at the bottom of the shaft until night.

All the dead but three are foreigners. Usually over 250 men are at work on this shaft, but owing to it being the day after pay day and the Sunday shift, only a few were at work.

KITCHENER GOES TO EGYPT

Field Marshal Will Succeed Sir Eldon Gorst, Who Died Recently.

London, July 17.—Official announcement was made that Field Marshal Lord Kitchener has been appointed British agent to Egypt. He succeeds Sir Eldon Gorst, who died on July 12. The status of the British agent to Egypt probably will be improved, with a more important title and a higher salary attached.

Command of the British troops on the Mediterranean heretofore by a general at Malta, will be transferred to Lord Kitchener. The country expects him to crush with a strong hand the growing dissatisfaction of the natives in Egypt.

MANY GRADUATES WED

Old Idea Proves False at Wisconsin University.

Madison, Wis., July 17. — The old idead that college graduates do not marry has been proved false at the University of Wisconsin, forty-eight of its graduates having become brides or benedicts during the month of June, while ten engagements of the young men and women who claim the University of Wisconsin as their Alma Mater have just been announced.

The class of '06, which graduated five years ago, holds the record for the greatest number of marriages which was celebrated last month. It has eleven to its credit, seven participants being young men and four young women.

That the men marry more rapidly than the women is also shown by these statistics, for out of the forty-eight who married last month, thirty-three were men and only fifteen women. In nine out of forty marriages, both of the contracting parties had attended the University of Wisconsin.

Rio Grande on Rampage.

"MOTHERS' MEETING"

On July 14th, our W. C. T. Union held a "Mothers Meeting" which was very interesting and we hope profitable to the little company of young mothers who were present.

A well selected and helpful program was given by the ladies and music rendered by two of our young ladies.

The society also received a treat in having with them Mrs. Mumford, President of the Adrian Union who gave us a report of the State Convention recently held at Petosky to which our little union was unable to send a delegate. Mrs. Mumford also favored them with two beautiful songs which were given in her own simple and pleasing manner and were highly appreciated.

Light refreshments were then served after which they parted feeling that the time spent had been profitable to each of us.

A CUT IN LETTER POSTAGE

The next important reform to be inaugerated by the United States post office department will be the one cent postage on letters.

It has developed in the department during the last few months that the annual defict which was as high as $17,000,000 last year has been wiped out and that there would be a surplus of at least $1,000,000. It is also shown that an even greater saving will be effected during the coming year, when by shipping all second class matter by freight much will be saved with a delay of only a day or two.

It is claimed by the St. Louis office that it costs 9c per pound to carry mail matter from New York to St, Louis by the present system, under the new system it is estimated it will cost only half a cent at this office alone it is thought the savings will be $800,000.

COOL WEATHER PROPHESIED

Weather Bureau Predicts Temperatures Below Seasonal Average.

Washington, July 17.—The weather bureau issued the following bulletin:

"The barometic pressure is abnormally high over the interior of Canada and over Alaska and relatively over the Atlantic ocean. This pressure distribution is strongly indicative of temperatures below the seasonal average the coming week in practically all parts of the country from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic coast."

CORNER IN 3 CENT PIECES.

The Involuntary Work of a Dime Slot Machine Company.

The disappearance of the three-cent piece has for many years been a matter of mild speculation. Few persons are aware that a large proportion of the coins of this denomination which remained in circulation when the Government stopped issuing them are peacefully slumbering in sundry large fat canvas bags in the vaults of a certain electrical manufacturing company of Chicago. They are not for sale just yet.

Each of the coins is an evidence of petty larceny.

Years ago the company equipped many telephone pay stations with dime slot machines. It was supposed that they could be worked only with dimes. The three cent pieces were becoming rare and no thought was taken of them.

Hardly six months passed before one of the telephone companies discovered that the collectors were yielding a harvest of three cent pieces. Then from all over the country came similar complaints.

Each company forwarded the pieces to the manufacturing company and more or less politely asked that a corresponding number of dimes or a check for an equivalent amount be sent back in exchange.

A council was held at the office of the manufacturing company. The cost of correcting the boxes was compared with fairly trustworthy information of the number of three cent pieces in circulation. It was found that a balance was in favor of the three cents and it was decided to accept the pieces as dimes.

Gradually the impour of three cent pieces narrowed down to an intermittent current. The company seemed to have about all the pieces.

It is said that if ever the premium on three cent pieces goes high enough the coins will be offered to collectors at prices based upon the original cost to the company, plus 6 per cent a year, plus cost of storage, plus cost of guarding, plus cost of carrying the fund upon the books. Long ago the slot machines that collected them were relegated to the scrap heap.

BREIF AND BREEZY

In a sense Gifford Pinchot appears to have "come back".

Hon George Marcellus Bailey, of the Houston Post confesses that he has eaten his sixtieth cantaloupe this season, which goes a long way to explain the reason other people are complaining of the scarcity.

Government by commission is not welcomed by the "bosses", which speaks all the more loudly for the value of government by commission.

CLASS PICNIC

Friday July 14, 1911

About 25 ladies members of Mrs. Forestall's Sunday School Class and a few other friends, met at the home of Mrs. Fred Rosacrans on Friday afternoon, to honor the birthday of her mother, Mrs. M. J. Tremaine. Three o'clock saw the company assembling and the time was passed in social chat.

A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presence of the Rev. D. Stanley Shaw and family, who are spending a few days with their many friends in town. The other guests from out town were Mrs. W. E. Bigelow of Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. A. J. Bigelow of Flint. W. E. and A. J. Bigelow were former pastors of the M. E. Church in Tecumseh.

A picnic supper was served on the lawn, and as the evening shadows were falling the guests were taken to their several homes in the auto, each having spent a pleasant hour with their friends.

TAKE NOTICE

Through the persistent efforts of G. J. Ziehr, the 6:15 p. m. train coming from the south now stops for passengers at Raisin Center.

This is one of the greatest accommodations to the traveling public, as so many have had to wait from two to three hours at that point for the later train, thanks are surely due to Mr. Ziehr for the success of his efforts.

PUBLIC HEALTH

The State Board of Health of Michigan, in a late article sent out in the behalf of the public welfare, calls particular attention to the prevelence of of typhoid fever and infantile diarrhea. These are preventable dieases and every one can do their part in preventing their spread, especial mention is made of the house fly, impure water and impure milk, as causes of the diseases, the carelessness in the care of fever patients which endangers the lives of others, and spreads the disease. The co-operation of each individual in this work, would soon put these dieases to flight.

THE STORY HOUR

We made mention in a late issue of our paper, of Adrian having a Story Teller visit them to inaugurate the Story Hour for the children. A late paper from that city tells of the great success it has attained already.

At a meeting held Thursday afternoon, there were 115 children present in answer to the first announcement. They were divided into two groups and Miss Jewell entertained the older ones, while Miss Rich of the city schools talked to the little ones. The children were much pleased with the Story Hour, and there is no doubt that it will be remembered each time. A number of grown up children were present and enjoyed the hour.

This is a good thing for Tecumseh to imitate, and the children's corner in the Library building would be a delightful place to meet, Who starts the movement?

ADRIAN BOYS AS "STEER VALETS"

The Adrian Telegram has such an interesting letter from one of the young men, who are taking a trip across the Atlantic on cattle boats, by the Telegram they call themselves "Steer Valets". They are having a royal good time as well as working hard. The boys from Adrian were, Henry Hart, Leland G. Wesley and Carl A. Reed, they were each 21 (?) years old, as per record.

They had quarters in the forecastle in the extreme bow of the boat, and their bunks were wooden shelving with a straw mattress and one blanket. Nevertheless by a judicious distribution of tips they assured themselves of good food, and for awhile had a dining room by themselves, but the Captain soon put a stop to this and they had to mess with the other cattle tenders, but the good food continued. There were a large number of passengers aboard, and finding there were college boys below they invited them on deck for a dance but the crusty Captain again put in his veto as they were not college boys, but hired help. All the same they are enjoying life and having a good time.

Washington, D. C. July 10 1911.

The new Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Fisher, has rejected all of the Cunningham claims to the Alaskan coal lands. These claims were the bone of contention in the great controversy between Richard A. Ballinger, the erstwhile Secretary of the Interior, and Gifford Pinchot the Chief Forestor. Mr. Pinchot claimed that the Secretary of the interior, Richard A. Ballinger had violated the law in giving his approval to the Cunningham claims, which covered the most valuable coal lands in Alaska worth several hundred millions of dollars. The J. Piermont Morgan and Simon Guggenheim crowd had an option on these claims and if the Ballinger decision had stood the Morgan, Guggenheim crowd would have controlled all the valuable coal lands in Alaska. Under the recent decision of Mr. Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, these coal lands belong to the National Government once more.

However the Interior Department has been criticized very severely for its dilly dally method of dealing with the Alaska situation.

The Alaskans claim that they have to buy coal from other countries when there are billions of tons right by them, but which they cannot use because the Goverment has not made any provision whereby the mines can be lawfully worked by anyone.

LORIMER

The investigation of Senator Lorimer has gone so far as to involve President Taft. Mr. Edward A. Hines of Chicago who was instrumental in "putting Lorimer over," as the saying goes, stated before the Senatorial Investigating Committee that Mr. Taft gave his emphatic approval of Mr. Taft was a very pontential factor in securing Lorimer's triumph.

RECIPROCITY

It is believed that the Senate will get tired of talking and will pass the Canadian Reciprocity measure somewhere near Aug. 1. The intense heat which Washington has suffered this summer has had the effect of hurrying matters through in the National Capitol.

THE COUNTRY TELEPHONE

At a recent Grange Meeting in an Ohio town the subject was "Rural Telephone" distroying our neighborliness was throughly discussed and many interesting points brought out The subject is one of interest all over the country and the question is quite pertinent.

It is a fact all too true that the farmers wife who used to don her best attire hitch up old Dobbin and drive to a neighbors for a pleasant afternoon now takes down the receiver of her telephone calls up No. 000 and has a chat which all too often is listened to by the neighbors on the line.

The young men of the community however, are more independent and require no telephone line on the occasions when they talk with their best girl. He represents an institution as old as the hills and the girl in question will never turn away when she sees his horse and buggy coming down the road.

Prizes For Good Menus

The patient housewife who is trying cater to the needs of her family on a moderate income has to solve daily the same old problem, "What shall I cook for breakfast, for luncheon. for dinner?" The very monotony of the question gets on her nerves, and there is a lot of real difficulty in planning a wholesome variety for each day. The Chicago Record-Herald has mercifully come to the aid of puzzled house-wives by printing in each issue a set of three menus, with recipes, under the title, "Meals for a Day." What is more, it gives four cash prizes every week for the best of these menus, and women all over the country are invited to compete. The terms of award and the names of the latest winners may be found in any Monday issue of The Record-Herald. That is the day, too, when the "Martha's Management" column appears, with it's helpful hints and advice to housekeepers and cooks. Marion Harland's Sunday page also gives a groupe of selected recipes, which if cut out each week and kept in a scrap book will make a valuable collection. Women not familiar with the prize menu feature of The Record Hearald should investigate it at once. Many have found it a handy means of getting fresh ideas and securing cash for those they already have.

MACCABEE CONVENTION

The convention of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World, which is in session in Atlantic City, elected Miss Bina M. West, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme commander. Mrs. Hollister was not a candidate for re election because of poor health. Miss Frances Partridge, also of Port Huron, Mich., was elected supreme record keeper.

Homestead Fertilizer

Has the largest sale of any in this section due to the fact it is made at Detroit by a very old concern who understand our local conditions and use in the manufacture of the same only quick acting chemicals. Other fertilizers may have the analysis but a great many are in the slow acting form taking years for you to get the benefit of the same.

We have made fertilizer a study for years and information from Washingto, Lansing and different experimental stations what brands to use for certain conditions. This information is yours for the asking. If you want a greater wheat crop tell us the soil and what the conditions were this year and we will do the rest.

We also know you will be so pleased you will be back another year as so many other farmers have.

At the M E. Church Sunday morning the Rev. W. B. Hartzog of the Baptist Church, gave a most interesting sermon on Bethel the house of God; A meeting place; A resting place. He spoke of the happiness of those who have been far from home, coming back to the dear old church that had been so much to them in the days of the past. In looking over the congregation one could count over half a dozen, who were enjoying a home coming to this their Bethel. THE ONLY WAY

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly reccommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster—Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

The famous little pills.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines, does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medical professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley s Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. For sale by all druggists.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR BACKACHE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Did you ever read those magnificent trumpetlike promises in the last book of the Bible?

"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the Tree of Life!

"To him that overcometh will I give a Crown of Life!

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne! them from mother and father, it unhinges their will and moral purpose

Fear Source of Wrong Doing.

All crimes, vice, wicked unwholesome and disgraceful feelings and deeds are due to fear. The weak cashier steals because he is afraid to trust the slow laws of honesty. The liar is simply one who fears to rely upon truth. The unclean man is the man who fears his passions instead of mastering them. And all hypocrisy, double dealing, fawning sycophancy, grafting, bullying and every other kind of evil doing is simply due to the fact that the soul dares not follow the lead of honesty, truth, honor, self control and purity.

In its final analysis all wrong doing is cowardice. The drunkards harlots, thieves and thugs are the wretched weaklings who never learned moral courage. For it takes courage always to be straight, and it takes an artful dodger and a coward to be crooked.

When you give up, therefore and weep, and worry, and want to

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the welfare of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, piles, weariness, etc., that women constantly complain of. But there is no use taking "female remedies" and things of that kind until you have started your bowels to moving. You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good, mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and work at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women keep it regularly in the house and will no longer be without it, as it cured them and can be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl B. Cox, 409 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Dungan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

CHIFFON BAGS AS HAIR RECEIVERS

Dainty Receptacle For Future Puffs Adjunct to Dressing Table.

A CHIFFON bag for combings is one of the novelties offered in the toilette department and although the finished article is rather expensive, the clever needlewoman can easily copy it with little trouble and expense, and develop it quite as prettily as the bought article.

The bottom is made of cardboard cut round and about five inches in diameter. This is covered with silk and then recovered with chiffon.

The bag itself is made of two thicknesses of chiffon, the lining contrasting with the outer covering. The top of the bag is gathered around a small embroidery hoop, both the top and bottom being finished with a double frill.

A good plan would be to make a lining of thin lawn or sheer linen, attaching it to the opening of the bag with a few stitches so that it could readily be taken out and laundered at any time.

A loop of silk cord is attached to one side of the bag by which to hang it up.

This bag could be made of almost any material, silk, ribbon or even lawn, organdy, pique, linen, etc, but made in chiffon and with a detachable lining of lawn it is novel in appearance and absolutely clean at the same time.

This is much more convenient than the small glass or china hair receiver which stands on the average girl's dressing table and which has to be emptied of its contents so often. By placing the hair directly in the large bag of chiffon there is not the likelihood of its being scattered in the process of removing the strands of hair from one receptacle to another.

CHANCE TO GET ELECTRICITY

For Use on Farms in Lighting and in Running Machines—Sites in New England.

We hear considerable about waste or barren land in the eastern states says the Rural New Yorker. This land once produced good crops of grain and was a live factor in supplying food for the people. Now much of this land is idle, possibly used for rough pasture, but of little use to the world. We must remember that along with this land other forms of industry have gone out of service in New England, during the old days the hill towns were full of fine water powers, at which small mills or factories were located. With the decline of farming in these section came abandonment of these powers, and many of them are now approaching ruin. There is such a power in a Connecticut town, and the following description of it is given by "J. E. H.":

"The water goes under instead of over the dam. The fall is a ledge about 15 feet with a dam of logs about four feet high making a fall of 19 feet. The cause of this leak and consequently the loss of power is neglect. It has been in one family since it was built. It was left by father to son; the last owner had no children. He got old and feeble, and could not do much, and did not feel like hiring help. He died within a year, and the mills are left to his wife an old lady. In a few years there will be nothing to tell that it was a mill site but the ledge. There are within a radius of 10 miles from where I am five dams where there have been mills in times gone by; one of them was used 10 years ago, but is is down now. The cause of some of those going down is the falling off in grain growing and the steam sawmills that have left the country pretty free from timber. There are some fine places for water-power in sections of the country, and no one sufficiently interested to consider using them. Surely their usefulness is not wholly gone."

It seems a shame that these fine water powers should be lost, continues the Rural New Yorker, when there are so many uses to which electric power can be applied. With proper capital and fair neighborly spirit, such a power as is here described could be made to light and heat a dozen or more farmhouses and turn the wheels of most ordinary machines. While a bitter fight is being made to prevent corporations from stealing water privileges on the Pacific coast, these old mill sites in the East are being abandoned. It is a shame that they are permitted to go.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

STRIPED MATERIALS IN VOGUE THIS SEASON

Stripes and bordered fabrics are the correct materials for spring, according to the decrees of fashion. Of the two the striped patterns are the newest, since the bordered materials have been used all winter, and many novel designs are being sent out by modistes for the making of new frocks in striped silks, pongee, mohair, and all of the lightweight dress goods for the coming months.

In the majority of these the stripes are of black, lending themselves to the black revers, cuffs and pipings of silk and satin which are so much in vogue this spring, and black trimmings are in fact used on the dresses even when the stripe is of the same color as the material, but in a lighter or darker shade.

To cut a gown in striped goods requires great care, since it is no longer fashionable to have straight lines. The body of the dress and skirt must of course be cut straight, but panels of stripes running across are shown, some on the front, some on the sides of the frock, while bias cutting is also seen in some of the new models with peasant sleeves.

The panels down the side of the skirt are cut from a straight piece of goods, and are edged with a band of black silk.

A lining pattern will serve to make a vest of white silk, which is simply finished with a frill of lace, and the revers of black edged with white silk to match this vest. The side pieces of the blouse and the sleeves are cut in one piece, as are most of the gowns for spring, while a strip of the material with the stripes running across goes from under the revers to the black cuffs of the sleeve.

On the gowns which are cut in semi-princess fashion, and made slightly short waisted, the strips of material with the stripes running across, run apron fashion up the front of the gowns and continue above the waist line, being held in place with buttons.

If wide striped materials are used, a good deal of black or of plain materials should be introduced, but if the narrow pin stripe effects are chosen the only contrast need be a touch of black piping on the sleeves or in the blouse.

Among the materials in which this pin stripe is shown are serges, voiles, cashmeres, poplins, challis, henrietta, marquisette, percales, linens and printed pongees, all of which will be vogue for the spring season.

Of these the striped voiles are the newest, together with the white serges with pin stripes, which are being used for many of the exclusive gowns.

In the new bordered materials, foulards are the most popular, and indeed, the designs in these are well worth the admiration which they win.

Some of the black ones have point lace designs in cream along the edge, that are so frost-like and delicate that one must touch them to be convinced it is not real lace, while others have French designs of blurred flowers and Persian patterns to delight the feminine heart.

MANY NOVEL FLOWERS FOR SUMMER HATS

Every conceivable flower of the wild or cultured variety seems to have been pressed into service for the hats for summer wear. While those for early spring for the most part show quills, ribbons or velvet trimming, the summer hats will be laden with a wealth of blossoms.

Dandelions are among the new comers, and bunches of these yellow blossoms, feathery seed balls and powdered foliage form very effective trimming. On a smart French hat there were grouped dandelions with various kinds of weeds, wild flowers and grasses. This does not sound alluring as the trimming of a hat, but actually the effect is unusual and pret-

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. WHO IS TO BLAME FOR SERVANT PROBLEM?

HAVE we, in all our search for the so-called higher things of life, in our quest for beauty, or fame, or fortune, or political heights, lost the ability to run our homes?

Anders Zorn, the noted Swedish painter, says we have, and adds that the present so-called servant problem is entirely "up to the women" themselves.

"Swedish women," he says, "still believe that domestic knowledge—the good housewifely rules—are virtues; but I take it that the American woman looks upon domesticity as entirely out of her province, and that such arts are relegated to servants and that these very servants are now considered a great 'problem.'

"The problem does not, according to my idea, deal with the servant at all; it is the problem of the housewife herself, who, in her contempt for housekeeping, reflects her incompetency and her attitude to it on the servant.

"Then she prates of the wretchedness of the servant in the fulfilling of her duties. All good servants are made good servants by good housewives. And the fact that they are almost universally incompetent in America shows that the woman at the head of the household is in the same condition regarding her duties."

Is he right? Are women to blame for the incompetency and the untidiness of the shiftless array of servants who drift in and out of employment offices and houses?

Are we to blame for the conditions that are yearly driving more families from their homes to seek the mechanical conveniences of flats?

To a great extent it would seem that we are, for we have built up the theory that housework is menial. We have made its performance a social barrier that cannot be done away with.

To say of a young wife that "she does her own work" carries with it a social stigma, doesn't it? Do we applaud her household ability? Do we consider the making of delicious biscuits and pies and cakes an art?

No, of course, we don't. And for that very reason the capable girls who might make good servants go into mills, offices and shops, and the incapable ones, ah, so many, rush into domestic service because there is always a demand for them.

Of course, there is really no need for the woman whose husband has a good income to do anything about her house. But does she know how to do it?

Is she conscious of what is lacking in the system which her maids use? Is she able to roll up her dainty sleeves and show the cook how to do something which that worthy does not understand? Can she give a practical illustration to the untidy girl of exactly how a room should be cleaned and a bed made?

Those are the things that count. Those and kindness. And these are what Mr. Zorn says we lack—have lost, in fact, through desire to get away from the home and plunge into the hurly-burly of outside life.

Oysters a la Villeroi

This very delicious way of preparing oysters to serve as the fish course at dinner is very dainty in appearance, resembling croquettes, and very toothsome to the taste, far better than the majority of croquettes. Put half an ounce of butter and one cupful of cream in a saucepan and when quite hot, not quite boiling, put in three dozen oysters. Let it boil up, then instantly remove the oysters with a strainer ladle and place them on a sieve to drain. Rub one heaping tablespoonful of flour smooth in a little cream and add to the liquor in the saucepan, with two well-beaten eggs, salt, pepper, cayenne, a dash of mace or nutmeg; cook a minute or two and put in the oysters for an instant before removing from the fire. Allow to cool; then join the oysters in twos and threes, if small, having them well masked with the thick sauce; dip in crumbs, in egg and in crumbs again and fry a rich brown in very hot fat.

RADIUM AND GEOLOGY.

The properties of radium have consequences of enormous importance to the geologist as well as to the physicist or chemist. In fact, the discovery of these properties has entirely altered the aspect of one of the most interesting geological problems, that of the age of the earth. Before the discovery of radium it was supposed that the supplies of heat furnished by chemical changes going on in the earth are quite insignificant; and that there was nothing to replace the heat which flows from the hot interior of the earth to the colder crust. Now when the earth first solidified it only possessed a certain amount of capital in the form of heat, and if it is continually spending this capital and not gaining any fresh heat it is evident that the process cannot have been going on for more than a certain number of years, otherwise the earth would be colder than it is. Lord Kelvin in this way estimated the age of the earth to be less than 100,000,000 years. Though the quantity of radium in the earth is an exceedingly small fraction of the mass of the earth, amounting according to the determination of Profs. Strutt and Joly, to only about five grams in a cube whose side is 100 miles, yet the amount of heat given out by this small quantity of radium is so great that it is more than enough to replace the heat which flows from the inside to the outside of the earth."—Prof. J. J. Thompson, quoted by

Milk producers who know it best concede that alfalfa is an invaluable feed in the dairy, closely akin to wheat bran in results, and usually much less expensive, according to Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa." In the average small town or city there is about one cow for every 10 or 15 people. Therefore, in a town of 1,000 population there will probably be 75 or 100 cows. If alfalfa will increase the quantity of their milk and butter fat, giving a product at a lower cost than the concentrated foods, it should be more used. But as yet it is not generally used, because it is not understood and appreciated.

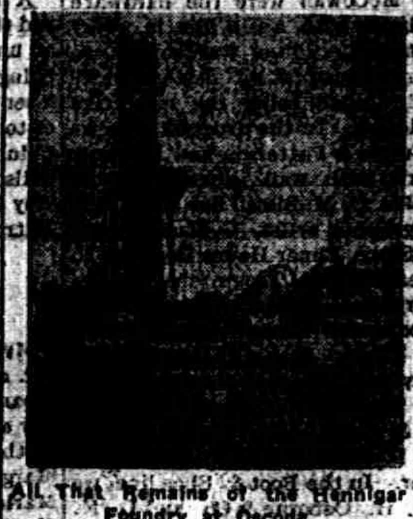
FIRE DISTRICT IS DESOLATE

Nothing Remains to Cheer Former Residents.

Death List Now Totals Five—Between 800 and 900 Residents Are Still Camping on Fire Zone—Big Fund in Charge of State Treasurer Sleeper.

Bay City, Mich., July 17.—With no materials to rebuild their burned homes and only the food supplies sent there by the various relief committees to subsist on, between 800 and 900 residents who lost their all in the fire that swept the villages of Oscoda and Au Sable still remain in the stricken towns.

Homer Buck of the state fire relief commission has received a telegram from Capt. Randall of the M. N. G., who is temporarily in charge of the fire zone, stating that all food supplies were exhausted.



All That Remains of the Hennigar Foundry at Oscoda.

As there is no prospect of employment for the burned out householders in the fire district, for some time at least, they are being urged to go elsewhere.

Early Vote on Reciprocity.

Ottawa, Ont. (Special).—A session of parliament to last from three to six weeks followed by a general election with reciprocity as the issue, is a forecast generally accepted by both liberals and conservatives who are returning to the capital for the adjourned session. It is understood that the government will mark the resumption of the session by again putting the reciprocity bill before the house and that the conservatives will resume their filibuster to prevent a vote. It is well known that Premier Laurier wants an election soon and will seize the first reasonable opportunity to precipitate one.

Over Four Hundred Fire Victims.

Toronto, Ont. (Special).—Press representatives returning from the fire swept mining district at Porcupine and Cochrane place the loss at $3,310,000. There have been 64 bodies recovered and a number are still thought to be in the lake.

One hundred ond sixty men are missing from the Dome mine, and with others reported missing, the total will reach 457, mostly foreigners, who made for the woods when the fire began to rage.

The area of the fire as something like eight miles wide and 50 miles long. Rain throughout the district has put out all fires.

CAN SPEND 10 CENTS A VOTER

Drastic Campaign Publicity Legislation Adopted

SENATOR CAN "BLOW" $10,000

Candidate For Representative Is Limited to $5,000—All Promises of Political Jobs Must Be Made Public. Publicity Must Also Be Given to Primary Campaign Contributions.

Washington (Special).—The most drastic campaign publicity legislation ever passed in either branch of congress was adopted by the senate practically without a dissenting vote. Using the pre-election publicity bill passed by the house of representatives as a basis, the senate constructed a proposed law with the following important features:

No candidate for the senate or house shall spend in the election more than a sum equal to 10 cents for each voter in his district or state.

No senatorial candidate shall spend a total of more than $10,000 in the primary and general election; and no candidate for the house shall spend more than $5,000.

Publicity must be given to all primary campaign contributions and expenditures.

All general election expenses must be made public before the election, bginning 15 days before election, and making publication each six days until election.

All promises of political jobs must be made public. The bill further makes it illegal to promise political places to secure election support; or to aid in influencing the election of any member of a state legislature.

The bill will be the subject of probably prolonged conference between the two houses. It originated in the house, as a part of the Democratic legislative program and was designed to require the publication of expenditures before election, which is not required by the existing publicity law.

Washington (Special).—Three witnesses were heard Monday by the senate committee which is investigating charges of corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois. They were William M. Burgess and Henry Turrish of Duluth and Herman H. Heittler of Chicago.

The testimony of Mr. Burgess was the most important. He related a conversation which he said he had with Christian F. Weihe, secretary of the Edward Hines Lumber Co. of Chicago, on a train en route from Duluth to Virginia, Minn., March 6 last, in which Mr. Weihe is represented to have said that a "jackpot" fund of $100,000 had been raised to elect Lorimer, and that he (Weihe) had contributed $10,000. Weihe is a brother-in-law of Edward Hines, who is charged with soliciting contributions to the alleged $100,000 Lorimer fund.

"Mr. Weihe told me," said Mr. Burgess, "that Senator Lorimer had not spent any of his own money, but there was a jackpot of $100,000 raised. Mr. Weihe said he knew what he was talking about because he contributed $10,000."

Rain Saves Crops.

Lansing, Mich., July 18.—"The rain which fell over the entire lower peninsula Saturday and Sunday has been worth fully $2,000,000 to the farmers of the state," said President J. L. Snyder of the Michigan State Agricultural college.

"Conditions were fast becoming serious and the rain has saved crops in many counties. Not only the corn, potatoes, beans and other things of that kind, but the pasture lands have been rescued from the drought which had prevailed. The figure of $1,000,000 certainly would not cover the amount which the showers have saved for the farmers."

OSBORN ADDRESSED EDITORS

Says Reciprocity Pact Is Forerunner of Union of American Nations.

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—Members of the National Editorial Association of the United States are in attendance here for the annual convention, which opened at the Hotel Pontchartrain Tuesday morning.

In his address of welcome the governor outheralded reciprocity by declaring that the new trade relations that are about to be established with Canada are simply a prelude to a union of nations from the North Pole to the Isthmus of Panama.

While Governor Osborn was very careful to avoid using the word annexation, Justice R. F. Sutherland of Toronto, a member of the high court of justice, who addressed the convention, evidently had the Osborn theme in mind when he spoke. While mildly admitting the usefulness of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada, Justice Sutherland declared that these would not and could not be the forerunner of annexation.

"Canada," he said, "will always be independent, and never for a moment would consent to annexation."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Terse Chronicle of Happenings of the World During Past Week.

Paris—The Matin's correspondent at Palmero wires that there have been 2,300 deaths from cholera in Palermo alone since May.

Butte, Mont.—Louis Adler, a pioneer business man of this place, started to run when two robbers entered his place of business and was shot through the head and instantly killed.

Port Jefferson, L. I.—Following the killing of her five-year-old son, William, who was run down by an automobile, Mrs. Samuel Sills Wood became the mother of twin boys who died a few hours later.

Butte, Mont.—Willie and Fred Gagioni, aged 13 and 11 years, sons of a widow, found a stick of dynamite. Willie hit it with a hammer and was instantly killed. His body was torn to pieces. Fred is still alive, but injured so badly that he will die.

Shafter, Tex.—The Rio Grande is out of its banks at a number of places below here. The town of Candelaria and Presidio are inundated. The town of Guadalupe on the Mexican side of the upper stream was flooded and many houses washed away.

Dubois, Pa.—Twenty-one miners were killed in an explosion in the shaft of the Cascade Coal & Coke company's mine at Sykesville, nine miles from here. The explosion occurred at 9:30, but it was after midnight before the extent of the disaster was known. All of the dead but three are foreigners. The explosion was slight as evidenced by the small damage done in the mine, but the deadly after-damp is responsible for most of the deaths.

FOREIGN.

St. Petersburg—Count Witte, who conducted the peace negotiations for Russia with Japan, is about to publish a pamphlet giving his account of the negotiations. In it he charges President Roosevelt with having done all in his power to help the Japanese.

St. Petersburg—The foreign office has announced that Baron Rosen would not return to his post as Russian ambassador in Washington. G. Bakhmetieff is the nominee now in view for the American mission, but his appointment will await the return in the fall of Foreign Minister Sazanoff, who is now in the Vosges region in search of health.

Tokio—Serious friction is believed to exist in high political circles in consequence of the rivalry between the military and naval parties, headed by Prince Yamagata and Admiral Yamamoto respectively. The former demands a standing army in Corea and the latter the expenditure of 200,000,000 yen as the irreducible minimum for naval expansion. Prince Katsura, the premier, is seeking to effect a compromise.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Washington — Postmaster General Hitchcock has designated the main postoffices in the cities of New York, Chicago, Boston and St. Louis as postal savings depositories. They will begin to receive deposits on August 1.

Washington—Senator Terrell of Georgia ceased to be a member of the United States senate at 11:20 a. m. Monday. Acting on his telegraphic request to Vice-President Sherman the senate ordered that Mr. Terrell's name be stricken from the roll of the senate.

Washington—The center of population in the United States is 4 1-4 miles south of Unionville, Monroe county, Indiana, according to a census bureau announcement. Since 1900, when it was six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind., it has moved 31 miles westward and seven-tenths of a mile northward.

Washington (Special).—The Stanley special committee, which is investigating the United States Steel corporation, will go to New York July 27 to stay for several weeks. Hearings will be held daily in that city and it is expected J. Pierpont Morgan and other men of prominence in the financial world will be called as witnesses. Mr. Morgan is expected home from Europe about August 1.

Washington—As the result of an unfavorable report to the state department on conditions in Mexico close to the Arizona border, the war department has ordered the four troops of cavalry in Nogales to remain there until the situation clears. The detachment had been ordered to Fort Huachuac, and was to leave Nogales this week, but the department quickly changed its plans on the receipt of disquieting news.

Washington—The new treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and Japan went into operation this week, replacing the old treaty negotiated during Secretary Gresham's administration. The important point of difference between the two conventions lies in the omission from the new convention of the paragraph in the old relating to immigration restrictions, which was objectionable to the Japanese, the United States relying upon the honor of Japan to carry out the spirit of existing undertakings which prevent the departure of Japanese coolies to America.

A Near Nature Return.

He Said "Damm"

It is recorded of Rev. L. Osborn Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church of Newark, N. J., that in a newspaper letter, on the many trusts that are agitating the community, the ice trust, the milk etc. come under condemnation. He said, I have been taught that Damm is a good scriptural word, not to be used unadvisedly or lightly, but reverently, advisedly, soberly and in fear of God, like matrimony or a blue pill, and so I say advisedly and soberly. Damm the ice trust and the milk trust and the farmers and the cows and eyerbody and everything that is making this hot weather an excuse for boosting the price of ice and milk.

The Sugar trust may be faulty, the Standard Oil not all that could be desired, but they don't conspire to kill sick babies. Thank God the undertakers have not raised the price of coffins, nor the doctors raised their price, and there are persons who still minister to the sick and poor without money and without price. I hope they will repent in time to escape that place, where they would give their moral souls for the price of iced milk.

"Forigner's are impressed by the peculiar attractiveness of American women," writes Grace M. Gould in the August Woman's Home Companion. "They say that, next to their own women, it is the American Woman who charms the most.

"Now why is this so?

"It is because of the infinite variety of the American woman, which pleases the eye and holds the imagination. When any large number of women are under observation, attractiveness must imply constant change, for human nature soon tires of what is monotouous. If the first, last, and every woman that the foreigner saw all looked and dressed alike, the first might well be the last for any interest he might feel in them.

"His experience is this: he meets the tall and stately wife of his club friend whose poise and elegance are her conspicuous characteristics; next, he takes in to dinner a fluffy, confiding young creature without any poise at all. Later, perhaps, he meets a 'bluestocking' girl, who looks at him critically through her lorgnette; and from her he turns to a demure, mouse-like maiden, whose infrequent gaze is soulful, and who says it so intently! The flirtatious girl and the athletic girl come in their turn, and he finds it all exhausting and bewildering.

"Yet he remembers distinctly each one of those American types, because each one, by her dress and her manner has emphasized her own identity."

Deserve No Pity.

I've never had any pity for conceited people, because I think they carry their comfort about with them.—George Eliot.

Business Change For Britton

Peoples' Bank of Britton Owned by Frank J. Temple & Sons Has Absorbed the State Savings Bank Owned by Adrian Parties.

This week saw the completion of a business deal that will materially effect Britton when the Peoples' Bank owned by F. J. Temple & Sons, purchased the State Savings Bank also buying the buildings and fixtures.

The building is a new brick one built by the State Bank and the fixtures are all of the best.

It also contains a fine vault and everything that goes to make an up to date bank building. Harry J. Temple has been in charge since the first inception of the bank occupying the position of cashier. He has more than made good since holding this position and has over 300 depositors before consolidating with the new bank. The affairs of the State Bank are placed in the hands of Mr. H. Temple to close up their business. We congratulate Mr. Temple on being able to make this satisfactory deal as Britton was hardly able to sustain two banks. This leaves a clear field for the Peoples' Bank.

A Turkish Love Story.

A Turk knocked at his beloved's door, and a voice answered from within. "Who is there?"

Then he answered, "It is I."

Then the voice said, "This house will not hold thee and me."

And the door was not opened.

Then went the lover into the desert, where there is nothing but Allah, and fasted and prayed in solitude.

And after a year he returned and knocked again at the door.

And again the voice asked, "Who is there?"

And he said, "It is thyself."

And the door was opened to him.

D'Orsay and His Tailor.

"D'Orsay, the Complete Dandy," as Mr. Tiegnmouth Shore calls him in his biography, was fully aware of the value of his patronage to the tailors. When clothes arrived for him, in the most mysterious manner banknotes had found their way into the pockets. Once, when this accident had not happened, D'Orsay bade his valet return the garments with the message that "the lining of the pockets had been

CHICAGO STREET

In The Days of 62

In picking up an old Tecumseh Herald, bearing date Feb. 27, 1862, we were struck with the peculiar advertising everything running along, one ad after the other like common reading matter. Display ads were noticable by their absense, and head lines were quite peculiar.

Among the Dry Goods Stores B. J. Bidwell has a long ad also Richard C. Moore with groceries and crockery in in connection. In clothing stores A. Hood & Co. and Geo. Heesen advertise freely. Strong & Drew and Curtis & McCowan were the hardware merchants with a full line in every department. Two warehouses are also mentioned J. C. Satterthwaite and E Tindall being the respective proprietors. In the druggist line we find Curtis & Patterson and Fisher & Hendrix with wall paper, Books & etc., Mrs. C. M. Bissell has her ad as photographic artist, G. T. Ketchum Book Store, Elmer Hause Dentist, B. F. Deaves, Pro. Tecumseh Woolen Factory, S. H. Niblack Livery Stable and barn for farmers horses, John Gish Livery Stable, Henry Mang, Bakery and all kinds of candy and toys, Tecumseh Savings Bank, P. Bills & Co. Dealers in Exchange & Coin P. Bills President, L. Lilley cashier. In the Boot & Shoe line we find J. H. Osborne & Co. and L. M. Doty and Henry Nyland. Each one doing custom work and repairing with Eastern goods at each store, David VanTyne had a Furniture store with a repair shop in connection. A. James & Co. were in the Grocery & Provision line, Robbins & DeWolf carried a fine line of Jewelry, Clocks etc.

To one who knew Tecumseh in these days, they can recall all the names and places mentioned.

The local matter was decidedly brief, there being less than a dozen paragraphs.

The Tecumseh R. R. Time Table read:

Going South
Express Freight	7:40 a. m.
Mail and Express	1:11 p. m.
Going North
Mail and Express	6:50 a. m.
Accommedation	6:10 p. m.

There was much telegraphic news from the seat of war, which at that time was the all engrossing theme of discussion and was watched for with great interest.

The following clipped from a Herald of 1862 shows that the election of a woman mayor is no new thing.

A Woman Elected Mayor.—At a late local election in Oskaloosa, Iowa there was but one candidate presented to be voted upon. The "boys" did not like him, and were bound to have another candidate, and so, more in a spirit of fun than any otherwise, they nominated Mrs. Nancy Smith. On the day of election, and to the surprise of everybody, when the votes were counted Mrs. Nancy Smith had twenty-one majority over the regular candidate for Mayor. So Oskaloosa has actually elected a Mayoress, who will, we presume, preside over the official destinies of that city for the ensuing year.

LENAWEE CO ALL RIGHT

H. W. Collingwood of the Rural New Yorker, who was in Adrian and gave the address on Home Comers Day, has quite an article on Lenawee Co. in one of his late issues. He says "that it would be hard to find a more prosperous farming section than that of Lenawee County for the most part it is fit for a garden.

Adrian is the center of this garden spot, and the cream of the fat soil pours into her lap."

We are glad that he can pay such a tribute to our county and feel proud that he can says nothing but what can be verified by anyone, who visits this section of the country, and while he pays a great tribute to Adrian and that justly, we are sure that had he visited Tecumseh he would have been pleased with its beautiful surroundings also.

With the twenty-first renewal of the Merchant's and Manfacturer's stake about three weeks away there is greater difference of opinion as to the result of the classic of the trotting turf than at this time of other years. The $1,000 fixture of the Detroit Driving Club will be raced at the state fair grounds on August 2 and so far there has been no strong sentiment in favor of any single entry In fact good words are said of more than a half dozen of them and as these trotters seem of about the same speed the outlook for a spectacular contest is much better than in other renewals.

Generally the middle of July has seen one of the M. & M. field show 2:8 ability so that it overshadowed the rest of the field. This time reports have been received of miles in from 2:08 to 2:10, by ten of the candidates, and at the training tracks the remaining eleven are said to be coming up to expectations. All of this points to a race that will be the greatest of the year and perhaps the most notable of of the many hard fought finishes that have served to make this the peer of trotting events.

The Detroit Driving Club will give its patrons many features in addition to the M. & M. this year, and some of them should be just as hotly contested The Chamber of Commerce pacing stake, the rich futurities which assemble the blue-blooded colts, the 2:04 pace the 2:11 trot, all of which are stakes, and in addition the great free-for-all events and about a dozen late closing purses which will bring all the other campaigners round off the program and make the blue-ribbon week —July 31 to August 4—unusually attractive.

Homestead Fertilizer

Has the largest sale of any in this section due to the fact it is made at Detroit by a very old concern who understand our local conditions and use in the manufacture of the same only quick acting chemicals. Other fertilizers may have the analysis but a great many are in the slow acting form taking years for you to get the benefit of the same.

We have made fertilizer a study for years and information from Washington, Lansing and different experimental stations as to what brands to use for certain conditions. This information is yours for the asking. If you want a greater wheat crop tell us the soil and what the conditions were this year and we will do the rest.

We also know you will be so pleased you will be back another year as so many other farmers have.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's Kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St. Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly recommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

The human tongue is the only instrument that does not wear out with constant use.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1054 Wolfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

Experience often comes in wholesale lots, but we pay the retail price.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines, does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medical professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. For sale by all druggists.

OBITUARY

The death of Mrs. Chas. A. Pocklington was one of the saddest that has occured in this community, in many a day, an illness extending over a period of 5 months. All that medical and surgical skill could do was of no avail, until death relieved her from intense suffering, Thursday moning, July 13.

Sara Travis was born in Macon, July 23 1858, where her early life was spent, receiving her education in the Macon school, later teaching in the district school in Macon and Ridgeway. On Feburary 7 1878, she was united in marriage to Charles A. Pocklington settling on the home farm, where they have resided until her death.

To this union was born one son, Guy, who with the husband and two grandchildren, Master Ronald and little Dora Marjorie, numerons relatives and many sorrowing friends are left to mourn departure. She was a consistant member of the M. E. church at Ridgeway where she was a constant attendant, a faithful worker, ever having the good of the church at heart.

Hers has been a life worth living as a kind and affectionate wife, as a mother unwearied in earnest zeal and thoughtful care for the child of her love she had no superior. She was the idol of the grandchildren of her home, of whom she was an almost constant companion.

As a neighbor she was kind and sympathetic ever ready to lend assistance in time of need, and while we weep we have the consoling thought that she died in the faith, and is now at rest with the dear ones that have preceded her to the Home of the Blessed. The remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Ridgeway Saturday, July 15 1911.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who assisted in the care of our loved one. To those who gave such beautiful flowers to the pastor for such consoling words to Mr. Palmer for the music so fittingly chosen. To all we tender our thanks.

Soft Toned Bells of China.

The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manufacture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a marvelous softness and mellowness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious.—Consular Reports.

Sample Helps Frail Women

So many women are dragging out weary lives just because their digestive organs are weak. The result is poor circulation, nervousness and the verge of invalidism. It is often very unnecessary and the woman's own fault.

The first thing to do is to look to the welfare of your bowels. There the trouble usually lies. All physicians know that a large percentage of women are habitually constipated, and from this results indigestion, piles, weariness, etc., that women constantly complain of. But there is no use taking "female remedies" and things of that kind until you have started your bowels to moving. You will find that when the bowels move regularly once or twice a day all your petty ills will disappear. Take a good mild laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for awhile and you will find yourself rapidly getting better and stronger, your bowels will regulate themselves and work at stated times, and then your headaches and dizziness will disappear. Don't take strong cathartic pills or salts, but just such a mild and pleasant-tasting remedy as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You can obtain a bottle of your druggist for fifty cents or one dollar, and either size may be enough to permanently cure you. Thousands of women keep it regularly in the house and will no longer be without it, as it cured them and can be used with safety by every member of the family, down to the youngest child, but if you have never used it take the advice of Mrs. Earl B. Coe, 436 Twenty-fifth street, Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Ellen Dungan, Muncie, Ind., and send to Dr. Caldwell for a free trial bottle, as they did, and learn for yourself what it will do in your own case. That it will cure you, as it did them, there is no doubt.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Teach Children To Pay Debts

I HAVE often noticed in families where the oldest sister is out in the world working for her living that the younger members seem to think she is a sort of convenient borrowing fund, which they may draw on whenever their allowances run low.

The best part of this borrowing fund, they think, is that the nickles and dimes taken out do not have to be returned.

Almost every older sister who has a steady income each week through the work of her hands or brain is beset with just such trouble. Her younger brothers and sisters persistently ask her to lend them "Oh, just a quarter, and I'll pay it back when mother gives me next week's allowance," but, like other things, these "never come back."

Now this isn't the fairest thing in the world. No sister simply because she has more funds than any of the younger ones should be expected to gladly hand out small change which she has earned by hard work and long hours at the typewriter, the cash books, behind the counter or at the machine.

And I know that there are many girls whom the youngsters of the family despoil of nickles, dimes and quarters which deprive her of the little luxuries which she otherwise might have.

If the parents would make it a point of honor with the smaller children to always pay back their debts it would prevent much unnecessary friction in the household, and the small brothers and sisters would learn the responsibility of money if they knew they had to keep within their allowance when spending money on candy and "movies" and the rest of the things which make pocket money take wings.

The sister who lends the money could easily make it understood that if she lends she expects to be repaid, even though the young ones call her a "mean thing," stingy, miser, and so on.

But tell me, little brothers and sisters, why is she stingy and a miser because she wants that which is hers? She earned the money and probably has to pay for her board and clothes, car-fare and lunch money out of the pay envelope which she receives at the end of the week.

The little ones are provided for by father and mother and each receives his or her share of pocket money, which is probably quite sufficient for the needs of every day at school and when playing after school hours.

The father or mother, then, should be the one to receive demands for "oh, just a nickel," and not the working sister who is supporting herself.

If the mother—and it is generally the mother who attends to the daily needs of the children—will but show the children that their honor is concerned in the paying back of small sums they borrow from sister, she will teach them a lesson which will be of lasting good throughout life.

It isn't only for the future good of the children that I recommend this course, but for the present peace of mind of the eldest sister.

THE FRIENDS OF BRUGES.

That the "friends of Bruges" have formed themselves into a society to protect the grand old city from vandals is an excellent piece of news, for their intention is to buy up every old house as it is put on sale and to let it or make use of it for purposes not requiring any serious modification in the architecture.

Bruges is, in the opinion of many, the most beautiful and suggestive of Europe's Old World towns so long as it be left as it stands now for the admiration of future generations and so long as its stones will hold together. To wield the pickaxe there is every whit as cruel as it would be to lacerate the consecrated masterpieces which hang on museum walls.

Beautiful towns should be protected along with other works of art, and if for sanitary or other causes they become uninhabitable there is no reason why they should be inhabited. People must be made to pitch their tents elsewhere and the masonry they have vacated may be turned to other uses or simply put on one side and preserved for archaeological or artistic study—The Queen.

HOW TO BECOME INVISIBLE.

A Sample of the Mummery Used In Ancient Witchcraft.

"Begin this operation on a Wednesday before the sun rises, being furnished with seven black beans. Take next the head of a dead man. Place one of the beans in his mouth, two in his eyes and two in his ears. Then make upon the head the character of the figure which here follows. (Omitted.) This done, inter the head with the face toward heaven, and every day before sunrise for the space of nine days water it with excellent brandy.

"On the eighth day you will find the cited spirit, who will say unto you: 'What doest thou?' You shall reply: 'I am watering my plant.' He will then say: 'Give me that bottle; I will water it myself.' You will answer by refusing, and he will again ask you, but you will persist in declining until he shall stretch forth his hand and show you the same figure which you have traced upon the head suspended from the tips of his fingers. In this case you may be assured that it is really the spirit of the head, because another might take you unawares, which would bring you evil, and, further, your operation would be unfruitful. When you have given him your vial he will water the head and depart. On the morrow, which is the ninth day, you shall return and shall find your beans ripe. Take them, place one in your mouth and then look at yourself in a glass. If you cannot see yourself it is good. Do the same with the rest or they may be tested in the mouth of a child."

ESKIMO WIDOWERS.

Six Weeks Is the Limit They Will Wait Before Remarrying.

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have lapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's kill. She dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes. On a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

Fear, the Greatest Enemy of Life

THE greatest enemy to life is fear.

Fear is akin to death. It is the breath, influence, and forerunner of death. So it is to be fought at all times with all one's might.

The effect of fear on the body is injurious. It will stop the process of indigestion. It dries the juices and locks up the normal secretions. It paralyzes the circulatory system. The regular flow of blood through arteries, veins, and capillaries is essential to health, and fear plays havoc with the red stream. And we know how a fright can turn the hair gray and can drive the thinking brain into insanity.

Fear is the ally of every malady. Whatever illness besets a man is twice as bad if he is afraid; and if he laugh at it one can carry about and live comfortably many a year with a deadly disease. So that if a physician could enter all his sickrooms and give some physic to purge away anxiety he might well lose his other medicines.

The most use a mother can be to her child is to teach him not to be afraid. Fear is generally a taught lesson. To be unafraid is natural. Let parents aid nature and prevent the fear habit.

The imagination, which is commonly prostituted to frighten little ones, might just as well be utilized to strengthen them. For instance instead of telling them to be good and not to cry lest the bogy man get them, or the vampires, goblins, and spooks snatch them, it would be how conducive to their peace and happiness if we suggested to them that in all dark places are the good angels, and that the unseen powers that move by night are friendly, and that the world we live in is crowded with invisible, kind hearted helpers! The child must imagine something, and how much he has gained if he is led to fill his fancy world with friends and not enemies!

The child ought to learn that fear is something to be ashamed of. Quite the contrary is too often the case. We use fear as a means to inculcate morality. This is ignorant, unpsychological, dangerous, and even wicked. No parent should play upon the fear motive. To develop it is to strengthen that which is most destructive of any nobleness of character!

To reward a youth for doing a thing because he was afraid not to do it is to pay a premium on moral cowardice. To threaten a child even and under any circumstances is criminal.

Say rather to your son: "My boy, I would rather you would defy even me than to obey me because you fear me. I would rather see you double your fist at me in indignation than to see you fawn and cringe before me. For you are going to live in a world where every living and dead thing conspires to conquer the coward.

"Microbes will infest you, fevers will burn you, wounds will fester, women will scorn you, men will impose upon you, luck will turn against you, evil spirits will torment you, good angels will forsake you, horses will run away with you, dogs will chase you, and snakes will bite you—if you are afraid of them.

"But if you have courage, and fear not, and buck up against the universe and its habitants, all and singular, why, then seas will divide before you, mountains fall, stars will work together for you, and men, women, horses, spooks, dogs, and angels will love you and stand by you."

The purpose of all training and education, in family and school, ought to be the subduing and banishment of fear. Manual training is to get the fear out of the hand so that one can strike the hammer and turn the lathe and push the plane with a sure motion. Piano practice is to pound the hesitancy out of the fingers. Nine-tenths of learning a foreign language is to get into a frame of mind where we are not afraid to speak it, mistakes or no mistakes. The master painters are they whose touch is bold and happy hearted.

In the family fear brings sorrow. To fear your wife does not love you instills the hell of doubt into your heart. To fear the children will be bad or fail goes a long way toward bringing to pass the thing you dread. To fear your friends are not sincere is by and by to lose all friends.

Even religion's main advantage is that, properly used, it takes away the fear of the vast infinite, and makes us feel the kindliness of that unseen hand that pulls the strings of destiny.

The most necessary thing to make of your boy is an overcomer. Teach him the luxury of bouncing out of bed betimes, and the loosening, vitiating effect of dawdling. Teach him the joy of a plunge into a bathtub of ice cold water, and the fine tingle of battling through snow drifts to school, and of tackling knotty problems.

Let him learn how to laugh off defeat. The most refreshing kind of man in the world is a good loser. Show him that the bulliest of all fellows is the fellow that gets up, brushes off the dust, and goes at it again.

We all want our children to be happy. But do we realize that the thing which has caused more misery in child life than any other one thing

Flies and Filth.

The fly is born in, lives and thrives upon filth. If no filth is allowed to accumulate in a house or its neighborhood it will not be troubled by flies, for they do not ordinarily stray far from their breeding places and their sources of food. In a thoroughly clean neighborhood they cannot live in the face of screens preventing their access to food and to the absence of manure heaps and other receptacles for filth in which to deposit their eggs.—Survey.

STATUE OF LIBERTY

Small Holes in Her Plates Do Not Lessen Her Longevity.

TEXAS PROBABLY DRY

Prohibition Amendment Carried by about 25,000.

Lone Star State Turns Out 500,000 Total Vote—Surprise in Dallas County.

Dallas, Tex., July 24.—With approximately 30,000 votes unreported, the prohibition amendment is about 10,000 ahead. The missing votes are nearly all in farming communities and should be about two-thirds prohibition.

If this estimate holds good, the amendment has been ratified by approximately 25,000 majority. The managers of the anti-campaign, while giving no figures, claim they have a chance yet to win, and will not concede defeat until the official vote in all the counties has been reported.

The greatest surprise in the political history of Texas during a generation is Dallas county. Before the election the antis claimed a majority of 8,000, and the Prohibitionists were willing to concede from 2,000 to 3,000 majority. Unofficial returns from every voting precinct in the county give the Prohibitionists six majority.

The total vote cast in the state approximates 500,000.

LIBERTY STATUE IS AGING

New York, July 24.—The Statue of Liberty in this harbor is getting old. An army engineer recently made a close examination of the statue—they look it over that was once a year—and found that there were just about fifty small holes in the bronze plates of which the statue is built. These holes come usually in folds, and are in spots where the plates always were a bit thinner than the general run of the statue.

There is no immediate danger for the Goddess, however. Her chief caretaker, Lieutenant Jones, says that she's good for 100 years yet.

MORE POSTAL BANKS

Postmaster General Names Ten Additional First Class Offices.

Washington, July 24. — Ten first class postoffices, in addition to the four already designated, were named by Postmaster-General Hitchcock as postal saving banks. They are: Phoenix, Ariz.; South Bend, Ind.; Pueblo, Col.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Springfield, Mo.; Butte, Mont.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Oklahoma City, Akla.; Dallas, Tex., and Norfolk, Va.

Prior to June 30 more than 15,000 persons had opened postal savings accounts in 400 offices.

WARNS PEEVISH OFFICERS

Face Retirement Under an Order Just Issued by War Department.

Washington, July 24.—Any army officer who through illnaturedness or other causes is regarded as temperamentally disqualified for duty will face retirement to make room for others possessed of the attributes of leaders of men.

This is provided in revised army regulations just promulgated by the war department. Under the old rules officers were haled before retiring boards only for physical disabilities.

Yeggmen Loot Postoffice.

Jamestown, Ind., July 24.—About $100 in money and a quantity of stamps were taken when burglars entered the postoffice here, carried the safe out of the building and then blew it open with nitroglycerin. In the same room with the office was a jewelry store, but a safe there, which contained valuable jewelry, was not disturbed.

DETECTIVE BURNS APPEARS

Waives Arraignment in Indianapolis and Will be Tried in Fall.

Indianapolis, July 24. — William J. Burns, the detective, has arrived from Europe and appeared in criminal court to answer to four grand jury indictments on charges of kidnapping John J. McNamara, whom he and others took out of Indianapolis by alleged irregular proceedings, to be tried in Los Angeles on dynamiting charges.

Burns waived arraignment on a plea of not guilty, and gave bond of $5,000 on each of the four indictments. Judge Markey said he would set the case for trial in September or October.

$1,000,000 RAIN OVER 12 STATES

Middle and North West Drenched in Welcome Storm.

MOISTURE SAVES CORN CROP

Heavy Precipitation Is Recorded in Many Places—Prosperous Year Is Predicted Now with Bumper Yields.

Chicago, July 24. — Rain which drenched Chicago and many states was worth millions of dollars to the country. Had it been a rain of real money the farmer could not have been more pleased.

More than a dozen states in the north and middle west—all of the corn belt—had rain, and all needed it to save the corn. According to agriculturists, the corn will develop with one final spurt. The result, they say, will be an era of prosperity far more concrete than anything to come from the reciprocity treaty.

Beginning just west of the Rocky Mountains, in Idaho and northern Montana, the rainstorm swept across the country, touching some states lightly and treating others, where it was needed most, to a steady downpour that made the countryside hilarious.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, all received the kind of a rain corn raisers have been wishing for during the past weeks. Indiana, Michigan and Ohio got their rain a few hours later. It also rained in Florida, North Carolina and Alabama, but that was another storm entirely. This was strictly a "corn" rain.

Chicago's precipitation was .91 inch. At Kalispell, in the extreme northwest part of Montana, the precipitation was .02, while Lewiston, Idaho, was treated to a like amount. Miles City, Mont., had a precipitation of .08; Williston, N. D., .26, and Devil's Lake, in the same state, .34.

Duluth got more rain than any other place in Minnesota. There the precipitation was 1.56. At Beatrice, Neb., eight inches of rain fell. The inhabitants were almost drowned in a continuous cloudburst. Reports from Kansas City say the Missouri river rose to twenty-six feet as the result of the heavy rains.

Iowa was thoroughly drenched. Sioux City, Charles City and Des Moines all reported a good fall of rain. At Charles City the precipitation was .68. At St. Joseph, Mo., 2.54 inches of rain fell.

In the south rain fell at Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla.; at Hatteras, N. C.; Anniston and Montgomery, Ala., and Vicksburg, Miss.

JAMES C. DAHLMAN

Nebraska Democrat Who Declares War on Bryan.

DAHLMAN FIGHTS BRYAN

Opposes His Selection as Delegate-at-Large.

Former Friend Will Attempt to Have Bryan Declared a Bolter by Nebraska Convention.

Fremont, Neb., July 24.—Whether or not William J. Bryan escapes condemnation as a bolter at the Democratic state convention which meets here Tuesday depends upon two things: The inability of Dahlman, whose candidacy for governor he refused to support last year, to secure enough recruits to justify him in making a fight to secure the passage of resolutions similar to those adopted at the Douglas county convention, and the pressure from outside to make clear Bryan's pathway to being a delegate-at-large to the national convention.

Dahlman says he is coming here with his resolutions prepared to make a fight for them, if he deems it advisable. Bryan intends being a candidate for delegate-at-large at the April primaries. Dahlman says he will fight him to a finish. From outside the state, however, come word that party exigency makes Bryan's presence as a delegate at the national convention necessary to curb his present free-lance tendencies.

The anti-Bryanites control the convention machinery, but there is insufficient data to determine which side has the majority of the delegates. Several county conventions followed the lead of Douglas county, while others gave Bryan flattering endorsement, one presenting him again as a presidential candidate. Most of them took no notice whatever aside from selecting delegates.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

World's Work Makes Canvass, with Somewhat Unexpected Results.

New York, July 24. — So far as is known the Magazine World's Work is the first in the field with anything like a systematic canvass of presidential candidates for 1912. The names of 2,415 of its subscribers were drawn at random, a state at a time, by clerks ignorant of the purpose of the drawing.

The names were divided among the several states, as many ballots being sent to each state as it had electoral votes. Here is the result: Woodrow Wilson, 519; William H. Taft, 402; Theodore Roosevelt, 274; Judson A. Harmon, 96; Robert M. LaFollette, 91; Champ Clark, 45; William J. Bryan, 34; Albert Cummins, 17.

PRESIDENT TAFT OFFERS THANKS

Acknowledges Aid of Democrats and Secretary Knox.

Measure Is Voted by Senate, 53 Ayes to 27 Nays, and Now Awaits Approval of Dominion Parliament.

Beverly, Mass., July 24.—President Taft extended his formal thanks to the Democrats and Secretary of State Knox for their aid in his struggle for Canadian reciprocity.

In the first statement upon reciprocity since its passage through the senate, which was given out from the White House here, President Taft acknowledged the Democratic aid, without which, he said, "reciprocity would have been impossible," and thanked Secretary Knox and his special assistants at the state department for their work, "in the negotiations and framing of the pact and their lucid explanation and defense of its terms."

In his statement the president said: "That I am very much pleased with the passage of the Canadian reciprocity bill through both houses of congress, goes without saying. I believe, and hope it will be followed by similar action by the Dominion parliament. In my judgment the going into effort of the agreement will mark a new epoch in the relations between the United States and Canada and it will tend to a marked increase in the trade between the two countries, which will be in every way beneficial to both."

The senate passed the Canadian reciprocity bill, ending the fight of five months. The vote was 53 to 27.

The minority was composed of twenty-four Republicans and three Democrats. The majority was composed of thirty-two Democrats and twenty-one Republicans.

Republicans voting against the bill were: Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Burnham, Clapp, Clark of Wyoming, Clarke of Arkansas, Crawford, Cummins, Curtis, Dixon, Gamble, Gronna, Heyburn, Kenyon, LaFollette, Lippitt, Lorimer, McCumber, Nelson, Oliver, Page, Simmons, Smith of Michigan, Smoot, Warren.

The bill passed the senate in unamended form.

UMPIRES AND GRIT

Courageous Acts of the Men In the Iron Masks.

A FINE DISPLAY OF NERVE.

When Billy Evans Braved the Onslaught of a Chicago Mob and Won Out—A Notable Decision by O'Day. An Umpire Who Saved Baseball.

"Umpires are brave men at least the great majority of them. One of the bravest things I ever saw was the act of Billy Evans on the old White Sox grounds in Chicago," writes Hugh Fullerton in the American Magazine. "On that park there was a tier of seats known as the 'stockyards,' in which gathered one of the most dangerous crowds (for umpires) in the country. They were regulars who occupied the same seats almost every day and who fought for them. The seats, of course, were not reserved, but hundreds claimed a title to certain places. They paid their quarters, and if any one was in the place and refused to move he was tossed out and thrown over the heads of the crowd to the bottom. That crowd started after Evans, who had given a close decision at third base against Chicago. Evans walked over on to foul ground back of first base, and a shower of bottles fell around him. It looked as if a hundred men were throwing bottles at the umpire. One bottle touched his cap, several bounded and struck him, one hit him on the arm. During this bombardment Evans did not turn his head. He stood watching the batter. For at least three minutes the bottles whistled around his head. The people in the grand stand shouted for him to run, fearing he would be killed. The players begged him to move into the diamond out of range. He stood still with back to his foes until the batter made a base hit, then trotted down near second base to watch for a play there. As the opposing team took the field a few moments later Evans walked to the same position back of first base, and the crowd that had tried to kill him stood up and cheered him. They recognized a brave man. One fellow threw a bottle, and the crowd pitched him down the steep steps, passing him along until he hit the fence.

"The nerviest decision and one of the most important ever made was that of Umpire O'Day in the world's championship game between Chicago and Detroit on Oct. 8, 1907, the first game of the series which finally ended in a tie in twelve innings. In the eleventh inning Chicago actually scored the winning run only to lose it through the decision of O'Day, a Chicago man and a National leaguer. Slagle was on third base and started home with the ball back of third in left field. The ball was thrown home and arrived after Slagle had crossed the plate and was nearly to the bench. Steinfeldt, who had been batting, was excited, and when the ball was thrown to the plate, wild and wide, he jumped and let it hit his shoulder and prevented Schmidt from catching it. O'Day, in spite of the fact that Slagle had crossed the plate and that there wasn't a chance to put him out, called him out because of Steinfeldt's interference.

"There was a close decision at Cleveland one day when Tim Hurst, widely known as the 'scrappy ump,' was officiating. Burkett was trying to score from second on a hit. The catcher failed to touch his foot, but touched his knee, and Cleveland claimed the foot reached the rubber before the ball reached the knee. Hurst called him out, and in the wrangle that followed expelled Pat Tebeau, O'Connor and Burkett from the game. Then he put them off the grounds. They left the playing inclosure, but all three had their heads over a gate shouting at Hurst and urging the other players to avenge them. Tebeau shouted to good old Deacon Maguire, who was catching. 'Get after him, Jim!' Hurst heard, but was not in position to reply. Maguire heard and waited until he thought Hurst miscalled a strike. Then he rushed at the umpire at top speed. Hurst stood still. When Maguire came near enough Hurst kicked him on the shins and poked his mask into his face. Maguire fell back, astonished. 'If you don't like it, Jim,' said Hurst softly, 'give it to Pat. I merely punched you vicariously.'

"They are 'square men,' these umpires, forced to be a bit gruff and to fight, but their devotion to their work and their honest effort to discharge their duties mark them as men of high integrity. And they are 'game.' I saw Bob Emslie once when a foul ball struck him over the heart. The pain was excruciating. His face grew white, and he set his teeth together and resumed work. Three balls were pitched after he was hit. He called them all clearly. Then he collapsed, falling as if dead, and was carried off the field unconscious.

"One night I saw politicians, wealthy men, club owners, argue for hours with an umpire. All they wanted him to say was 'I didn't see it.' Upon those words hung the fate of a championship, the future of a major league and the honesty of baseball. The umpire replied, 'But, —— it, I did see it!' And he saved baseball."

SANDY'S SCRUPLES.

They Almost Kept the Tourists From Getting the Boat.

A couple of tourists staying at a village which is in close proximity to a well known Scottish loch had a fancy one fine Sunday to go for a row on the loch. They accordingly sallied forth in search of the boatman, whom they met just leaving his house, dressed in his Sunday best and carrying a Bible under his arm.

"We want to go for a row," said one of the tourists.

"Dae ye no' ken it's the Sawbath?" answered Sandy. "Ye'll no' get a boat fra me the day, forby I'll hae ye tae ken that I am an elder o' the kirk."

"Yes, yes," expostulated the tourists, "that's all very well for you, but we don't require you with us. You can go to church; we can row ourselves."

"Aye, aye," said the elder, "but jist think whit the meenister 'll say."

"Never mind the minister," was the reply; "he will know nothing about it. We will pay you well."

"Ah, weel," said Sandy, "I'll no' let ye the boat, bit I'll tell ye whit I'll dae. Dae ye see yon wee boatie doon amang the rushes? Weel, she's ready wi' the oars inside. Jist ye gang doon there an' row oot tae the middle o' the loch an' I'll come doon tae the bank an' swear at ye. Bit never ye mind; ye jist row on an' I'll call for the money on Monday."—London Ideas.

CROWNED HIMSELF.

An Impromptu Ceremony In Which King George IV. Figured.

That was a curious sort of impromptu coronation in which his majesty King William IV. of England figured. Things did not go very well with Earl Grey's government after the second reading of the first reformed bill had been carried by a majority of one in 1831, and one Friday in April they suddenly got the king to go down and prorogue parliament in person. Somebody went off to the Tower to fetch the crown, and with a scratch body of attendants his majesty drove down to the house of lords. What happened there is described in Greville's memoirs.

The king ought not properly to have worn the crown, never having been crowned, but when he was in the robing room he said to Lord Hastings: "Lord Hastings, I wear the crown. Where is it?" It was brought to him, and when Lord Hastings was going to put it on his head he said, "Nobody shall put the crown on my head but myself." He put it on and then turned to Lord Grey and said, "Now, my lord, the coronation is over."

The crown did not fit very well, we are told, but the prorogation was successfully effected.—London Chronicle.

Serving Soup.

If anybody were asked to suggest why the soup plate was made broad and shallow the almost certain answer would be that such an arrangement facilitates the cooling of the soup to a temperature comfortable to the mouth. We believe that utilitarians drink tea out of a saucer for the same reason. While that may be the explanation of the peculiar shape of the soup plate, the advantage indicated is surely insignificant compared with the obvious disadvantages which may probably arise from exposing so large a surface of nutrient fluid to the air. Soup should be served in a cup, a low broad teacup, and the method, which is becoming more usual, is hygienic. Too deep a vessel would be an error on the other side. Its advantages would be canceled by its great drawback. We should miss some of the delicate flavors of the soup.—London Lancet.

Stage Scenery.

Walter Prichard Eaton, the dramatic critic, believes modern dramas are too elaborately staged. In "The Question of Scenery" in the American Magazine he says:

"After all, it was not the Elizabethans who were stupid because they could enjoy the drama on a bare stage. It is we who are stupid because we cannot enjoy the drama unless the stage is littered with 'realistic' scenery. We have no faith in our own imaginative powers. It would be a good thing for the drama if all scenery were abolished for the next ten years. Having learned to get along without it, we would perhaps keep it in its proper place for awhile after it returned. Its proper place is as a pictorial and suggestive background to the actors and the play and nothing but a background."

Ruined by Jesting.

The Antiochenes themselves brought about the ruin of the beautiful city of Antioch, the ancient capital of the Greek kings of Syria. These people were famous for their biting and scurrilous wit as well as their ingenuity in devising nicknames. When the Persians under Chosroes invaded Syria in 538 the Antiochenes could not refrain from jesting at them. Ample revenge for this was taken by the Persians, who totally destroyed the city.

Would Do His Own Biting.

The British gentleman new to our shores stepped up to the cigar counter and requested of the "clark" a cigar.

"What will you have, a bit cigar?" asked the "clark."

"No; I'd rawther bite it myself," replied the Briton.—San Francisco Chronicle.

DUSTLESS ROADS

This morning bright and early saw a squad of men busy on Chicago St. making ready for the spreading of the crude oil to test its qualities as a dust layer. A tank of oil has been purchased and the sprinkling wagon is to be used in the work. This test will be watched with great interest by everyone and if successful no doubt it will be used in various parts of the town.

LEGION OF HONOR.

The Order That Was Founded by the Great Napoleon.

THRIVED DESPITE RIDICULE.

The Despotic Corsican Proved by the Inauguration of the Decoration That He Was a Keen Student of French Human Nature.

France owes the Legion of Honor to Napoleon. All orders of chivalry had been abolished by the revolution and had left a gap which it was not easy to fill. "They are mere geegaws," said Monge, the chemist, who had taught the revolutionists how to make gunpowder out of plaster of paris. "Geegaws, if you will," the first consul answered, "but people like them. Let us approach the question frankly. All men are enamored of decorations, the French more than any. They positively hunger for them, and they have always done so."

This was at Malmaison in 1802. In May the conseil d'etat was invited to consider the project of the institution of the Legion of Honor. It was ridiculed by many, notably by Moreau, who as victor of Hohenlinden was bitterly jealous of the victor of Marengo. At a dinner party he sent for his cook and said to him in the presence of his guests: "Michel, I am pleased with your dinner. You have indeed distinguished yourself. I will award you a saucepan of honor." Mme. de Stael was also satirical upon the subject. "Ah, one of the decorated?" she used to ask each guest who was shown into her salon.

But Napoleon had gauged human nature correctly. His Legion of Honor did meet a felt want, and it was definitely inaugurated on July 14, 1804. Among the eminent men of science and men of letters on whom it was then bestowed were included Laplace, the mathematician; Lalande, the astronomer; Cuvier, the naturalist, and Legouve, the poet. The most notable name omitted was that of Bernardin de St. Pierre, just then in disgrace for championing Mme. de Stael, whom Napoleon had banished, but he got the decoration later on the entreaty of Queen Hortense.

After Napoleon's downfall the question of suppressing the Legion of Honor arose. Chateaubriand, whom Napoleon had not decorated, strongly urged its abolition. So did Puzzo di Borgo. Marshals Victor, Marmont and Macdonald opposed. After debate it was decided to recognize and retain the order, not on any high moral or patriotic grounds, but because Louis XVIII. could not afford to make himself more unpopular than he was already by stripping people of their decorations. Chateaubriand and Lamartine consented to accept the red ribbon, but it was also conferred upon a great number of worthless personages and so brought into contempt.

There have been many Legion of Honor scandals since those days, but one of them surpasses all the others in magnitude. This is, of course, the Wilson scandal, the history of which, though intricate, is worth recalling.

The trouble may be said to have begun on the day on which Mlle. Alice Grevy fell in love with an opera singer who need not be mentioned here. He wanted to marry her, and she wanted to marry him, and the papers were beginning to couple the two names in a manner most embarrassing to the president of the republic. The president, however, sent the opera singer about his business and found his daughter another husband, not a very good husband, but the best husband he could procure on the spur of the moment. His choice fell upon M. Daniel Wilson, who had long been one of M. Grevy's political supporters and was a financier of some mark.

No sooner was M. Wilson established at the Elysee than he proceeded to enrich himself by various means. Among other things he founded a paper called Le Moniteur de l'Exposition Universelle, which really covered a traffic in decorations. The whole story came out in a state trial toward the end of 1887. It was proved that Wilson had made a regular practice of selling the Legion of Honor, or, rather, of inviting people who wanted it to bribe him to use his influence to obtain it for them. His overtures were presented through his jackals, Generals d'Audlan and Cafferel and Mmes. Limousin and Ratazzi, and the whole party had to stand in the dock together.

Wilson was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, a fine of 3,000 francs and five years' deprivation of civil rights. He appealed, and the court of cassation annulled the judgment. The accused, said the judges, was obviously guilty of everything that he was charged with, but as his offenses were not anticipated by any punitive law he could not be punished. So he retired to the country and tried to live down his bad name. As he ultimately got himself elected conseiller general one must suppose that he succeeded in his object.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The carriers receive $1000 a year and have to provide their own rigs and look out for themselves generally. The meeting of the carriers is being held today at Bay City.

NO MORE PUBLIC DRINKING CUPS

At last the edict has gone forth the public drinking cups must be discarded from all public places, in the State of Michigan.

Hereafter every one must carry his or her own cup, or drink from the bubbling fountain on our street corner. Five railroads have already notified the board of health that they complied with the law.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C. July 24, 1911

Washington has been swept with wave after wave of political excitement, during the past few months. The latest political explosion was the scandalous attack of Wickersham on Dr. Wiley, Chemist and pure food expert of the Agricultural Department. Dr. Wiley is an untiring foe of adulterated and poisonous foods. The big food canners of the country are anxious to have Dr. Wiley removed from his position of Government chemist so that they can name his successor, who of course will be satisfactory to them and lax in enforcing the pure food law. These food adulteraters, the big canners secured an investigation of Dr Wiley's department, and all that they could find against his was a lump of excessive zeal in enforcing the pure food law. That excess consisted in his paying an assistant a trifle more than the law permitted and which did not amount to but a few hundred dollers. Attorney General Wickersham who made the investigation recommends that Dr. Wiley be permitted to resign. If Mr. Wickersham thought he could scare Dr. Wiley out of office in that manner, he has another guess coming to him. It has since developed that Mr. Wickersham has been notoriously guilty of many flagrant violations of law in paying out money. For instance Mr. Kellogg who prosecuted the Standard Oil Company, drew $75,000 in a lump sum as the expenses of the prosecution. The law provided that the Department of Justice shall only pay out money on bills that are itemized, so Mr. Wickersham is much more guilty of violating the law than Dr. Wiley. Why not fire Wickersham and hire some more Wileys.

GOOD ROADS

Monroe men are on the war path for good roads and an association has been organized for a campaign along that line. The proposition to bond the county for that purpose being one of the points under consideration with the great amount of traveling by auto, good roads seem to be a necessity and Lenawee Co. must also see to it that the public roads are all they should be.

$1,000,000 RAIN, NOW FOR A CORN CROP

Beginning just west of the Rockies in Idaho and Montana a most welcome and much needed rainstorm swept across the country some states it touch lightly while others where it was needed most were treated to a steady down pour and and the cornfields fairly laughed in the reviving rain, and now that the much prayed for rain has come the farmer will rejoice in a goodly bank at the end of harvest and everybody will receive the benefit.

NATIONAL EDITORIAL CONVENTION

The National Editorial Association that met in convention at Detroit last week, adopted a resolution in favor of the passage of a bill introduced by Representative Bell authorizing railroad companies to contract with newspaper publishers for advertising, and to pay for the same with milage books.

The Hepburn law was so twisted by the inter-state commission as to prevent this advertising payable in anything but cash. Congressman Townsend who drafted the bill, stated that no such prohibition could be found in the bill, nor did the framers put such restrictions in the law. Two parties should have the right to make a contract payable in anything agreed upon.

MOCK MODESTY

We clip the following from the Kalamazoo Semi-Weekly. It struck us as making modesty unmodest and we heartily agree with writer in his comments on the same and while we laugh at the absurdity of the pants we feel a pity for those who see evil where none was intended.

PANTS AND PROPRIETY

The group of statuary before Pennsylvania's $13,000,000 palace of graft at Harrisburg, after having been "draped" to suit the Pennsylvania purists, has been again unveiled. Stone "pants" have been bolted to the statues whose nakedness particularly offended the good folks of the Keystone state. Now they call it the "Pantsylvania group."

The episode has nearly broken the heart of the sculptor, Barnard, and has brought chagrin and shame to all who are seriously interested in the advancement of American art, but the average person can afford to take it for its fun value.

The joke is on us, of course, but we might as well laugh as the rest of the world. If we can laugh about it, perhaps after awhile it will be brought home to us how ridiculous it is to make believe that the naked human body is something evil—something that can only be made decent by putting it in pants.

LENAWEE COUNTY CHAUTAUQUA AT ADRIAN JULY, 29.

The Lenawee Co. Chautauqua opens up at Adrian July 29 with some of the best talent that could be secured. The question has often been asked, What is a Chautauqua? and in an article clipped from the Adrian Times it has been answered in a very satisfactory manner:

In the first place let us tell what a Chautauqua is not. It is not a religious service; it is not a lecture course, it is not a circus; it is not a vaudeville; it is not a camp meeting; it is not a theatre. In a word it is the quintessence of all these things. In other words it combines all that is best in the foregoing.

In the programs which have been distributed this trite statement is set forth, "The Chautauqua combines the charm of the circus tent, the wit of the stage, the wisdom of the platform, the eloquence of the pulpit with the beauty and healthfulness of God's great out of doors."

In this connection it might be well to add that the talent is secured at a cost of two thousand dollars; miscellaneous expenses will add over five hundred dollars making a grand total of nearly three thousand dollars expense to the Chautauqua managers association for the Adrian Chautauqua alone.

To those who attended the Chautauqua meeting held here a year ago, this will be an inducement to attend the meeting in Adrian and the time will be most profitably spent as the lectures and talks will be full of useful knowledge.

STILL IN HARD LUCK

The Buelow outfit that gave one show in Tecumseh a few weeks ago and was stranded in Hudson later is still having bad luck as the following clipping taken from the Detroit Journal of Wednesday indicates.

Well, well, here's a real tale of theft. H. V. Buelow, of 620 Michigan avenue, had a one-ring Indian and Wild West show at the corner of Forest and Rivard, and while he was away his tribe of Indians decamped and took the whole show with them. He has asked the police to locate the show, which he values at $500.

More Fertilizer Facts.

There are three elements of plant food, NITROGEN, otherwise known as ammonia, which imparts to the leaf color, to the stalk or vine growth. PHOSPHORIC ACID is the characteristic element of the bone. No grain or seed can be found without it and is invaribly deficient, in the same, and is believed, and without a doubt is a fact, that this is the most important of the three elements. POTASH is absolutely essential in the formation of wood fibre, in other words it stiffens the stalk or grain.

Lime has been used as a fertilizer from time immemorial, but in later years is sadly lacking in value compared with the three plant food elements and it has been found most soils contain a sufficient amount of lime. It is however a good purifier for sour soils and could be occasionally used to a good advantage for this purpose. It has practically no value as compared with Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid and Potash.

All official information claim that the raw materials should not be used alone or mixed dry, in other words, mixed with shovel and screen, owing to the fact that it is simply mechanical union in which no chemical action takes place. In regard to factory-mixed goods in which the mixers are installed at a great expense, the different materials are chemically treated in large revolving mixers, then allowed to mingle in a high degree of heat, which re-combines the chemical elements in the materia used. We can furnish those who desire these raw materials, at very low prices, much lower in fact than are being offered by some concerns today.

It is an absolute fact that all soils needs phosphoric acid. Clay or heavy soils invariably are deficient in nitrogen and have at all times enough or nearly enough potash. On the other hand, sand invariably has nearly enough nitrogen, but is deficient in potash. Now do not get an idea that it will be of any benefit for your immediate wheat crop to use more than 2% to 5% potash, for if you use more it will be practically thrown away, as your soils cannot absorb it

We would like very much to have every farmer read "Plant Food," a simple and intelligent booklet, copyrighted be W. H. Bowker which will be appreciated by even a schoolboy, owing to its being easy to understand. It contains no mention or advertisement of any fertilizer company. We will gladly furnish them upon request.

We reccomend and guarantee the HOMESTEAD brands of fertilizer, because they are quick to act and contain only available matter, which cannot be said of all fertilizers. While some have the correct analysis, they are a large extent insoluable. It may take years or never for you to realize any benefit from the same. We make a specialty of recommending bought for certain conditions and merely ask you to tell us the kind of soil and what you raised this year on the particular field that you expect to put in this fall for wheat. If you will do this, we know we can satisfy you in giving you a much larger crop of wheat to harvest in 1912.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's Kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly reccommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. The famous little pills.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines, does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medical professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. For sale by all druggists.

Universal Language.

He spoke his love in German—she answered not a word. In French he tried to woo her—the maiden never heard. He tried his luck in English, in Irish—all in vain; in Turkish, Greek and Latin, and in the togue of Spain. And then an inspiration came to the anguished youth. "The universal language," he cried. "I'll try, forsooth!" He kissed the demure maiden and pressed her to his breast. She understood that language, and you can guess the rest.—Pearson's.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullar's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

HOTEL BEDS ABROAD.

To Get Into Some of Them One Has to Use a Stepladder.

The European bed always strikes the uninitiated American traveler as a huge joke. In France they commence to impress him with their height and narrowness, and he looks dubiously at the enormous Turkey red cotton "couvre pied" of elderdown, which seems something like a mountain, and he wonders how he is ever going to bear all that extra weight on his person. But when he has slipped between the sheets and the grateful warmth communicates itself to his cold bones—if it is winter they are sure to be like icicles—he discovers that it is deceptively light and deliciously comfortable.

In Switzerland the beds attain a little more height, but it is in Germany that they become of such an altitude as to necessitate a pair of steps to mount them. One tourist, finding that one leg of the stepladder was broken, solved his difficulty by going to the extreme end of the room, taking a running start and landing with a flying leap in the midst of the Turkey red elderdown. He crawled in under the crocheted counterpane and was soon fast asleep. Some time in the night he became sleepily aware of a consuming thirst and started to get out of bed for a drink. A startled shriek, followed by some swear words that even the thick headed German watchman understood, penetrated to the remotest chamber in the inn.

"I was half awake," he explained afterward, "and had been dreaming of standing on Table rock, in the Yosemite. I started to get out of bed—and began to fall. Naturally I supposed I was plunging to the bottom of that precipice, and I'll leave it to you if any one wouldn't have let out a yell when he thought he was going to be dashed to death."

Sometimes in European hotels the tourist is taken solemnly to one side and told that by paying a few francs or lire more he can have the royal bedchamber. A certain hotel in Sorrento, where a dozen or more royal heads have lain in one season, is even more generous, for if the rooms are empty they make no extra charge. And the traveler loves to recount when he is back on his native heath how his cheek pressed the same pillow that had been used by the little queen of Holland or the king of Saxony.—New York Tribune.

BALANCING THE SEXES.

Singular, Isn't It, the Way Nature Preserves the Equilibrium?

One of the most subtle and interesting problems of life, according to the eminent statistician and student of heredity, Professor R. J. Ewart, is the numerical relationship of sex and its influence upon the body politic. The woman's rights movement is in essence a mathematical and statistical problem, according to him. There is not a general advance of woman, as some sociologists assert. There is a sudden manifestation of her power, a period of supremacy and then a decline of her status.

The explanation is statistical mainly. True, it has always been something of a puzzle why the proportion of each kind, apparently with little or no underlying reason, is produced in the right numbers. The argument that if such were not the case the particular species would not survive does not reveal to us the methods by which the object has been achieved. That some mechanism must exist by means of which within certain limits the number of males and females born is regulated is proved by the facts of history, where we have numerous examples of wars and other social upheavals where males have largely suffered, and yet within an apparently short period of time, as measured by such events, a balance has again been established.

The sex equilibrium may be compared to that of a gyroscope, where the greater the disturbance of position the greater is the force tending to reestablish its natural stand while in motion.—Current Literature.

Edward Hines told the Lorimer investigating committee of his lobbying at the capital during the first investigation of the case.

The Old Old Story.

"What did you do when your husband told you the old, old story?"

"I told him to shut up before he was half through."

"Why, what a funny way to reply to a confession of love!"

"Oh, is that what you mean? I thought you meant the story he told last night when he came home from a time with the boys."—Houston Post.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

YIELDED TO EDMUNDS.

Cleveland's Political Foe Won After His Friends Had Failed.

Soon after Mr. Cleveland entered the White House in 1885 Vice President Hendricks died at his home in Indianapolis, and the president made arrangements to attend the funeral. Many of his social intimates and all his official advisers united in an effort to dissuade him from making this twenty hour journey, enlarging on the manifold risks of rail travel at all times and the special opportunity this would offer some fanatic to assassinate him. But he remained immovable until within a few hours of the time set for closing up his business he received an unexpected call from Senator Edmunds of Vermont.

Mr. Edmunds was the leader of the Republican side of the senate and was understood to have in preparation several measures of opposition to the announced policies of the new administration. But he was also and above all else an American citizen and a patriot, and his visit to his political foe was made in that character. In a conversation of less than half an hour, in which he drew the curtain over all differences and disregarded all empty formalities of intercourse, he laid before the president in the clear terms and logical order in which he knew so well how to express himself the larger aspects of the situation.

As the presidential succession law then stood the speaker of the house of representatives stood next in line to the vice president, and next to him came the president pro tempore of the senate. The house not having organized since the inauguration, no speaker had been elected, and, the senate having failed at its special session to choose a president pro tempore to serve during the recess, only one life—that of the president himself—stood between the nation and administrative anarchy; hence, argued Mr. Edmunds, it was Mr. Cleveland's duty to forego every other consideration and invite no chances of throwing upon the country they both loved a strain such as it had never been subjected to before.

The writer of these lines was seated in the next room while this visit was in progress, and he will never forget the president's expression of satisfaction on coming out of his office after the senator had gone. He gave orders at once that all preparations for his journey should be suspended and declared that nothing that had occurred since he entered the White House had so touched him as the kind solicitude shown by Mr. Edmunds about his exposing himself to any peril now. The others who had reasoned with him on the subject were men who were presumptively friendly and whose chief anxiety seemed to be lest he should suffer some injury to his individual person or fortunes. But here was a man who, as far as politics was concerned, was a hostile of hostiles, yet who appealed to him in behalf of the American people and their government.

"That settled it," Mr. Cleveland concluded as he turned to go back to his office. "After what Edmunds said there can be no further question of where my highest obligation lies."—F. E. L. in New York Post.

Maine's First Hotel.

Maine's first public hotel was built in 1654. Waddock's Ordinary, erected near Old Orchard, according to a Saco historian, is entitled to the distinction. The old tavern was erected by Henry Waddock and stood almost within sight of the large summer hostelries which fringe the crescent shaped beach at Old Orchard.—Kennebec Journal.

The Doctor's Boy.

"Mamma, the doctor's boy next door made faces at me."

"I stuck out my tongue at him."

OFFICIALS HIT BY ROOSEVELT

Former President Attacks the Interior Department.

DISCUSSES CONTROLLER BAY

Imperative Duty of the Government to Keep This Outlet Free, and Not Dispose of It to Any Private Interests.

New York, July 24.—Theodore Roosevelt has an article on the development of Alaska in the Outlook.

He declares two factors to be responsible for retarding progress in this direction—"great capitalists who wished to 'develop' Alaska by making enormous fortunes for themselves outside of and in defiance of the law," and congressmen who, "under pretense of hostility to the corporations decline to permit the passage of legislation which will enable them to do their work honestly and to develop the coal fields with a fair profit to themselves, while doing justice to others."

The action of the interior department, when Secretary Ballinger was its head, eliminating from the government reserve 12,800 acres, is severely criticised.

Referring specifically to the Controller bay case, Mr. Roosevelt says:

"In this connection I wish also to call attention to the essential facts as regards the Controller bay situation. Controller bay, under actula conditions, offers the only chance, or, at any rate, very much the best chance, for a free outlet from the great Bering river coal fields. It was the imperative duty of the government service to keep this outlet free, and not to dispose of it to any individual or individuals. The government should have held this land in perpetuity, permitting its use by any individual or corporation only under conditions that would subserve the general public interest.

"Unfortunately, the interior department last October, eliminated from the government reserve, not only 320 acres, the elimination of which was mistakenly recommended by the agricultural department, but 12,800 acres. Whether there was or was not impropriety in the way in which the elimination was brought about, whether or not there was impropriety in the action which resulted in the instant filing of claims by Mr. Ryan and others, does not go to the root of the matter. The root of the matter is that no such elimination should have been made by the interior department.

TO FIGHT DISMISSAL

Food Expert Will Not Quit Without Struggle.

Floyd M. Robison May Demand Congressional Investigation of the Charges Against Him.

New York, July 24.—Professor Floyd M. Robison, the food expert who was dismissed from the bureau of chemistry a fortnight ago following the controversy over benzoate of soda between Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and the Remsen referee board, has decided to demand a congressional investigation. Dr. Robinson discloses his purpose in a letter to Alfred W. McCann, a leader in the fight for pure food.

"I have been removed, according to the document of dismissal, 'for the good of the service,' says the professor in the letter. "I have written to the secretary of agriculture demanding, upon my right as an American citizen, that I be given an opportunity to appear and defend myself against any and all charges."

Professor Robison adds that his dismissal is an attempt to harm Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the chief chemist.

SUICIDES LIE FOR DAYS

Man and Wife Kill Themselves on Account of Poverty.

Middletown, N. Y., July 24.—Clasped in each other's arms, and dressed in their wedding clothes, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. C. Crans, prominent residents of this city, were found dead in their bed at their home.

They had been dead since Wednesday and their bodies were in a terrible condition. They died as a result of a suicide pact, made on account of poverty.

FIRE SWEEPING STAMBOUL

People Flee from Unchecked Flames in Constantinople.

Constantinople, July 24.—Fire started in the Stamboul section near the ministry of war. A violent north wind drove the sparks to the south, and in a short while a very large area was afire.

At this writing the flames seemed not in the least checked. People have been fleeing for hours in the direction of Marmara.

Maurice Fournier Is Killed.

Lemans, France, July 24.—Maurice Fournier, a brother of Henry Fourier, the noted automobile driver, was killed here while competing for the Grand Prix, offered by the Sarthe Automobile club. Fournier's death was caused by the breaking of an axle.

Taxed the Beards.

Peter the Great of Russia levied a tax on beards. Finding that his subjects were disposed to keep their beards at any expense of money, he ordered all those he found bearded to have the hair plucked out with pincers or shaved with a blunt razor. Russia then became a beardless nation.

SEVEN FIRMS SIGNED UP

Furniture Workers' Strike Is Nearing End.

EMPLOYEES WILL WIN OUT

One Hundred Workmen Resumed Old Positions in Fancy Furniture Company Plant Monday—Strike-Breakers are Deserting, and Early Trade Peace Is Looked For.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 24.—One hundred striking furniture workers resumed their old positions with the Fancy Furniture company. The men go back to work on the basis of 10 hours' pay for nine hours' work. The proposition was voted on last week by the men formerly employed in the plant, with the understanding that the company would, after January 1, adopt the 54-hour-per-week working schedule with 60 hours' pay.

Two more large companies are conferring with the strike organizers, and it is expected they will sign before the end of the week. Many strike-breakers imported from Chicago for the Nelson, Matter company have deserted.

It is now believed that the strikers will win, as seven large factories have signed up since the beginning of the strike, April 19, as follows:

Marvel Manufacturing company, Veit Manufacturing company, Interchangeable Fixture company, Nachtegall Manufacturing company, Fritz Manufaturing company, American Seating company, Fancy Furniture company.

Three Big Fires In Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., July 25.—Three large fires, causing a loss which will likely aggregate $250,000, gave the fire department three fierce battles Monday. The high wind which swept the city fanned the flames to a fury and made the work of the firemen dangerous and difficult. No lives were lost and no persons injured. There were several alarms for smaller blazes also.

The three big fires were:

Fruit Damaged by Wind Storm.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 24.—One of the hardest storms of the year swept over this part of Michigan Monday, doing untold damage to fruit growers and farmers. Early apples that were just about ready to pick were knocked to the ground and made practically worthless for marketing. Trees were blown down and telephone wires were broken. Corn was whipped to the ground and it is feared the most of it has been broken off.

Elmira Hotel Burns During Gale.

Boyne City, Mich., July 24.—A heavy northwest gale swept this district Monday, accompanied by heavy rains. The wind did much damage to the apple crop. Reports from Elmira, in the Gaylord district, say it was snowing there during the height of the gale. The hotel at Elmira caught fire and was destroyed. In this city the roof of Kade's store was partly torn off.

Chauffeur Under Arrest.

Lansing, Mich., July 24.—William Barnes, chauffeur for Dr. F. M. Thomas, whose automobile brought instant death to Mary E. Robb, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Robb, May 27, was arrested upon a warrant charging him with manslaughter. Barnes was arraigned before Justice Force and demanded an examination, which was set for Saturday. Bonds in the sum of $3,000 were furnished.

Reduced Rates For Fair Visitors.

Detroit, Mich., July 25.—At the summer meeting of the Michigan Passenger association, at Ottawa Beach, and which was largely attended, it was voted to grant a fare and a half round-trip rate, over all lines, to the Michigan state fair, Sept. 18 to 27. Tickets will be placed on sale the first day of the fair and will be good returning Sept. 28, the day after the fair closes.

Deer Licenses Good Only 25 Days.

Lansing, Mich., July 25.—New license tags for hunters are being prepared by Secretary of State F. C. Martindale, and under the terms of the amended deer hunting law the licenses will be good but 25 days from date of issue, although the deer hunting season is 15 days longer than in past years.

Haitien President's Chair Is Tottering

Washington—It is only a matter of hours now in the belief of the state department officials when the Haitien government will be completely overthrown by the revolutionists. For several days official dispatches have shown the government to be tottering, and Minister Furniss cables that President Simon is on a sick bed and the situation is serious throughout the island.

BOARD TAKES HAND.

Warden Russell Cannot Punish Convicts on Own Responsibility.

Marquette, Mich., July 25.—Hereafter corporal punishment of convicts in Marquette prison will be administered only when authorized by the board of control. The question came before the meeting of the board here and at the suggestion of Governor Osborn a resolution was adopted to this effect. The governor explained that the action was intended to broaden the direct responsibility so that administrative officers will be relieved of the brunt of attack when measures necessary for the proper conduct of the institution are called into question.

The board also, at the suggestion of the governor, authorized Warden Russell to take a vacation for the purpose of visiting various prisons in this country and Canada and studying the methods of discipline, labor problem and other related matters.

The governor expressed opposition to the proposed taking over by the state of the prison box factory for which $30,000 was appropriated by the last legislature. He has a plan for using the convicts for state account in crushing stone for use in road building.

Warden Russell's friends say that the resolution which deprives him of the right to administer corporal punishment without the assent of the board of control is simply a broadening of responsibility for maintaining discipline. Others say it amounts to a practical abolition of corporal punishment and will do away with the worst evils of the system.

Upper Peninsula Day at Fair.

Detroit, Mich., July 24.—There is a strong probability that the contemplated excursion of upper peninsula people to Detroit as a return visit to that paid the upper peninsula by the Detroit Board of Commerce will be postponed until the time of the Michigan state fair. In response to inquiries from the committee appointed by the upper peninsula people to arrange for the trip, the state fair management has wired Chairman Handy at the Soo that Friday, Sept. 22 will be set apart as "Upper Peninsula day." This will give the upper peninsula visitors a chance to see the grand circuit races and the big fireworks spectacle, and if they remain over Saturday, they will have an opportunity of witnessing the automobile and motor cycle races.

RECIPROCITY PACT PASSED

Democratic Vote Sends Bill Through In Hurry.

SITUATION NOW UP TO CANADA

Dominion Government Will Attempt to Force Parliament to Vote on the Measure, Otherwise a General Election Will Be Necessary—Early Adjournment Predicted.

Washington Special.—The Canadian reciprocity trade agreement was passed by the senate by a vote of 53 to 27, after every amendment to it had been voted down. Thus the purpose of President Taft in calling the special session of the congress was attained.

The striking feature of the vote is that a majority of the Republican senators were against the measure as were the Republicans of the house, 24 Republican senators opposing the pact, while 21 voted for it. Had the pact been in the form of a treaty it wold have failed in that it carried by less than a two-thirds vote. Being in the form of a bill only a majority was necessary.

The bill was signed by President Taft and Speaker Clark, Wednesday.

The Canadian parliament has not yet acted on the agreement, and with one exception the provisions of the bill as passed by congress will not become effective until the president issues a proclamation that Canada has ratified the pact. The exception to this proceedure is in the paper and pulp section of the bill, which, it is announced, will become immediately effective when the president signs the law.

Senator Penrose, who led the fight in the senate for the reciprocity bill, ventured the prediction that congress would adjourn not later than August 9 or 10.

Asked his opinion after the vote, Senator William Alden Smith said: "We met defeat like trojans. We were fighting to the last, and I hope all the rosy predictions of the friends of the bill may come true."

Senator Townsend is unchanged in his view that a great victory has been won, even though he did not win out on his amendment for a lake to ocean waterway.

The vote puts reciprocity squarely up to the Canadian government.

The Dominion government will attempt to drive the parliament to a vote on the measure. If this course fails the government will be obliged to carry the matter to general elections in the fall.

TROUBLE BREWING.

Germany and England at Swords' Points Over Moroccan Dispute.

London (Special).—That the Moroccan difficulty has become accute is indicated by the sudden order issued by the admiralty cancelling the projected visit of the Atlantic fleet to Norway.

According to advises from Berlin, negotiations between France and Germany were proceeding smoothly until Chancellor Lloyd-George's speech on July 21, which was interpreted as a warning to Germany in the present Moroccan controversy. The German newspapers now declare that it is impossible for Germany to modify her demands in the face of the threat implied in that speech.

Says Taft Favored Lorimer.

Washington (Special).—Edward Hines of Chicago, caused a sensation before the senate Lorimer committee. He testified that ex-Representative Boutell of Illinois, now American minister to Switzerland, told him that President Taft, regarding Lorimer as an acceptable senatorial candidate, was anxious to have him elected, and would be very glad to assist in his election.

PREMIER HOOTED DOWN.

Asquith's Attempt at Speechmaking Followed by Scenes of Disorder.

London (Special).—The last act of a parliamentary revolution was ushered in Monday with a revolutionary scene. For the first time in its history the house of commons refused to listen to a speech by the prime minister. For the first time in its history the speaker as compelled to invoke the rule which empowers him "in case of grave disorder" to declare the sitting adjourned on his own responsibility.

No such hostile passions have been given free rein in a chamber which traditionally carries on its debates with chivalrous courtesy, since the stormy days of the Gladstone home rule bills.

During three-quarters of an hour Premier Asquith rose at short intervals and read a sentence or two from a manuscript, only to be overwhelmed by jeers, hootings and cries among which "traitor" was the most frequent.

SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY.

Spreckels Says Trust Hirelings Put Dead Rats in Sugar.

New York (Special).—Claus Augustus Spreckels, son of the late Claus Spreckels of California, and principal owner of the Federal Sugar Refining company of Yonkers, N. Y., gave the most sensational testimony that has developed before the congressional committee investigating the sugar trust during the hearings here.

He said his plant in Philadelphia, before it was controlled by the trust, had been put out of commission several times by persons who threw sand in the machinery bearings and otherwise wrecked the plant.

He swore that at the Yonkers refinery, after he had turned down trust overtures, dead rats were placed in barrels of sugar ready for shipment and that whole vats of liquid sugar had been drained off in the night into sewers. The nuisance of dead rats continued until private detectives pointed out a number of his employes whom he discharged, refusing to pay their wages in the hope that they would sue him and thus enable him to question them under oath as to who had employed them. Much to his disappointment, he was never sued.

Married In Haste

But There Is No Record of Repenting at Leisure

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"I wish you to be my bridesmaid," wrote my friend Clara Wightman, "and you are to be matched with George's best man. Of all men John Bucklin is the best, except George, who, you know, is the best in the world to me just now. And I have a feeling down in my heart, dear, that you and John will make a match. He is everything you could wish for, except means. But he is self reliant, ambitious, full of energy and hope, and, after all, a marriage with that kind of man brings more happiness than wealth. At any rate, it brings more zest to life."

I don't know anything that will more interest a girl than to have some one say, "I have a man picked out for you to marry." A pleasing curiosity is aroused at once. True, these partners picked out by a third person are usually just what the girl doesn't want, or he doesn't want her, or they are repellent to each other. Nevertheless till they meet they—at least the girl—lives in a world of romance. She wonders what he is like in appearance, in intellect, in disposition, forming an ideal picture of him which when she sees him brings a great disappointment. Perhaps this is the reason such intended matches seldom materialize.

Instead of being disappointed in John Bucklin I was greatly pleased with him. His serious looks indicated that the world was to him an important problem. I had feared he would turn out one of those so called fascinating society men that I did not admire. He was very deferential to me, but if he had been told that I had been picked out for him he showed no consciousness of the fact. Altogether our meeting was satisfactory in all respects but one. Mr. Bucklin showed no sign whatever that he took more interest in me than was warranted by the fact that I was matched with him at a wedding ceremony.

However, the acquaintance made on that occasion was continued, and Mr. Bucklin became a regular caller at our house. He was usually very busy, but found time to show me some attention. Yet it seemed to me that he was doing it to please Clara, with whom he was on very friendly terms. Occasionally I would twit her with the failure of her plan for me, whereupon she would say: "I don't think John considers himself able to marry just now. Besides, it seems to me that you treat him with marked indifference." As to her excuses for Mr. Bucklin, I did not consider them of any moment whatever. I was surprised at her saying that I treated him with indifference, for I was not conscious of doing so. And yet Clara was doubtless right. If a match is designed by a mutual friend and the man in the case does not make a move in a matrimonial direction the girl is very likely to treat him with either indifference or something more pronounced.

There was good reason why I should marry. The family purse was not plethoric, and father was growing too old to remain much longer in business business. About that time we discharged our housemaid, giving out that we couldn't get a servant, but really because we couldn't afford to keep one. I did the work that the housemaid had done. When I swept and dusted I pinned my dress back and wore a towel over my head. Father encouraged me by saying that I looked prettier in that costume than when dressed for a ball.

One morning I was sweeping the parlor. It was separated from the dining room by folding doors as well as a portiere. At this particular time the folding doors and the portieres were both closed. I heard the doorbell ring. I couldn't go to the door in sweeping costume, but father had not yet gone out, and I knew he would do so. I was about to run upstairs when I heard father's step in the hall and knew I was too late. Fearing he might bring some one into the parlor, I stepped between the folding doors and the portiere.

I had scarcely got into concealment when father entered the room and with him another person. I couldn't see who this person was, but all doubt on the subject was soon removed by hearing the deep sounding voice of John Bucklin. Naturally I was very much astonished.

"I must go into an explanation," he said to father, "for making a call at this unusual hour before I state the object of my visit. I sail this afternoon for South America, and so far as I can judge I see no prospect of my getting back here possibly f[illegible] years."

I surely thought I [illegible]ould faint.

"I shall enter into some particulars," continued the man who had been picked out for me, "the reason for which will appear as I proceed. I have been admitted to a partnership with the firm by whom I have been employed and am going to South America to open a branch house there. I confess that I dislike going from home, breaking ties that have been forming ever since I was born, to dwell among strangers."

What in the world could the man be driving at?

"Now, it has occurred to me that—I'm a practical sort of fellow, you know—I have thought that the most sensible thing I can do—of course there [illegible] such time for such an important move—What I am trying to get out—

"For heaven's sake, get it out!

"The matter I am driving at is that I'd like to take your daughter with me as my wife."

Well, I declare! He wants to take some one down into that barbarous country simply for company to help him through with his spare time. He won't take me!

There was a brief silence, at the end of which I heard father ask, "Have you spoken to my daughter?"

"I have not. In any event I would have asked your permission to do so, and this very unusual haste renders it essential."

"So far as I am concerned," said father, "I have no objection. I will call Sadie, and if you think you can induce her to consent to such a hasty marriage you are quite welcome to try. But if you will be guided by an older man, a married man, you will not word your proposition to her as you have to me. I would advise you to tell her that this move is the result of love, not an expedient. It doesn't matter that expediency is your principal reason. We must give women a little taffy, you know."

Oh, these men!

But a matter of far greater importance arrested my attention—at least it seemed more important at the time. Father went to the door and called me. Of course there was no answer. He went out into the hall and called again. Then I heard him go upstairs. "Where's Sadie?" "She's below." "No, she isn't." "She surely isn't up here." "Find her."

Imagine my feelings, standing bolt upright in the narrow space between the doors and the portiere, the man who had proposed for me so near that I was afraid he would hear me breathe, angry with him at his outrageous proposition to take me away to amuse him, sure to be discovered in this unfortunate, disgraceful position and, worse than all, in sweeping costume. I surely thought I should suffocate.

Well, I must do something. They all knew that I was in the house and would hunt till they found me. I could better endure to face my lover. My lover—just think of it! Better call him my buyer—I a pet dog for his amusement! Better that I should come out of hiding and face him than be caught eavesdropping. I tried three times to make a move before I succeeded. The third time, my heart beating like a kettledrum, my face red as a beet, I bolted for the door leading into the hall, called to father, "Never mind; I'm here in the parlor," then slammed it to impress it upon every one without the room that I was shut up with my proposer and was to be let alone. Then I turned and faced him.

And he faced me. I don't know which was the more ludicrous, the gape on his face or the mortification mingled with wounded pride on mine. It seemed that we two rather than take up love and marriage were about to spring at each other like two wild animals.

The proper thing for me to have done under the circumstances was to wait for him to speak. But consider the situation. If it was not enough to rattle any girl, had she even the heart of a fish, then I am no judge of situations. Instead of appearing sensible of the compliment he had paid me in asking me to be his wife, instead of explaining that I had been an enforced eavesdropper, instead of saying a lot of things I should have said, I did what I should not, pouring upon him a torrent of abuse for proposing to make a convenience of me.

He stood listening to me deferentially, attentively and, I must add, admiringly. When I came to a pause he spoke:

"I've seen you in a number of costumes, but I never saw you look so pretty as in this one."

Then for the first time it occurred to me that I was doing the wrong thing, and I became conscious of my costume.

I suppose it was the sudden change of expression on my face. At any rate, my proposer smiled. Then the absurdity of it all occurred to me, and I repressed a smile. I was in no mood for trifling.

"Let me explain," he said. "In talking to your father I was talking as man to man, not as man to woman. I assure you I have no such talk for you." He came up to me and, taking me by the hand, led me to a seat and sat down beside me. What he said is not to be repeated, but it certainly was not what he said to father. It put an entirely different complexion on the matter and not only mollified me, but thrilled me.

He didn't speak long—there was no time. As soon as he had my answer he took up the practical part of the matter, explaining to me how much loneliness it would save him if I would go with him to South America, for he had a work before him that he could not leave for a long while. I consented, agreed to meet him at the parsonage at 5 o'clock and go with him from there to the steamer, which was to sail at 7.

How I got ready in a quarter of a day to be married and go into a country lying on the other side of the equator, how without a trousseau I was joined in wedlock to a man who had never spoken to me of love before that morning, how the telephone summoned Clara and her husband to be present at the church and how we were waved away to our foreign home were and are the wonder of my life.

How He Got Out.

"No," said Woodby, "I don't see Wiseman at all any more. He has dropped out of our social set."

"He tells a different story," remarked Sinnickson.

"Indeed!"

"Yes; he claims he has climbed out."—Catholic Standard

PHYSICIANS AND FEES.

A Medical View of the Doctor's Charge For His Services.

Those who discuss the physicians fee frequently miss the essence of it. As a matter of fact, under present social conditions the charge made to the wealthy and well to do is the normal and proper fee; the lowered charges made to those less fortunate are concessions. The tremendous field of the physician's charity is therefore usually underestimated, for it extends to a great majority of his patients.

In olden times, when medicine was nearly all art and but little science, the fee was unknown. Like other artists, the leech received an honorarium, the weight of which depended entirely upon the resources of the patient.

The popular impression that physicians make the rich pay for the poor is incorrect. They extend their services to all alike, and all are supposed to pay as much as they can afford for services really priceless and impossible to represent adequately in money values.

Any attempt made to establish standard fees by law is sure to work injustice to the physician. The "standard" fee would have to be much higher than the average fee at present and there would have to be some method of enforcing its sure payment. Only with the standard fixed, as now, by the ability of the wealthy is it possible for the poor to receive the benefits of the highest professional skill without losing their self respect.—New York Medical Journal.

POWER OF MUSIC.

The Awakening That Came to Stephenson on Hearing Ole Bull.

Ole Bornemann Bull, who was one of the famous wizards of the violin in the nineteenth century, had little difficulty in swaying an audience by the magic of his wonderful performance on his favorite instrument.

The great violinist was greatly admired by Stephenson, the inventor of the locomotive, although the latter had little appreciation of music in his soul. A call of some nature one day took Stephenson to Ole Bull's home. After the business on hand had been transacted the inventor arose to go, whereupon the master pressed him to remain and hear the tones of a famous violin which had lately come into his possession.

Ole Bull began to explain the marvelous construction of the violin, the perfect exactness required in each minutest part. The inventor became interested in the subject. Finally Ole Bull explained how the sound waves were produced and the relation of the different parts to their production Then, still explaining, he drew his magic bow across the strings in a burst of exquisite music.

Stephenson listened, spellbound. Ole Bull played on. When the music finally died away Stephenson burst into tears and sobbed. "There has been something in my life that was lacking, and at last I've found out what it is."

Escaped the Bullets.

Dr. James Craik, who was Washington's family physician, was with the Father of His Country in the expedition against the French and Indians in 1754, and the next year he attended General Braddock in his fatal campaigning. Fifteen years later, while exploring wild lands in the western districts of Virginia, Dr. Craik encountered a band of Indians led by an aged chief, who informed the physician through an interpreter that he had made a long journey to see Colonel Washington, at whom in the battle of Monongahela he had fired his rifle fifteen times and ordered all his young men to do the same. In fact, Washington had two horses killed under him that day, and his coat was pierced with four bullets, yet he left the battlefield unscratched.

A Chemical Experiment.

When the genial Quaker, Isaac T. Hopper, met a boy with a dirty face or hands he would stop him and inquire if he ever studied chemistry. The boy, with a wondering stare, would answer, "No."

"Well, then, I will teach thee how to perform a curious chemical experiment," said Friend Hopper. "Go home, take a piece of soap, put it in water and rub it briskly on thy hands and face. Thou hast no idea what a beautiful froth it will make and how much whiter thy skin will be. That's a chemical experiment. I advise thee to try it."—Life of Isaac T. Hopper.

Ancient History.

"I'm satisfied," said the young man who was just home from college, "that the science of electricity was understood before the flood."

"Don't be a fool," snorted the old gentleman.

"Beg pardon, but Noah must have certainly used some kind of an ark light."

SEEING A JOKE.

It Depends on the Brand of Humor to Which One Is Accustomed.

Foreigners, as a rule, do not understand our wit and humor. Sir Alfred Harmsworth once remarked to me, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that American humor was coarse and sometimes brutal. Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne are the only American humorists who are accepted by Englishmen. On the other hand, we do not appreciate the humor of Punch, the Englishman's delight.

I have seen an Englishman laugh heartily over a joke in Punch that I couldn't see any point to until it was explained to me, and no doubt that gentleman considered me as dense as we consider them when we tell them a funny story and get a sort of pained look, rather mystifying to be sure, instead of the laugh which was expected.

It is the local application of the joke that counts the world over. The funniest thing I ever saw was the charge a yearling Hereford bull made at a barbed wire fence in the Texas Panhandle. He struck the fence full tilt, and the rebound caused him to turn a complete back somersault. He landed on his hoofs all right, and there he stood all straddled out with a look of astonishment on his face that was almost human. It was so ludicrous that I lay down in the mesquite grass and rolled over in spasms of mirth. Then he began to bawl like a whipped child, turned tail and ran as from a banshee.

I was at dinner in a Bradford club and told about it, expecting to get a laugh, but all I got was this from Hon. Smith Feather, mayor of that Yorkshire city:

"By Jove, I didn't know those wire fences were so strong. It's a jolly good thing the poor brute wasn't injured."

WATERSPOUTS.

Old Time Mariners Fought Them With Noise and Cannon.

In the waterspout the medieval mariner saw a malevolent living monster—a sea dragon. There were various means of combating them. Once all sailors carried black handled knives, which the monster was believed to hold in special abhorrence.

When a spout made its appearance these knives were produced and pointed in its direction, waved in the air so as to make the sign of the cross or, according to the recommendation of certain contemporary authorities, driven several times into the side of the ship. Certain passages from the gospel of St. John were recited as charms against waterspouts.

A loud noise of any kind was also believed to be efficacious against them—shouts, the clash of swords, the beating of drums and gongs, etc. The custom of firing cannon against waterspouts, says the Scientific American, dates back at least as far as the sixteenth century. The original idea appears to have been to frighten them away by the noise of the report, but in the later times it was believed that the watery column could be cut in twain by the cannon ball and the spout thus dissipated. It would be interesting to know whether the cannonading of waterspouts is still sometimes practiced. It was certainly common, much less than a century ago. It is hardly necessary to say that it is entirely futile.

The Bawbee.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Pearson's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a commiseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bridegroom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mixed Metaphors.

A well known bishop, speaking in the upper house of Canterbury convocation on prayer book revision, rather startled some of his Episcopal brethren by declaring, according to the Church Family Newspaper, "We are not writing on a clean slate; there is a good deal of grit under the door."

No Wonder.

"My husband has never spoken a cross word to me."

"You lucky woman! How long have you been married?"

"Nearly two weeks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A little water to make it weak,

EDWIN L. HOUGH

The news of the death of Edwin L. Hough came as a great shock to his aunt Miss Julia Hough who knew nothing of his illness, or just where he was at the time.

He had been on a ranch in Gilroy for the past three years but left it this spring for a prospecting expedition up the mountains. He had been camping out from place to place until at last his health gave out and at Greenville, Calif. after an illness of only nine days he passed away July 2nd 1911.

At first his physician thought he might rally and seek a lower altitude but heart failure soon made this impossible. Kind friends ministered to him as best they could and when all was over laid him to rest in their cemetery. Ed. Hough as he was familiarly known in Tecumseh where his early life was spent, was 56 years old and seemed young to die, but Death counts not by years.

Just nine months ago his brother James was laid to rest in Brookside by loving friends who little thought that they would so soon be called to mourn the passing of another dear one but each death is a link that binds us to the beyond and we trust that the chain will be unbroken as each one is called home.

MOTORCYCLE TRIP

Mrs. James Hough and her three sons and Mrs. Stanley Hough came on their motorcycles from Aurora, Ill. They started out Saturday afternoon and but for the rain would have made the trip in a day and a half. They made Joliet, Hobert where they spent Saturday night, South Bend where they spent Sunday night, Elkhart, Valparaiso, Lima, Coldwater and Jonesville and any number of smaller towns on their trip reaching here Monday noon.

For the most part of the way the roads were excellent and the country was beautiful.

THE WORK OF THE WIND

The big windstorm that has swept over our state has done untold damage to the fruit crop. Whole orchards were stripped of their fruit, young fruit trees were upturned. In one county where apples are the chief harvest it is estimated that from 8 to 10 thousand bushels were laid low. Pear trees also were stripped of their fruit crop an our own vicinity at least half.

THE SUGAR BEET CROP

The sugar beet crop has increased at such a rate that another year the factories will have to double their capacity as this year they will not be able to take care of the crop. To the Grangers this will become one of their greatest industries and also a most profitable one. Farmers would do well to look into this industry and see if it will not pay better than some other crop that requires more attention.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

This week will see the completion of the Sanitary drinking fountains in various places about our town as the work of the Civic Improvment Society.

There is no one but realizes that these are good and important for the health of our village although most of us have pulled through without being germ filled, we think, in this age it seems right for them to be placed in schools, libraries, hotels and other public places, but a fountain to be placed on the four corners would have been more acceptable had it been more ornamental as was he intention of most of the society. The vote to place something that would be an ornament to our village was lost by only two majority and now it seems only right so long as one half have carried out their ideas, which were good, that they should join with the other half to raise money to place a fountain that will be an ornament as well as of use. A Member of the Civic Improvement Club.

Mr. William Hastings, of Albion who has been visiting Mrs. Wm. Cupples and other friends returned home Thursday night.

Harry Martin of Chicago who had been home for the funeral of his father Michael Martin returned home Thursday.

More Fertilizer Facts.

There are three elements of plant food, NITROGEN, otherwise known as ammonia, which imparts to the leaf color, to the stalk or vine growth. PHOSPHORIC ACID is the characteristic element of the bone. No grain or soil can be found without it and is invaribly deficient, in the same, and is believed, and without a doubt is a fact, that this is the most important of the three elements. POTASH is absolutely essential in the formation of wood fibre, in other words it stiffens the stalk or grain.

Lime has been used as a fertilizer from time immemorial, but in later years is sadly lacking in value compared with the three plant food elements and it has been found most soils contain a sufficient amount of lime. It is however a good purifier for sour soils and could be occasionally used to a good advantage for this purpose. It has practically no value as compared with Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid and Potash.

All official information claim that the raw materials should not be used alone or mixed dry, in other words, mixed with shevel and screen, owing to the fact that it is simply mechanical union in which no chemical action takes place. In regard to factory mixed goods in which the mixers are installed at a great expense, the different materials are chemically treated in large revolving, mixers, then allowed to mingle in a high degree of heat which re-combines the chemical elements in the material used. We can furnish those who desire these raw materials, at very low prices, much lower in fact than are being offered by some concerns today.

It is an absolute fact that all soils needs phosphoric acid. Clay or heavy soils invariably are deficient in nitrogen and have at all times enough or nearly enough potash. On the other hand, sand invariably has nearly enough nitrogen, but is deficient in potash. Now do not get an idea that it will be of any benefit for your immediate wheat crop to use more than 2% to 5% potash, for if you use more it will be practically thrown away, as your soils cannot absorb it

We would like very much to have every farmer read "Plant Food," a simple and intelligent booklet, copyrighted be W. H. Bowker which will be appreciated by even a schoolboy, owing to its being easy to understand. It contains no mention or advertisement of any fertilizer company. We will gladly furnish them upon request.

We reccomend and guarantee the HOMESTEAD brands of fertilizer, because they are quick to act and contain only available matter, which cannot be said of all fertilizers. While some have the correct analysis, they are a large extent insoluable. It may take years or never for you to realize any benefit from the same. We make a specialty of recommending certain brands for certain conditions and merely ask you to tell us the kind of soil and what you raised this year on the particular field that you ex-pect to put in this fall for wheat. If you will do this, we know we can satisfy you in giving you a much larger cropof wheat to harvest in 1912.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Tecumseh Citizens Have Discovered it

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys. Doan's kidney pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they can be depended upon. Follow the example of this Tecumseh citizen and you will be convinced that is so.

Eugene Hodges, Cumings St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a good remedy for strengthening the kidneys and clearing the system of uric poison. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results and I have no hesitation in publicly reccommending them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

EARLY RISERS

The famous little pills.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared Medicines, does refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medical qualities are recognized by the medical professions itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains to day its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. For sale by all druggists.

Free Sample. Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 405 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Guy, the youngest son of Farmer Timmins, had spent two years in college, during which time he had accumulated more indebtedness than education. His father paid his bills and left him to shift for himself. The boy had good stock in him, however, and managed by turning over a new leaf, practicing strict economy and doing odd jobs of work as opportunities presented themselves to pay for his tuition, and stayed on.

"How's your boy doing at college?" asked the elder Timmins' next neighbor one day.

"He's getting along all right now."

"I hear he's working his way through."

"Yes," grimly, but with a gleam of pride, answered Farmer Timmins. "He found he couldn't work me any more."—Youth's Companion.

LEGISLATORS TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Lorimer Committee Calls Members of Illinois Assembly.

WHITE IN WASHINGTON NOW

Washington, July 31.—The senate committee which is investigating charges of corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois will this week begin unearthing the testimony of Democratic members of the Illinois legislature of 1909, who confessed receiving money for voting for Lorimer.

Charles A. White will be put on the stand. It was his confession, printed in the Chicago Tribune of April 30, 1910, which was the first publication of the charges of corruption in the Lorimer election. White had been in Washington under subpoena for some days awaiting an opportunity to testify.

Three members of the legislature—H. J. Beckemyer, Michael S Link and D. W. Holstlaw—also confessed receiving money for their votes for Lorimer. Link died shortly after the election. Holstlaw is seriously ill at his home at Iuka, Ill., and was not able to obey the subpoena directing him to come to Washington to testify. All three members of the legislature who confessed receiving money will appear before the committee before the taking of testimony is concluded.

The cross-examination of Lawrence B. Stringer of Lincoln, Ill., was completed by Judge E. O. Hanecy, counsel for Senator Lorimer. Mr. Stringer was the only Democratic senatorial candidate before the Illinois legislature in 1909. Mr Stringer told of his efforts to hold the Democrats in line, and keep them from voting for a Republican. In reply to Senator Kenyon Mr. Stringer declined to admit that all the fifty-three Democrats who deserted him and voted for Mr. Lorimer were bribed. He said, however, that the alleged attempt to purchase fourteen Democratic votes for Albert J. Hopkins, one of the Republican candidates, cast suspicion on subsequent political deals. This alleged attempt to buy fourteen Democratic votes occurred in the latter part of January.

Edward O. Phillips, of the Chicago Tribune, also appeared as a witness. In January, 1909, he was the assistant legislative correspondent at Springfield for the Chicago Record-Herald. He identified an article written by him and published in the Record-Herald Jan. 7 of that year, the day after the election of Speaker Shurtleff, to the effect that Mr. Lorimer could be elected to the senate if he wished to become a candidate. The object of his examination was to show that the election of Speaker Shurtleff by Democratic and Republican votes was the first step toward a similar bi-partisan combination which five months later elected Senator Lorimer.

FIRE IN BROCKTON, MASS.

$200,000 Damage Is Done When Satacket Block Burns.

Brockton, Mass., July 31.—This city was given a fire scare when Satacket block, situated in the heart of the business section, was burned. It looked like an ordinary fire when the department got to work, but the explosion of ammonia tanks in a cold storage plant in the basement of the building blew three firemen from the windows and thirty more were overcome by the fumes. With the force thus depleted and the brick structure belching forth flames from every opening, aid was summoned from Boston, Quincy, Stoughton, Avon, Rockland and Taunton. For some time the fumes kept everyone at a distance.

Meantime the fire raged through the structure and communicated to a two and a half story lodging house in the rear and destroyed it. The Holbrook block, a four story brick structure, adjoining, also caught fire and was considerably damaged. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

NORTH ATLANTIC FLEET PLAYS WAR

Sails Into Cape Cod Bay in a Body This Morning.

IMPRESSIVE NAVAL PICTURE

Vessels and Men to be Kept Busy in Tactical Maneuvers—Novelty on Program—Officers Exchange Visits.

Provincetown, Mass., July 31.—Stocked with supplies and ordnance, on a war basis and with decks cleared for action, the North Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Osterhaus sailed into Cape Cod bay from this harbor at 10 a. m. today in a body, to engage in the summer maneuvers. It is unusual for the fleet to take to the bay in its entirety. The thousands of summer guests will be treated to an impressive naval picture as the ships of the various divisions, dreadnoughts, battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines, get under way.

Every ship got orders Sunday night to be prepared to sail at 7:30, but they did not haul their mud hooks for two hours after that. Today will be devoted to the tactical maneuvers. The schedule shows that men and ships will be kept busy. The program will include a novelty in that blank torpedoes are to be shot from one battleship at another instead of into nets as is the custom on ranges, thus making this branch of practice more realistic and interesting.

There was an exchange of visits among the five rear admirals and other officers Sunday. The town was swarming with the men from the ships. Crowds attended the ball games on Evans field. Hundreds of visitors were carried out to the ships in all sorts of small craft.

The battleship Maine, making fourteen in that division, arrived after dark from New York. O. R. Nelson, a seaman, died at 5:30 p. m. while the Maine was bound here from New York.

Mayor Barnard went into a cigar store and poolroom a few days ago and says two minors were playing pool. He immediately ordered the proprietor to stop the game and to permit no more minors to play.

London, July 31. — The Prince of Wales begins his duties as midshipman today on board H. M. S. Pindustan, which is now lying at Portsmouth. The Pindustan is a battleship of the King Edward VII class, which, with the exception of the Nelson and the Agamemnon, is the most powerful type of the pre-dreadnought fighting ship.

The royal midshipman will be treated exactly the same as any other youngster aboard, except that he will have his own cabin.

SNAKE CAUSES BOY'S DEATH

Makes Him Drop Gun, Which Explodes and Kills Him.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 31.—George W. Geiger, aged sixteen, met death by the accidental discharge of his shotgun while hunting squirrels. Young Geiger was standing on a log watching for a squirrel. A large black snake crawled out of a hole in the log and passed over his feet, and in his excitement he dropped his gun.

The hammer struck the log and exploded the shells, sending both loads of shot through the boy's abdomen.

EMBEZZLER GIVES UP

Declares He Plundered Bank of Pearl, Illinois.

Says $45,000 Was Amount of Theft, and $35,000 of It Lost in Stock Gambling.

San Francisco, Cal., July 31.—Carey A. Manker, sixty-five years old, arose from his bed in a water-front lodging house here early in the day and walked erectly between the ailes of "sleeping dozers" to the side of the room where the proprietor, James Bartman, sat on a little dais, watching to see that each lodger kept the space allotted him.

"I am a fugitive banker from Pearl, Ill.," he said. "I embezzled $45,000 from the Bank of Pearl, wrecked the institution and escaped. I am starving and want to give myself up. I have been hunted since 1908."

His clothes were worn and he extended a greasy card to Bartman. The card bore the name of "Carey A. Manker, president of the Bank of Pearl."

Without a word, Bartman summoned an employe of the lodging house and Manker was left in charge of the policeman on the beat. He was taken to the city prison, where he made a detailed statement of his looting the bank.

"Thirty-five thousand dollars of the money I took was gambled away in stocks," he said. "I made a desperate attempt to cover the shortage in my accounts and stole $10,000 more. As the result of my embezzlement the bank failed, and I fled the state.

"I have been in nearly every city in the country, working at everything I could get to do. I am old and broken and starving. I have given up the fight."

MANN ON WARPATH

Resents the Appointment of Wilkerson and Sims by President Taft.

Washington, July 31.—The nominations of James H. Wilkerson for district attorney, to succeed Edwin W. Sims, and of Luman T. Hoy, to succeed himself as marshal for the northern district of Illinois, has caused Representative James R. Mann of Chicago, the minority leader in the house, to take the warpath.

He is furiously indignant, alleging that the president has not given him a "square deal." His indignation extends to Senator Cullom, who championed Mr. Wilkerson, and at this hour involves opposition to the senator's ambition for re-election.

WAR PREDICTED BY ARCHIBALD

Correspondent Is Able to Speak With Authority.

ENGLAND AS STRIFE MAKER

If France and Germany Come to Clash of Arms It Will Practically Be the First Aeroplane War, Says Archibald.

New York, July 31.—James F. J. Archibald, war correspondent, who has seen service with twenty armies, and can speak with authority on military equipment, arrived from Europe and declared that with hardly a doubt there would be a war between France and Germany.

"England has been pushing France and Germany to war just as she pushed Russia and Japan to a war," said Mr. Archibald. "After she has succeeded in her designs England will step aside out of harm's way and Germany and France will fight it out together. My belief that there will be war is based on the fact that Germany cannot back out from her position, even though it is not a righteous one, without the government's losing its prestige at home. This the kaiser must avoid at all costs. Germany must either back down completely, for the French people will not countenance a grant of territory to Germany in Africa, or else she must fight with France.

"France is well prepared for war. She has today the finest military organization in the world. She is far ahead of any nation in her artillery equipment and also in her aeroplanes. It will practically be the first aeroplane war. The war, if it comes to that, will be fought on the frontier. France will protect her ports with submarines and aeroplanes. Germany has stuck to her dirigibles, and these are not nearly as serviceable in times of war as aeroplanes.

"One thing I found out was that the outside world knows nothing of the secret aero flights that occur every day in different parts of France, when trained experts are sent on five minutes' notice to distant places without tuning up or without waiting for favorable air currents. I tell you, France is a wonder today and she is in excellent condition to get her revenge on Germany. Her army in Africa is perfect and the esprit de corps in the entire army is splendid."

Cleveland, O., July 31.—Mrs. Margaret Duffey of Butte, Mont., wife of a mine owner, is speeding across the continent on a limited train to save from deportation her niece and nephew, Mary McLaughlin and Patrick Duffey, who are being detained at Ellis Island because they are under age.

Telegrams were sent from Cleveland to President Taft, immigration officers and personal friends in New York of the passengers on the train who might intercede for the children.

CANADA TO TAKE VOTE

Will Hold Reciprocity Election in September.

Dominion Parliament Dissolved as Result of Deadlock—Action Is Surprise.

Ottawa, Ont., July 31.—The eleventh parliament of Canada passed out of existence and upon the political complexion of a new one to be elected Sept. 21 will depend the fate of the reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada. Premier Laurier decided to ask for an immediate dissolution at a meeting of his cabinet and at once notified Earl Grey, the governor general.

A short time later a special issue of the Official Gazette was printed containing the formal announcement and giving legal effect to the edict.

In both Liberal and opposition rooms the news was received with cheers and the members hurried away to telegraph their political workers that the campaign was on.

Practically every member has left the capital and the campaign on the reciprocity issue begins all over the dominion today or tomorrow.

The announcement of dissolution came as a surprise. The absolute refusal of the Conservative minority in the house to close the debate on the government's reciprocity resolution and permit a vote upon it which would mean its adoption and the improbability of a change in their attitude resulted in the government's decision that it was useless to keep parliament sitting.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only postive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Sea Gave Up a Secret That Made Several Persons Happy

By E. KINGLAND WILLIAMS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

Up to a certain date I had always been skeptical of remarkable happenings. I was converted by an occurrence which if told me by my most trusted friend I would not have believed. And my conversion was the more complete since the marvelous episode turned the current of my whole life and made a husband and father of a bachelor. At any rate, I don't care to hear people sneer at improbabilities or at persons who vouch for them.

I was thirty years old and a confirmed bachelor. In fact, I considered myself especially fitted for single life. Whether or no I was fitted to be married never occurred to me. Doubtless if I had thought of that side of the proposition I should have considered that if I had chosen to marry I would make a model husband. But no marriage for me! Why should a man give up his freedom to suffer the annoyances of matrimony?

But it doesn't make any difference what a man's opinion is of matrimony. If he happens to be struck by matrimonial lightning he succumbs like any one else. It was at the seashore that the bolt fell upon me, and I forgot all about my prenuptial prejudices. Indeed, I began to worry and fret and fume for fear that matrimony would be denied me, for there was just one woman in the world I wished to marry, and if I didn't get her life would no more be worth living.

I was standing on the beach one bright morning where the blue waves were rolling in merrily looking at the bathers. A lady, young, rather pretty and whose superb figure was shown to advantage by a becoming bathing suit, walked leisurely down to the water's edge and stood looking out upon the scene before her. Each wave that came up sent a line of white froth to clasp her ankles. A breeze played with her skirt. Then she walked out to a greater depth, dived under an incoming wave and appeared beyond it swimming like a dolphin.

I watched for the lady when she came out of the ocean and saw her go into a little cottage built up against the dunes. The door closed behind her, but her image had been left with me. I saw her again the same evening supporting an old lady, doubtless her mother, on the board walk. This time I had a good view of her face, and a melancholy resting upon it only added to my suddenly awakened interest. Possibly any other expression would have served the same purpose, for when a man's imagination has been kindled by the spark of love any trait the fair one possesses is either thrilling or delightful and usually both.

I secured an introduction to Miss Henrietta Chamberlin and was graciously accorded permission to call at the cottage, where she lived with her mother and a younger brother. Every member of the family seemed to be under a melancholy induced by some misfortune. The natural disposition common to them all I judged to be genial and happy. But if at any time any or all became exhilarated some closet skeleton would thrust itself in upon their merriment and hush it.

Thinking to learn something about them, I questioned persons with whom they were acquainted. But no one knew them any better than I. When the Chamberlins were asked where they hailed from they gave evasive answers, stating usually that at present they were unsettled. Of all the persons with whom they became intimate during their sojourn at the seashore not one could give any account of them.

For a time this mystery put a damper on my enthusiasm with regard to Miss Chamberlin. But it was taking one step forward to two backward. I was becoming rapidly enthralled and soon got beyond any question of expediency. Then, too, the seashore is a dangerous place for those who wish to keep out of love's whirlpool. Though the waters look cool and tempting, there are sea pussies that are liable to whirl one beyond one's depth.

Miss Chamberlin and I were standing one moonlight night just above the highest line of foam when one of these pussies came up and carried up into a boundless ocean of torture—or was it a water fay that did the damage? At all events while we were looking at the moon's shimmer on the water, changing with the light clouds that floated lazily over her face, something took away all my caution, and I poured forth an unpremeditated story of love.

Instead of exciting pleasure I saw under the moonlight shining full in her face the melancholy she usually wore intensified.

"I have been weak," she said. "No woman can fail to see love before it is expressed. I should have repelled you."

"Why?" I asked, overwhelmed by a grievous disappointment.

"It's a secret."

"Tell me."

"There's a stain on our family name. Ask me no more."

I learned nothing further from Henrietta Chamberlin. I did afterward learn the secret, and in the strangest of all ways. But not then. Several years passed when it was given to me—by what?—the boundless ocean.

I could not move her, and beyond being allowed to call myself her friend I was permitted to come no nearer to her. I learned that the family were very proud and sensitive and that whenever they met any one to reveal their identity they left the place where they were immediately.

Miss Chamberlin and I parted as friends, but we were really lovers.

One summer I was yachting off the New Jersey coast when Joe Shedd, one of the crew, came to me with a bottle he had taken out of the water.

"I don't want it," I said. "This coast is covered with bottles that young people have thrown out with fake accounts of shipwreck in them."

The man went away, but presently returned with a paper, which he said might mean something real. It read:

Whoever finds this take up floor N. E. corner of sawmill one mile west of D, Conn.

"It's one of these children's messages," I said to the man, "to fool persons." Then I handed it back to him.

During the next autumn Shedd came into my office. He said that he couldn't get it out of his head that the message he had picked up at sea was a bona fide one. He would like to go to D. and look into the matter, but he had no money for the purpose. I tried to persuade him to dismiss the subject from his mind, but when I was satisfied that he wouldn't do so till he had proved the truth of my position I advanced him the price of a ticket to D. with something to spare.

"Whatever I find," he said, "I'll bring to you."

"You'll not find anything to bring. But don't worry about repaying the amount I have advanced. It's not a loan; it's a gift."

He made no reply to this, but left me, and that's the last I thought of the matter for a week, when he paid me another visit. I saw in a moment by his expression that he had found something.

"Well," I said jocularly, "did you get a big diamond?"

We were alone, and he closed the door before replying. Then he said:

"No, but I got a hundred $1,000 bonds."

I wondered if the man had gone daft.

"I consider the find yours, sir," he continued, "so I didn't disturb anything I found, putting back the flooring. Nobody knew about my being there."

"Do you mean to tell me you found a lot of bonds placed where that paper you picked up indicated?"

"I do."

"What else?" I asked after drawing several long breaths.

"This."

He handed me a paper, on which was scrawled in lead pencil.

Cashier didn't do this. The man as did is where he can't be reached.

Notwithstanding that this paper had a genuine look, some time was required for Shedd to convince me that it would be worth while to go with him and have a look at his find.

"You see, sir," he said, "the bonds must have been stolen property, and I'm afraid to touch 'em for fear of getting myself into trouble."

"Very well," I said at last. "I'll go with you, and if you've found some missing securities and there is a reward offered for their recovery I'll see that you get it."

We reached D. in the afternoon, and Shedd having provided himself with tools and a lantern, after supper we walked out to a deserted sawmill. It was some distance from the road and stood alone. Going to a corner of the mill, Shedd removed some rubbish and took up a plank of flooring. Between two joists lay a bundle, the wrapper being a newspaper. Shedd handed it to me, and, unrolling it, there sure enough were a hundred $1,000 bonds of a railway company. I saw at a glance that they were not negotiable by the thieves. The date on the newspaper indicated that it had been printed nine years before. Shedd had taken the only thing besides the bonds—the scrap of paper—that had been left in the place of concealment.

Having replaced the flooring, we returned by an early train the next morning, and, going to police headquarters, I reported the find.

I was informed that nine years before a certain bank had missed the bonds, and the cashier whose accounts were short had been convicted of making way with them. And here came the surprise of my life and an explanation of a mystery that had kept me from the woman I loved.

The name of the cashier was Vincent Chamberlin.

There had been just enough shortage in his accounts and circumstantial evidence against him to convict him of having taken the bonds, doubtless for the purpose of speculation. Their finding, with the note accompanying them, was a vindication for the cashier, and he was released from prison.

The happiest day in my life was when, having gone to my Henrietta with her brother's vindication in my hands, I saw the look of mingled wonder and delight in her eyes as she read the words that were to take away the great stain and make him a free man. She stood for awhile looking at nothing, as if wrapped in a happy dream. I refrained from interrupting this joyous sense of relief as long as I could contain myself, then took her in my arms. I said nothing, nor did she. Her head fell upon my shoulder, and this was the only sign I asked for to know that my season of disappointment had ended.

DINED THE AUDIENCE.

And the Treat Proved a Fine Ad. For Liszt and Rubini.

An article in an Italian review contains an interesting story of Liszt and Rubini, the tenor. They were touring together and visited a town where, from the preliminaries which had been arranged, great things were expected. But they were disappointed, for when they entered the hall they found only fifty persons present.

Ribini was furious and said he would not sing, but Liszt calmed him. "You must sing," he said. "This small audience is evidently composed of musical connoisseurs of the town, so we should treat them with respect." Liszt set the example with a grand overture, and Rubini sang to perfection. Liszt gave another piece and then addressed the audience.

Liszt as an orator was as tactful as he had been in the role of pacificator. Addressing his audience of fifty, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen"—there was only one lady present—"I think that you have had enough music. Allow me to ask you to take a little supper with us." After a few seconds the invitation was accepted, and Liszt and Rubini entertained the audience to supper at their hotel, which cost them 1,200 francs.

When the guests separated the hosts thought the affair had been a joke, about which nothing more would be heard, but they decided to give their concert as advertised on the following night. To their astonishment the hall was packed. There was not standing room. The whole town had turned out on the off chance of an invitation to supper.

Pineapple Juice.

As an aid of digestion, a really material aid, the pineapple stands alone among the fruit. Its vegetable pepsin neutralizes, or perhaps rather digests, albuminous substances in the stomach. Fresh pineapple or, better still, the fresh juice of one placed in direct contact with eggs or gelatine or milk will prove this fact conclusively by producing a bitter tasting dish. In cases of catarrhal ailments of the throat and in its downward connection the alimentary canal or tract pineapple cannot be overestimated, and it acts with equal force in malarial affections.—New York World.

They Insisted on Brevity.

The Spartans were distinguished for the brevity and conciseness of their speech. On one occasion during a terrible famine the inhabitants of an island in the Aegean sea sent an ambassador, to Sparta, who made a speech imploring its aid. He had hardly finished before the Spartans sent him back these words, "We did not understand the end of your speech and have forgotten the beginning."

The poor, starving people chose another spokesman and impressed upon him to make his request as brief as possible. He therefore took with him a quantity of sacks, opened one before the assembly and said simply, "It is empty; fill it."

The sack was filled as well as the others, but the chief of the assembly said as he dismissed the ambassador, loaded with meal: "It wasn't necessary to inform us that the sack was empty. We saw it ourselves. Neither was it necessary to request us to fill it. We should have done it on our own account. Be less long winded next time."

Just What He Wanted.

The superintendent of the capitol and its grounds at Washington was walking along one of the corridors in the house office building one day when a greenhorn congressman, stewing with rage, grabbed him by the sleeve.

"What's the matter?" asked the superintendent, observing the man's emotion.

"Matter!" shouted the congressman. "Why, when I went into my office last evening there was a brand new typewriter on the desk. Now it's gone. You've got a lot of thieves around here."

The official walked into the office and without a word lifted the trap cabinet of the desk and brought the typewriter into view.

"Fine!" commented the congressman. "Now, have you got a place like that in here for my use when troublesome constituents knock on the door?"—Washington Star.

Punctuation In Piano Playing.

A joke is going the rounds of the press about the girl whose music teacher wished to compliment her, but of whom he could only say that she played the rests excellently. This is, however, real praise of a sort, for it is not every young student of music who is careful about playing the rests well. Indeed, a great many players seem to forget that the rests are just as much of the piece as is the punctuation in a sentence. Nowadays people do not put in so much punctuation as they used to do, but the pauses in the voice are there just the same and are readily understood by good readers and always regarded. The rests in music are like the pauses in reading that are needed to give expression to the sentences. If the player slights the rests or extends them too long the whole effect of the musical sentence is spoiled.—Christian Science Monitor.

Feet Versus the Pen.

In speaking of personal recollections of Dion Boucicault, Henry Miller dwells upon his superb skill as a stage director and tells of the following incident, which occurred during his first rehearsal under Boucicault:

"I went to him direct from Augustin Daly's management. Daly coached his players to cross and recross the stage during the progress of the play, with the idea that this continual moving about of the actors created dramatic action. During my first rehearsal I made a 'Daly cross' as I spoke one of my lines.

"'Why did you do that?' Boucicault asked in his quaint, quizzical manner.

"I explained that I imagined it would keep the scene moving.

"'Thanks, my boy,' said Boucicault dryly, 'but if I cannot interest the audience with my pen I don't think you can with your feet.'"

Bulldogs and Bulls.

Bulldog is so called because of his native antipathy to the bull. A thoroughbred bull pup as young as six months the first time he beholds a bull will run at the head, which is his invariable point of attack, and, seizing the horned beast by the lip, tongue or eye, hang on despite every attempt to detach him. The dog will even suffer himself to be killed or dismembered rather than relax his hold.—New York Telegram.

Protest.

"I beg pardon," said the new arrival, "but it seems to me it's excessively warm here."

"Eh! What?" snorted Satan. "Evidently you forget where you are. This place is meant to be warm."

"Quite so, but there's such a thing as overdoing it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Eager For Information.

An American took a friend, an Englishman, to a theater. An actor in the farce, about to do the dying act, exclaimed, "Please, dear wife, don't bury me in Yonkers!"

The Englishman turned to his friend and said, "I say, old chap, what are yonkers?"—Everybody's.

The Usual Result.

"Yes, Charlie is as brave as a stack of lions. Did you hear about his daring a policeman to arrest him?"

"No! Gee, what happened?"

"He was arrested."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disgusted.

Fickle Popularity.

"You started with the full confidence of your constituents, and now you are criticised on every hand."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum mournfully, "my experience has been very much like that of a man who good naturedly consents to umpire a ball game."—Washington Star.

A Master of Fiction.

"What is Dobbleigh's general reputation for veracity, Bildad?" asked Hickenlooper.

"Well, it's this way," said Bildad. "If Dobbleigh could write the way he talks he'd have Sir Walter Scott and Alexander Dumas lashed to the mast."—Harper's Weekly.

Quick Action.

A southern farmer was trying to sell a mule to a negro who two years before had been kicked on the head by the animal.

"Of course," said the farmer, "this mule kicks, but"—

"I don' wan' him," objected the colored man emphatically.

"Just because he kicks?" asked the farmer, with an air of contempt.

"Humph!" grunted the negro. "Dat mule don' kick; he shoots."—Popular Magazine.

Wee Is His.

First.—My wife is my boss. I shall not deny.

Second.—She maketh me to lie down behind the bed when swell company comes, and she leadeth me behind her up Main street.

Third.—She restoreth my pocketbook after she has spent all of its contents for stylish skirts and theater tickets, and she leadeth me up the main aisle at church for her new hat's sake.

Fourth.—Yea, though I walk more than half the night through dark rooms with a crying baby I will get no rest, for she is behind me; her broomstick and her hatpin they do everything else but comfort me.

Fifth.—She prepareth a cold snack for me, then maketh a bee line for an aid society supper. She anointeth my head with the rolling pin occasionally. My arms runneth over with the bundles before she is half done with her shopping.

Sixth.—Surely her dressmaker's and milliner's bills shall follow me all the days of her life, and I will dwell in the house of my wife forever.—Urich (Mo.) Herald.

Signaling at Sea.

The custom of signaling at sea by means of various colored flags is very ancient, and the method seems to have been brought to a degree of development bordering very closely on perfection. Many people have been astonished at the length of messages conveyed in a few moments and with the use of but half a dozen flags in various combinations, and when the extent of the language and the complexity of many necessary messages are considered the eighteen flags in the signal flag locker seem very inadequate. However, it must be remembered that the signal code utilizes a sort of shorthand, and many long messages, known to be of frequent occurrence, have been contracted to a single showing of flags in a given combination. The number of flags hoisted when a signal is made never exceeds four. With the eighteen flags of various colors, using four for each signal, no fewer than 78,642 combinations can be made.

An English Ghost.

A Westmoreland ghost used to haunt the shores of Windermere, where the Lowthers from time immemorial have been lords of the lake—the "crier of Claife." One tempestuous night in prereformation times a cry was heard across the water by the ferryman at the Nab inn—"A boat!" The ferryman, against all his cronies' persuasions at the inn, set out. After many hours he reached the Nab again, his boat dragged down by some unseen weight and himself with hair on end, a raving lunatic. Soon he died, and every stormy night his wraith was heard in agonized shrieks across from Claife till at last the resident monk of Furness was sought in his retreat on Lady Holm and persuaded to "lay" the unhappy spirit, which he duly did. Harriet Martineau and others tell the tale.—London Chronicle.

The Weaker Sex.

The young woman had spent a busy day.

She had browbeaten fourteen sales people, bullyragged a floorwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, laid down the law to a modiste, nipped in the bud a taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a block for her, discharged her maid and engaged another and otherwise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon.

Yet she did not smile that evening when a young man begged:

"Let me be your protector through life!"—Life.

New Angle on Help.

"Why did you inquire so particularly into the wardrobe of that girl you just hired?" asked one of two women who were leaving an employment agency.

"To find out how carefully she will guard against burglars," said the other. "My experience has been that a girl who has nice things of her own will lock up more securely at night and keep a sharper eye out for sneak thieves in the daytime than one who has nothing of value to lose."—New York Press.

She Was Right.

"How effusively sweet that Mrs. Blondey is to you, Jonesey," said Witherell. "What's up? Any tender little romance there?"

"No, indeed. Why, that woman hates me," said Jonesey.

"She doesn't show it," said Witherell.

"No, but she knows that I know how old she is. We were both born on the same day," said Jonesey, "and she's afraid I'll tell somebody."—Harper's Weekly.

The First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse was erected at Pharos, near Alexandria, in Egypt. It was finished in 285 B. C. Its height was 550 feet, and the light, which was kept burning on top at night, was visible forty-one miles away. This tower existed for some 1,600 years, when it was destroyed by an earthquake.

The Idea.

"Can a married man acquire happiness?"

"Sure! You don't think that bachelors are the only ones that die, do you?"—Toledo Blade.

Generally.

"Pa," said Freddy, "what is a social scale?"

"Generally speaking," replied pa, "it's a place where they weigh money."

There is an oblique way of reproof which takes off from the sharpness of it.—Steele.

Borrowed to Save.

Uncle Reuben, the village whitewasher and man of all work, was a frequent borrower of small sums from his neighbor, Colonel Arkwright, and as a rule he repaid these little debts at the appointed time. But on one occasion when he had been accommodated with a loan of $2.50, which he promised to return in a few days, he allowed two or three weeks to pass without making any mention of his indebtedness and, in fact, seemed to avoid his creditor. But one morning the colonel unexpectedly encountered him at the postoffice.

"Hello, Uncle Rube! Didn't you borrow a little money from me several weeks ago?"

"Dat's right, cunnel," said the old man. "I sholy did."

"You told me you'd pay it back in three or four days. Have you had bad luck?"

"No, suh," responded Uncle Reuben. "I'll tell you how it was, cunnel. I lacked jes' two dollahs an' a half o' havin' ten dollahs to put in de savin's bank, an' I used it fo' dat. It's all right, cunnel. I won't fo'git it."—Youth's Companion.

TECUMSEH'S OPINION OF DUSTLESS ROADS

How Do You Like It?
My What a Smell!
Won't It Be Lovely?
A Few Weeks Will Tell.

It is amusing to listen to the different people in regard to the experiment now being tried upon our streets to lay the dust, and that each and every one has an opinion goes without saying and each one is different.

The first person thinks it the finest ever had the next says "how rotten might better have the sprinklers" another says alright but the odor, whew! Another fears for her carpets and the white shoes. Still another sees the good that is sure to come.

But despite the smell which is a healthy one and the inconvenience experienced from the tracking up we think the good accomplished will quite overcome all these.

These people who are finding fault do not stop to think that the abutting property owners are paying for all this from their own pockets giving the experiment of dustlaying for the profit of the people as well as for the benefit of their own property and should it prove a success everyone will be grateful.

Over-Churched; Under-Guarded.

A citizen of Shirley objects to the vote of the town authorizing an out-of-town policeman, on the ground that there are six churches in the village, and that if it does not behave itself what it needs is a missionary, and not an officer. Possibly if there were not more than two churches in the town there would be enough public spirit to make either missionaries or policemen unnecessary.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

CALIFORNIA LETTER
From W. P. Stocking

Long Beach, Calif., July 20 1911

Editor Herald:—

I wish I could send to your meadows with this letter some of our invigorating, heat dispelling, sea breeze with which we are so bountifully blessed and which adds so much to the pleasure of living.

Our spring and so far our summer have been so cool some of the tenderest tenderfeet say cold. That our crop of summer visitors has been slow in maturing but the late heatical conditions East and in the interior of the state is bringing it to maturity in great shape.

All indications are that Long Beach will have a larger crop this season than any former season, and as in the past it will be of the very best quality.

Like all seaside resorts our visitors are of all classes and conditions of people coming here for different reasons; some for rest; some for recuperations some come to fish; some for sea and sand baths; and some for pleasure only.

Owing to the fact that we have no saloons and liquors are not sold in our hotels and restaurants, that we have no gambling dens and devices; no open pool rooms or dance halls on Sunday, and our police force keep the pike and the beach clear of all roughs and toughs, we have the better class of visitors while the rougher element seeks more "open" resorts.

It is a cause for great regret by our large population of Sabbath respecting, church going and moral citizens the younger as well as the older, that we have as many amusements Sunday as we have. It is also to be regretted that we have quite a number of citizens in our midst who are all the time working for more liberal ordinances concerning Sunday amusements and are at the present time petitioning the council to allow the poolrooms and dance hall to be open Sundays They try it every season but have failed so far.

Mayor C. H. Windham who is the best mayor we ever had or are likely to have says, "that he will never O K. any measure to those places open Sunday," if they are ever opened while he is in office it will be over his veto and if this should be done the citizens will take a hand and if they do something is done. This is a church going comunity the are to hold several Christain conventions here this summer among them that of the Christian Church of Southern California, Seventh Day Adventist camp meeting, Y. W. C. A. Conference of Southern California, General Assembly of Baptists of Southern California, Annual Convention of Southern California, C. E. Society and the World's Spiritual Congress. Their conventions will bring thousands of Christian people here from all over Southern California. Among the annual State picnics already announced are, Ohio, Iowa and Nebbraska. A number have already been held. Today, July 20th it took fifteen cars to bring four Sunday School picnics from interior citites to spend the day.

Our young people take great pleasure in evening picnics and campfires on the beach.

July 22. Are we growing? If $125,000 for building permits for this month to date, and $1,100,000 for year to date, and $85,000 in bonds to buy out the two western companies; the opening of a municipal dock and harbor where the largest lumber and freight vessels land and unload, within the city limits; thousand of dollars expended in street improvements all so far this year, are indications of growth. We are growing some, don't you think?

Since writing above Death Valley, Bear Valley and Mohava Desert have been experiencing very severe electrical storms and distructive rains, but nothing of the kind occurs here. Michigan gets her full share of electrical storms, which we are glad to escape.

DON'T LEAVE YOUR PARCELS ON THE TRAIN

And Expect Free Telegraph Service

The Managers and Operators of the Telegraph Department of the L. S. & M. S. Railroad Co. have received the following letter which speaks quite plainly to the public as well as to the Co.

Managers and Operators:

It develops that messages relating to articles left by passengers on trains, are frequently handled free over railroad wires, as an accomodation to the parties interested by employes who presumably do not know that such messages should be charged for at regular commercial rates.

Such communications are of course, on the business of the owners of the lost articles, and free service rendered in such cases not only deprives the Telegraph Company of its proper tolls but is contrary to the Amended Interstate Commerce Law, which forbids free telegraph service.

Please discontinue the practice of giving free service to locate articles left by passengers on trains seeing that such messages are regular checked and paid for in all cases hereafter.

E. C. Keeman,
Supt. Telegraph.

BILLY SUNDAY

About 1,100 people listened to Billy Sunday in Hudson Saturday afternoon at the opening meeting, of the Chautauqua there. The large tent was filled to over flowing, and the sides were taken down to accommodate the crowd gathered outside.

About 40 voices in the chorus sang inspiring revival songs for about 30 minutes before Billy Sunday took the stand, there was a wide awake time from then to the close of the meeting. No form of sin was to select for him to attack, and if he hit hard with some, all admitted that he spoke the truth.

At Adrian a large audience assembled to hear him, on Sunday afternoon. He fully came up to the expectation of his hearers, his vocabulary ranging from the purest diction to the language of the saloon. He left no subject unturned, and gave most decided opinions on the principal subjects of the day. The address was most intresting, and made more so by the original manner in which he aired his orginal views.

The general opinion of his hearers was quite favorable all feeling he was doing good work in his own peculiar style.

GRACEFUL AND ATTRACTIVE WOMEN

If you are thin and want to be plump; if you have wrinkles in your face that you are not proud of, if your skin is sallow or subject to pimples or blackheads take MI-O-NA stomach tablets for two weeks and notice the change

Nine tenths of the thin people are thin because the stomach is not active; it is not mixing thoroughly with the natural digestive juices the food put into it, and in consequences is not extracting from the food enough nourishing matter for the blood to distribute to every part of the body. If the stomach does not do its work properly the nourishment in the food you eat is passed along without giving to the body any flesh building element.

MI-O-NA stomach tablets quickly build up the stomach so that it extracts from the food all the elements necessary to form good solid flesh.

If you are thin try a two weeks treatments of MI-O NA stomach tablets; two with each meal will work wonders.

MI-O-NA stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back. Sold by C. A. Wright & Son and druggist everywhere at 50 cents a box.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results, is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

More people men and women, are suffering from kidney and bladder trouble than ever before, and each year more of them turn for quick relief and permanent benefit to Foley's Kidney Remedy which has proven itself to be one of the most effective remedies for kidney and bladder ailments that medical science has devised. For sale by all druggists.

Preferred to Be a Quack.

A quack at a fair near Paris was driving a roaring trade selling nostrums, drawing teeth and beguiling the crowd in the usual ways, says the British Medical Journal. The letter of the French law against unqualified practice is very strong, though owing to the indifference of the magistrates it is not strictly carried out. This, however, was a particularly flagrant case, and the police felt compelled to intervene. The quack was therefore accosted by the guardians of the law, taken to a tent at the back of his stand and requested to show his diploma. To the stupefaction of the gendarmes he exhibited a perfectly authentic degree of doctor of medicine of the University of Paris. They were profuse in their apologies, which the doctor cut short with an urgent entreaty that they should say nothing about what they had seen, "for," he said, "if the people know that I am a qualified doctor I shall have no more customers."

A Marvel of Insect Mechanism.

The sting of a certain Indian fly offers as marked an example of design in nature as can well be imagined. When seen through a magnifying glass it is found to be composed of three sharp blades folded into one with their cutting edges outward and running down to one fine point. When the fly inserts this up to the hilt in its victim the three blades fly apart, and then it is seen that each inner edge is a beautiful saw, worked by six separate muscles, so that when withdrawn the instrument rips its way out with a gush of blood. But now comes the most curious provision of all. It would not do to fold up these blades with the blood adhering to them, so each blade is provided at its base with a fine brush of hairs growing out of an oil gland, which provides an antiseptic secretion to keep the blades clean.

Careless, as Usual.

The great baseball player's wife had never seen a game, but he finally persuaded her to view one in which he was to play.

He was doing his best, of course. One strike had been called on him, and, as usual in baseball anecdotes, two men were out and the bases were full. Our hero was gathering his strength for the swat he was going to give the ball.

And the ball came. He knew it was his as the ball started, and with a mighty crack he lifted it into space.

Dropping his bat, he sped for first, and ere the roar of applause burst out a slight woman in the grand stand rose and called:

"Will, come back here and put that bat where it belongs!"—Buffalo Express.

Kissing Ethel.

She was fashionably dressed and gave out the perfume of violets as the brakeman turned to help her up the steps of the train which was due to leave. Turning to her maid, she said:

"Oh, I must kiss Ethel goodby!"

"Oh, go on," said the fresh brakeman. "I'll kiss Ethel goodby."

"No, you won't, either," came from the woman. "That precious dog was never kissed by a stranger in her whole life!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Sensible Course.

"Why do you insist on that boy's studying music?" said the man with respect for all. "You know very well he can't sing."

"Yes," replied the patient father; "I know it. And I want him to learn enough about music to realize it for himself."—Exchange.

"So you are going to have a new gown?"

"I don't know. Mother has passed the bill, but I expect father will veto it. He is opposed to all our bills nowadays."

TANGLED ABOUT PEARY

Navy Department In Trouble Over His Promotion.

Vacancy In List of Captains of Civil Engineers Is Perplexing to the Authorities.

Washington, July 31—Promotion and retirement of Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary in recognition of his discovery of the north pole have presented a tangled problem the navy department has not yet solved. The bill honoring the explorer passed congress in March 1911, but provided that the promotion and retiremen should date from April 9, 1909, when the pole was discovered.

The promotion of Peary made a vacancy in the list of captains of civil engineers and afforded opportunity for promotions. The question which has arisen is whether the promotions should be retroactive and date from April, 1909, or begin with March, 1911, when the act was passed.

The department is searching the service for promising young officers with a natural bent toward civil engineering with a view of filing existing and prospective vacancies in the engineering corps. Three ensigns, Henry G. Taylor and Gaylord Church of Pennsylvania and Ralph D. Spalding of Illinois will be given the course of instructions at the Renssalaer Polytechnic Institution of Troy, N. Y.

INDIANS LOSE LAND SUIT

New York Board Decides Litigation Begun In 1790.

Albany, N. Y., July 31.—No damages are due the Cayuga tribe of Indians, one of the Six Nations, from the sale by the state of New York of land ceded by them to the state by the treaty of 1798, on which the state made a profit of $250,000, according to a decision just announced by the land board.

The matter has been under adjustment for more than 100 years. With interest the sum now exceeds $2,000,000. The state auctioned off the lands in 1796, and the Indians laid claim to part of the profits.

Bottomless Tarpon Springs.

The great body of water which gave the name to Tarpon Springs, Fla., is classed by all of the old citizens as bottomless. The center appears to be a hole curbed with jagged rocks. Sometimes the weight has lodged and then dropped on to the extent of the sounding line afterward. Many citizens say that they know the depth to be in excess of 700, 800 and 900 feet. Once when a depth of 200 feet was reached an obstruction was encountered; then it was dislodged, dropped on farther, and the line broke. A very heavy weight has to be used on account of the depth, and when divers are sent down in the springs, as they have been recently, they report the same great jagged hole, which, so far as they can find out, is without bottom. The spring is supposed to be the principal outlet of that beautiful Lake Butler which lies just a mile east of the town. Tidewater comes up into the spring, and it has acquired the name because it was the playground of the silvered king of fish, the tarpon.—Manufacturers' Record.

The Difference.

It was at an afternoon concert, and in the stalls sat a smartly dressed girl and the young man who deemed her the most precious jewel of the universe. Behind them sat a couple of the type of concert goers who came rather to discuss the audience than listen to the music.

"Look at that girl just in front of us," commented one in a very audible whisper. "She's shop assistant at L.'s. I should like to know what business she has at a gathering of this sort. And just look at her hat! She served me the other day with the one I am wearing, and I suppose she persuades herself that there is no difference between it and mine. I never"—

"Oh, yes, madam, there's a difference," she said quietly; "mine is paid for."—London Tit-Bits.

BRITISH VESSEL STRIKES ROCKS

H. M. C. S. Niobe Has Extremely Narrow Escape.

LIMPS INTO SAFE ANCHORAGE

Ledges of Cape Sable Pierce Her Starboard Engine Room and Injure After Part of Ship.

Halifax, N. S., July 31.—The marine department had a late message from Shag Harbor, ten miles to the southwest of the ledges, that the cruiser Niobe had reached there and was in a safe anchorage. She was escorted by a towboat from Yarmouth. The cruiser proceeded to Shag Harbor under her own steam and may reach Halifax Tuesday, but this depends on weather conditions.

Halifax, N. S., July 31.—H. M. C. S. Niobe is holding on by two anchors in thirty fathoms of water just outside of the southwest ledges of Cape Sable, after having struck the ledges there, piercing her starboard engine room and suffering injuries to the afterpart of the ship.

Captain McDonald, finding himself able to keep the water clear with his pumps, the Niobe asked for assistance, stating that she was in grave peril. Later the ship wired that she was afloat and request for relief was modified to one asking that a convoy be sent down. It was a narrow escape and how the Niobe got off so easily is not explained.

It was high tide when the word came that the cruiser had struck and the presumption is that she found herself on the ledge just before and that when the wireless message was received that the ship was afloat it was low water. This leads to the belief that the cruiser never really stranded, but that she struck lightly, causing a piercing of the engine room and allowing the water to enter in the afterpart of the ship.

The fog hung densely on this coast and a heavy gale was blowing. The Niobe had been for several days at Yarmouth, anchored in the roadstead outside, the depth of water within forbidding an entrance to the harbor.

The weather conditions apparently prompted the captain of the Niobe to sail, considering that he would be better off at sea than in the position he then occupied. It proved to be a bad choice.

Shortly after the Niobe's first message asking for assistance came another wireless stating that two boom boats manned by sixteen men had drifted away and requesting that small boats be sent in search of them.

Later the Niobe's captain wired that one of the boom boats had rejoined the ship and that the sixteen men were in her.

Government Will Take Merger Decision to Supreme Court

Washington, July 31.—The government will take to the supreme court the Harriman merger suit which was decided in favor of the railroads by the United States circuit court at St. Louis.

Attorney General Wickersham directed C. A. Severance, the government's special counsel in the case, to prepare the appeal and file it as soon as possible.

PATAGONIAN INDIANS.

Customs of the Remnants of a Once Powerful Tribe.

Normally the Tehuelches, as the Patagonian Indians are called, are a peaceable and kindly people, yet they are impulsive, capable of strong prejudices, very revengeful and—often with good reason—suspicious of strangers. They are not to be trifled with and when under the influence of drink are brutal and dangerous. They show love for their children and wives and kindness to their old people. They are divided into numerous tribes or groups, each having its chief or cacique, upon whom the burdens of government rest but lightly.

They believe in a good and an evil spirit, whom they propitiate, and have many stories, myths and superstitions connected with the sun, moon and stars, while the slaying of horses and drinking of blood form a conspicuous part of their superstitions, birth, marriage and death ceremonies, many of which are most repulsive.

When Magellan first passed through the strait there were perhaps no fewer than 10,000 Patagonians roaming from the Rio Negro to the strait, while today, driven back from the littoral to the high pampas and the foothills of the Andes, altogether they would probably not total over 500.—Harper's Magazine.

A Witty Thief.

Munich has been visited by a thief with a sense of humor. Several days ago all the clocks in the ministry of railways came to a standstill. The central or "master clock," which controls all the others, had been stolen. In its place was a sheet of paper with the words, "Time was made for slaves."

OSBORN WILL OPEN STATE FAIR

Governor Has Formally Accepted Invitation.

Deroit, Mich., Aug. 2—Governor Chase S. Osborn has formally accepted the invitation of the Michigan State Agricultural society to officially open the Michigan state fair, Monday, Sept. 18th. It is planned to make the opening quite a ceremony, as ex-Governor John T. Rich and ex-Governor Fred M. Warner, Mich'gan's only two living ex-governors, have also accepted invitations to be present, and invitations have been sent to both Michigan and United States senators.

Should President Taft finally decide to attend the fair on the opening day instead of a later date as now contemplated, much more elaborate plans will be worked out, as Detroit are especially are desirous of giving President Taft a royal welcome on occasion of his visit to Detroit.

Senator La Follette writes the fair management that he still hopes to arrange his engagements to be present on the grounds Thursday, Sept. 21, Gleaners and Grange day.

There is no more beautiful or interesting city in the country for people from the interior of a great state to visit than the City of Detroit. September is always a delightful month and at the time of the State Fair nature has put on its fall garb, the shops are trimmed with the showings for fall and winter that delight the feminine eye and profit the bargain hunter. The theaters present their best offerings and the thousands that are attracted to the State Fair find additional recreation and enjoyment in a shopping tour of the big department stores, a visit to the parks and cafes, a ride about the city on the electric lines, an evening stroll through the brilliantly lighted business district or a ride on the pleasure steamers that ply beautiful Detroit river, through which passes the greatest freight tonnage of the world.

Eleventh Parliament of Canada Has Been Dissolved.

ELECTIONS OCCUR SEPT. 21

Former Minister of Interior Calls on Canadians to Defeat Reciprocity Agreement With United States. Laurier Will Tour Dominion Next Week, Urging Adoption of Treaty.

Ottawa, Ont. (Special).—The eleventh parliament of Canada is dead. It was prorogued and dissolved by the proclamation of the governor general on the insistent and oft-repeated advice of the prime minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who has for several days been urging the step.

The Canadian election campaign will not be in full swing for a fortnight. As it is nearly seven weeks before election day and the usual length of a campaign is a month, both parties feel that they profitably can devote some time to perfecting organizations efore platform work is inaugurated vigorously.

Prime Minister Laurier is not expected to start until the end of next week upon his speaking tour with ratification of the reciprocity agreement with the United States as the vital issue.

While the government will endeavor to keep reciprocity as the dominant issue of the campaign the manifesto of Opposition Leader Borden shows that his candidates will bring to the fore other issues.

Clifford Sifton, former minister of interior has issued a pre-election letter urging Canadians to vote against reciprocity, which he declares would prove injurious to Canada and the British empire.

The Canadian elections will occur on Sept. 21.

Changes in Jap Cabinet.

Tokio (Special).—A news agency here, which it is understood is close to a member of the cabinet, says that Count Katsura tendered his resignation as premier on July 27 and recommended Marquis Saionji for that post. The change will probably be announced on August 25.

MISS EMILIE GRIGSBY.

Ward of Charles T. Yerkes, Who Caused Commotion In England.

Queen Will Investigate Emilie.

London (Special).—The story that Emilie Grigsby, ward of the late Charles T. Yerkes, is the intimate associate of Princess Mary and the young Prince of Wales, and that this same Miss Grigsby, by intrigue or some other means, secured the coveted pasteboard that enabled her to see the coronation at a close range, has so thoroughly vexed the queen that she has decided to go to the bottom of the report.

Canadian Flagship Released.

Halifax, N. S. (Special).—The protected cruiser Niobe, the flagship of Canada's infant navy, has been saved from a perilous position on the rocks where she struck last Sunday morning. Five hours after she struck the Niobe floated, leaking badly, and proceeded under her own power to Shag Harbor, where she is at anchor. The first to reach the side of the disabled cruiser was the United States revenue cuttr Androscoggin.

RESTRAINS CONSOLIDATION

Weist Grants Injunction In Big Mine Merger Fight.

Ingham Circuit Judge Declared Federal Court Verdict Meant Nothing. Case Has Consumed Two Weeks, and Was of State-wide Interest. Action Means Delay of Big Deal.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 2.—In an opinion handed down in the Ingham county court, Judge Howard Weist granted a temporary injunction restraining the Calumet & Hecla Mining Co. of the upper peninsula from forming a consolidation with 10 other mining companies and putting through a merger which has been on foot for some months and which involves over $82,000,000.

In granting the injunction restraining the huge merger Judge Weist has the distinction of handing down an opinion in direct opposition of opinions handed down by Judge Swan of the federal court in Detroit and by Judge A. T. Streeter of the Houghton county circuit, both judges having held that a temporary injunction should not issue.

The case which has attracted statewide attention has been in the courts for months, and the opinion of Judge Weist had been awaited in eagerness by the Calumet & Hecla representatives, who are anxious to put through the proposed consolidation.

The case was originally started by Charles M. Turner of Lansing and four other minority stockholders in the Osceola Mining Co., one of the 10 mines proposed for the consolidation, Judge Weist having recently granted an order for the defendants to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue restraining the merger. The case consumed two weeks in the Ingham county court.

The other mining companies who are involved in the proposed merger are the Ahmeek, Laurium, La Salle Copper, St. Neca, Superior, Allouez, Centennial Copper and the Tamarack.

May Call Grand Jury.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Aug. 3.—From unofficial sources it has been learned Judge Coolidge will probably call a grand jury some time in the fall. The tip is said to have already reached certain quarters and many are profiting by it. The last grand jury convened five years ago and resulted in a large number of indictments being returned against saloonists and gamblers.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Gwen Williams, aged 60, wife of W. A. Williams of Cripple Creek, Colo, stepped of the fast eastbound Grand Trunk train while it was going 50 miles an hour, near Swartz Creek. Mrs. Williams died a short time later of concussion of the brain, which she sustained in the fall. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were en route from Colorado to Lanford, Pa., to visit relatives.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease th cience has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only postive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guess work in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and its the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once its finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many familes have used it forty years. It's the most infalliable throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for La Grippe, asthma, hay-fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranted by C, A. Wright & Son.

Making apologies sometimes keeps us from doing anything that we need not opologize for.

set the world to talking, but Pau Mathulka, of Buffalo, N. Y. says he always Keep At Home the King of all Laxatives—Dr. King's New Life Pills—and that they're a blessing to all his family. Cure constipation, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia. Only 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's.

The milk of human kindness is often entirely unrelated to the cream of society.

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blooe purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I nave ever found. "They make ric.i, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them, 60 cents at C. A. Wright & Son's.

A man who is on good terms with himself is in a fair way to make a success of life.

Hay Fever, Asthma and Summer Colds

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1034 Wolfram St. Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get great relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by all druggists.

It isn't hard to learn a thing, but to find out afterward that it isn't so is d scouraging.

Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay

Kidney trouble and the ills its breeds means lost time and lost pay to many a working man. M. Balent, 1214 Little Penna St. Streator, Ill. was so bad from kinney and bladder trouble that he could not work, but he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action, quick in results—a good friend to the working man or women who suffers from kidney ills. For sale by all druggists

Early Combines and Corners.

"Engrossing" was an offense punishable in England by fine and imprisonment, and the laws against it struck at those—called "engrossers"—who planned to gain control over necessities, such as grain or foodstuffs in considerable quantities, either by purchase or otherwise, with the intention of raising prices. The statute book holds quite a series of enactments designed to prevent anything in the nature of what we know as a "corner" or "combine." "Regrating" was a criminal offense, and so was "forestalling." The former consisted of buying and selling the same day in the same market or near it, and the latter implied the purchase of merchandise on the way to market or before the hour at which the market commenced with the intention of selling at a profit, while it was also "forestalling" to circulate rumors calculated to raise the prices of commodities. Though these laws have fallen into desuetude, they were in force in our grandfathers' time.—London Mail.

Grand Rapids—Ignoring an injunction issued in 1909 against her usurping or claiming ownership of property adoining John Ball park, Bridget McNamara, one of three heirs of the large McNamara estate in this city, defied the attaches of the "101 Ranch" wild west show with a shot gun and refused to allow them to step foot upon the lot which is always used by circuses that visit the city. It required the services of three deputy sheriffs and two policemen to disarm her.

At Last.

A well known clergyman, called to other duties, says a writer in the Western Christian Advocate, preached his last sermon before the installation of his successor. The local paper, in announcing the order of services, gave it as follows:

"Sermon by the Rev. Blank; solo and quartet, 'Hushed at Length.'"

Wordsworth's Sense of Smell.

Poets have not failed to do perfumes justice, but one major poet—Wordsworth—went through life without a sense of smell and was not sorry for it. Nature, he told Aubrey de Vere, seemed to him all the more a vision. But once, and once only, did Wordsworth smell, and the prosaic occasion illustrates the unpolished household ways of his time. He sat down with his family to the midday dinner and began to carve a leg of mutton. The leg of mutton was stuffed with onions, and for once, and once only, the sense of smell was revealed to him. The onions, suddenly laid bare, conquered. —London Standard.

He Let Her Sleep.

Some years ago a Swansea vessel was caught in a terrible gale. The captain had his wife on board, and when the wind was still rising he told her to go down below and sleep, for all was well. He remained on the bridge till the mate came up and said: "We've done all we can. Hadn't you better tell the chaps to get out the boats?"

"Yes, yes, my lad, if you think so," said the captain, who knew the only choice left was whether to go down with the ship or in a small boat, which couldn't live ten seconds in that sea. The engineers came up with the news that the fires were all out. "Very well, my lads," said the captain quietly; "save yourselves if you can."

"Won't you fetch the wife on deck, sir?" asked one of the men.

"No," was the calm reply; "let her sleep, poor old girl. I am going down to have a smoke." And, smoking by the bedside of his sleeping wife, he went down with the ship.

Modern Maps.

There are Egyptian maps dating from 1400 B. C., but in spite of this long history it has been astonishingly difficult to make progress in charts until very recent times. Errors are perpetuated; truth is forgotten; advance is slow. As late as 1900 charts of the Alaskan coast issued by the United States were said to be thirty miles wrong, and nearly all commercial map makers still represent mountain chains as caterpillars, and the fringe of the shore is adorned with a blue wavy frill. As for railroad maps, the less said the better. the great railroad map of the northern belt of the United States adorning the walls of the Broad street Pennsylvania station in Philadelphia being distorted east and west, north and south and otherwise, its accuracy in large part not being over 30 per cent, yet it is a more than usually good railroad map.—Engineering Magazine.

The Last Gladiators.

It was in A. D. 430 that the edict was passed which forever abolished the gladiatorial combats. In the deserts of Lybia there lived a monk named Telemachus, who, touched by the cruel stories of the combats, went to Rome, leaped over the barrier of the arena of the Coliseum, threw himself between the groups of fighters and implored them in the name of Christ to desist. Telemachus fell, slain by the swords of the gladiators, but there never was another fight in the Coliseum. The spirit of the monk had its effect, and the above mentioned edict was soon passed Cruikshank's Fagin.

During the time Cruikshank was illustrating "Oliver Twist" he spent days traversing the east end of London in search of a face that would correspond with his conception of the character of Fagin. One day while standing before a mirror in his dining room "pulling faces at himself," so to speak, for the want of something better to do, he accidentally made the features for which he was looking. The picture, therefore, of Fagin is really, that of Cruikshank himself.

THE SOIL AND WHEAT SPECIAL TRAIN WITH ITS EXPERTS AND LECTURES GIVING AN HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT WAS OF DEEP INTEREST,

The wheat and soil special train under the auspices of the M. A. C. and the Michigan Millers Association arrived on scheduled time and stopped just south of the Council building it consisted of 8 cars which were fitted up finely for the accommodation of those who were there. The three cars where the lectures were given were regular passenger cars making it very comfortable for those who were in attendence. The first two were where the lectures on soil and wheat were given the third was for the ladies, the remaining cars being for the experimental work.

Short talks were given on the soil and wheat, and the one on wheat was particularly interesting as the proper preparation of the soil and the best variety of wheat to raise the greatest amount per acre for this section of the country was discussed.

The manner of preparing the ground were drainage, the preparation of the top soil which should be loose and fine, the subsoil fine and firm in order to have a good seed bed, and the best variety of wheat which was for this section the best hard red winter wheat Shepherds Perfection they considered best for this section. They spoke at length on crop rotation and how to get rid of grain smut, speaking of the two methods sprinkling and dipping.

The Lady, who spoke in the car devoted to ladies, gave a comprehensive talk on bread making, and advised the ladies to use Michigan wheat, as the best adapted to the making of good bread one point she brought out especially was when to add the salt to the bread for the best results, this to be added when mixing in the dough instead of in the sponge. She answered the questions of the ladies in a pleasing manner and her talk was listened to with marked attention.

The next car was devoted to the traveling libraries, picture and panphlets on Michigan birds etc. which were freely distributed to the visitors. Sanitation was worked out in the next car, as you entered the car a line of disabled veterans on the retired list which consisted of battered tin cups and dippers which they hope to relegate to the unemployed, substituting the Sanitary drinking cup, directions for making out of paper were given to all.

The Sanitary drinking fountain was on exhibit which hal a cup shaped flunge part way down for the benefit of dogs and other annimals. Sanitary cuspitores made of paper, shades to windows, tents and everything for sleeping out of door life. Another car was devoted to soil and seed. The car that drew the greatest crowd of the ladies was that devoted to the care and health of the little children, the preparation of infants food, the milk tests. Here was shown the fearful death rate among babies, due to the condition of cows milk.

Mr. Dixon who was to have given a lecture in the evening was on the train but as the train could only stop for an hour was unable to keep his date but would be glad to do so later.

The hour was a very instructive one and is a right step in the direction of educating the people in sanitation.

What Bryan Says

UNCLE SILAS SULKED.

What Aunt Melissa Had to Say When She Heard the News.

Aunt Melissa Spigott was such an exceedingly energetic talker that the youngsters of the family used to suppose that her tongue must be copper toed, because it never wore out. Uncle Silas, on the other hand, was as economical of words as a marketman is of early strawberries.

The too free exercising of this unruly member of Aunt Melissa's on one occasion gave Uncle Silas serious offense, which he manifested by a severe silence lasting for several days. At the end of that period one of the older daughters approached her mother upon the subject with the remark, "Ma, seems like you ought to make up with pa by now."

"Make up with pa!" exclaimed Aunt Melissa in great astonishment. "Make up what?"

"Why," returned the daughter, "don't you know poor pa's feeling bad yet? He's still huffing."

"Huffing—for the land's sake! How long's he been a-huffing?"

"Ever since you came down on him so hard about wasting sugar by not stirring his coffee: that's three days ago."

"Why, you don't tell me, Janie Maud!" Aunt Melissa looked amazed. "Your pore pa. Been a-huffing for three days, and I never mistrusted a thing of it!"—Youth's Companion.

LOADED SILKS.

The Way the Fabric Is Adulterated to Increase Its Weight.

If properly handled silk is the strongest and most durable of all textile materials, but the various processes of manufacture that remove much of the natural gum cause it to lose so large an amount of its weight that unscrupulous dyers and manufacturers resort to "loading," dipping the thrown silk into a solution of bichloride of tin. Some are not content with restoring the original weight of the raw silk, but "load" it until its weight is multiplied three or four fold. This operation makes the skeins more valuable, but it destroys the durability of the filaments.

Stretching the threads to their elastic limit, so that a given weight will weave a greater number of yards, and steaming to give the material an unnatural luster are other processes that prove profitable to manufacturers, but costly to the consumers and that cause many people to regard silk as an uncertain and treacherous fabric, with an inexplicable tendency to split, crack and fall into holes, even though packed away in drawers or hanging up.

The use of cheap, inferior and destructive dyes is another practice equally injurious and perhaps still

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

About 200 took the train Tuesday morning for the Sunday School picnic, at Devils Lake. Every face was bright with prospects of a pleasant outing, but alas the usual fate of picnickers was theirs, and about one o'clock the rain began to fall, making it necessary for them to seek shelter.

The picnic proper was at Pleasant Grove, which well deserves its name when it does not rain. A few stopped at Manitou Beach. At intervals there would be a bright moment when a few would venture out on the water. The crowd were jolly however and made the best of the occasion,

About Chautauqua Ventures in General

William Jennings Bryan has the following to say about the Chautauqua idea, which is having a demonstration in Adrian just now:

"The Chautauqua affords one of the best opportunities now presented to the public speaker for the discussion of questions of interest to the people. The audience is a select one and always composed of the thoughtful element of the community, and as they pay admission they stay to hear. I believe that a considerable part of the progress that is now being made along the line of moral and political reforms is traceable to the influence of the Chautauqua. An increasing number of men of prominence are availing themselves of the Chautauqua platform, and I believe that the number will continue to grow."—Adrian Telegram.

The Coming World-State

The objections of American citizens to an Anglo-American alliance are reasonable and perfectly well understood. But these objections do not apply to the merging of both the British Empire and the American Republic in a world-state or empire of peace in which each would retain intact its sovereign independence and by which neither would undertake any obligation to assist the other by arms beyond that which exists at the present moment. In such a world-state or empire of peace, if America went to war we need not help her, any more than Canada is bound to help us if we went to war for a cause which the Dominion regarded an unjust. Any remaining objection that might be taken to the constitution of such a world-state on British Empire lines would be met by the offer to take in on identical terms any other state which was willing to regard war with the other members of the world-state as civil war and to co-operate for purposes of mutual assistance.—From "The British Empire and the Federation of the World," by W. T. Stead, in the American Review of Reviews for August.

POPULATION CENTRE SHIFTS

The centre of population of the United States is four and one-quarter miles south of Unionville, Monroe County, Ind., according to a Census Bureau announcement. Since 1900, when it was six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind., it has moved thirty-one miles west and a little more than one mile north. The westward movement was more than twice that of the 1890-1900 decade. This acceleration of the westward movement is attributed by census officials principally to the growth of the Pacific and Southwestern states.

The geographical centre of the United States is in Northern Kansas, so that the centre of population is therefore about 550 miles east of it.

NASAL CATARRH

Mrs. S. Karberg Says it is Easy to Get Rid of

"A bad case of catarrh was cured for me by the use of HYOMEI. The trouble effected my head, nose and eyes, and was very annoying and disagreeable, and the cure, from the use of HYOMEI was very gratifying. HYOMEI has from me a strong recommend and endorsement."—Mrs. E. Karberg, 213 Kingsley St., Ann Arbor Mich., Nov. 16 1908.

HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-me) cures catarrh, because it gets where the germs are, and destroys them. It is made of Australian encalyptus, mixed with other healing antiseptics when breathed over the irritated membrane, it gives relief in two minutes.

Used regularly for a few weeks it will build up and heal the germ infested membrane and drive out catarrh.

If you own a small Hyomei pocket inhaler, you can get a bottle of HYOMEI at druggists everywhere, or at C. A. Wright & Son's for only 50c. If you do not own a Hyomei inhaler, ask for a complete outfit, the price is $1.00 It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds croup or sore throat, or money back.

Free Liver Remedy

It is well to stop a physical ailment at the first signs of its approach, and that is especially true of liver trouble, which can eventually give rise to so many serious complications. Many have liver trouble and imagine it is indigestion, and hence take the wrong remedy.

When the liver does not store up sufficient gastric juices it becomes sluggish, and in this way disturbs the stomach and bowels, with which it is supposed to work in harmony. Then comes the sallow complexion, the pimply face, the dull pain in the forehead, the thinning of the blood, etc. A very quick and sensible way to stop the trouble as well as to cure it is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which contains ingredients especially intended to promote the activity of the liver.

Among the many thousands who have written the doctor about the results achieved with his remedy, and who are glad to make the facts public so that others can help themselves, are Mr. Jas. Kennedy, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. A. La Rue of Smith's Grove, Ky., and many others.

These, like thousands of others, started the use of Syrup Pepsin with a sample. If you will send your name and address you can also obtain a free trial bottle. This will prove to you that liver trouble is promptly cured with this remedy or money will be refunded. Having tried it you can then buy it in the regular way of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and the latter is sufficient for an entire family.

This remedy is a vast improvement over cathartic tablets and salts, which only do good for the time being. Syrup Pepsin is permanent in its results. It is pleasant to take and does not gripe. It is especially good for all those who cannot stand a violent purgative.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

More people men and women, are suffering from kidney and bladder trouble than ever before, and each year more of them turn for quick relief and permanent benefit to Foley's Kidney Remedy which has proven itself to be one of the most effective remedies for kidney and bladder ailments that medical science has devised. For sale by all druggists.

FIGHTING FIRE IN CALIFORNIA

Flames Are Still Raging in the Big Forests.

SERIOUS CHARGES ARE MADE

Forest Supervisor Charlton Says Men Hired As Fire Fighters Start New Blazes in Order to Continue at Work.

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 7. — An unidentified fire fighter, fatally burned, was found by a patrol lying where he had fallen exhausted on the San Bernardino mountain fire lines. As the government refuses to allow claims for expense in caring for injured fire fighters, a collection was taken up to pay for the dying man's medical aid.

At least 100 sick and disabled fire fighters, with their shoes burned from their feet and their clothes in rags, are stranded here.

Forest fires are raging in City Creek canyon, twenty miles east of here. Another fire is eating its way down the eastern slope of the San Bernardino mountains.

Forest Supervisor Charlton said last night that within forty-eight hours his men would have both fires practically extinguished.

He also declares that many fires, once out, have been relighted and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed, by deliberate incendiarism of men who hired as fire fighters, started new blazes to continue their positions at 25 cents an hour. He is seeking definite evidence.

THINKS MERGER STOPPED PANIC

Roosevelt Says He Winked at Combine to Prevent Disaster.

ADDRESSES HOUSE COMMITTEE

Former President Tells of Tennessee Coal and Iron Deal, Declaring He Pursued Course He Did for Public Good.

New York, Aug. 7.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt took the witness stand in the congressional inquiry into the Steel corporation to tell what he knew regarding the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the Steel corporation during the panic of 1907.

The former president appeared in exceedingly good humor and greeted Chairman Stanley and other members of the committee ewith enthusiasm. He at once took the witness stand and began to read a statement which he had prepared, introducing his subject with a description of the financial panic conditions in the fall of 1907.

"It was the utmost duty of the administration," he read, "to prevent by all means the spread of the panic before it became a disaster."

The secretary of the treasury and he, Mr. Roosevelt said, were constantly in touch with the situation. During that time he learned that two members of the United States Steel corporation wished to see him in the morning. At breakfast the next day he was informed that E. H. Gary and H. C. Frick were waiting to see him. Mr. Bonaparte, then attorney-general, he continued, had not yet arrived from Baltimore.

"I sent a note to Secretary Root to come over," the former president read, "and he arrived at the White House."

The conference was brief, Mr. Roosevelt explaineed, and later he wrote a note to Mr. Bonaparte stating all the facts of the conference.

Mr. Roosevelt then read to the committee the letter, afterward published in the senate records of the hearing on the Tennessee Coal and Iron case in 1909. The letter set forth how Mr. Frick and Mr. Gary had submitted the proposition for the sale of the Tennessee company and how he had expressed the opinion that he did not wish to stand in the way of preventing a financial panic. The firm that was in trouble, Mr. Roosevelt said, had not been mentioned.

Mr. Roosevelt went on, going into details about the serious financial conditions in New York, and told how he had taken the responsibility to permit the transfer of the steel company and did it on his own initiative.

"It was a matter of general knowledge," he said, referring to banks and trust companies in New York, "that they held securities of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company which had no market value."

"The proposition of Messrs. Gary and Frick was, he continued, "that the United States Steel corporation should take over the Tennessee Coal and Iron company immdiately.

"It was necessary for me to act at once," said the former president, "before the stock exchange opened, or the transaction might prove useless."

He said he was convinced that acquirement by the steel corporation of thee Tenessee Coal and Iron company did not change the legal status of the corporation.

"Furthermore, I believed it would be for the public good," continued Mr. Roosevelt. "I answered Messrs. Gary and Frick that if matters were in such a state I did not want to stand in the way, and the results proved that the act was a good one, because the panic was stopped."

Mr. Roosevelt further said he had learned that the action was of great benefit to the people of the Birmingham district.

"I should have proved an unworthy public officer if I had not done as I did."

REJECTED LOVER KILLS

Triple Tragedy Is Enacted in Olivia, Minnesota.

Spurned Suitor Enters House in Night, Shoots Father, Daughter and Himself.

Olivia, Minn., Aug. 7. — William Wolff, his daughter Cora, and Edward Corey were shot and instantly killed at the Wolff home here. Edward Corey did the shooting. He was a rejected suitor of Miss Wolff.

Corey called at the Wolff home, but was told by the girl's father to leave the house and not return. Early in the morning he entered the Wolff home while the family were asleep and went to the girl's room. Her screams aroused her father, who was shot dead as he crossed the threshold of Cora's room.

Mrs. Wolff fled to Sheriff Vick's home, two blocks distant. Sheriff Vick, accompanied by Marshal Sherin, hastened to the house and attempted to enter the bedroom where Corey was. They were warned away by Corey, who threatened to shoot.

Immediately two shots were heard and when the officers forced in the door they found three dead bodies.

Both the Wolff and Corey families are numbered among the oldest residents of Olivia.

11,000 MINERS ON STRIKE

Mexican Workers Complain and Quit Because of Poor Pay.

Monterey, Mex., Aug. 7.—The strike of 11,000 miners in Eloro district is still unsettled. The chief grievance of the strikers is that they were so poorly paid that they had to live on tortillas while the foreigners in the camp ate white bread.

Several political prisoners in the prison at Chihuahua went on a strike when they were pardoned, refusing to leave the prison unless liberty was given to the other prisoners.

AID CAME TOO LATE

W. C. Green, Copper Magnate and Cattle King, Dies in Mexico.

Naco, Ariz., Aug. 7.—A special train bearing physicians and nurses arrived here from El Paso and several of the party immediately started in automobiles for Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, sixty miles to the south, where Colonel W. C. Green, copper magnate and cattle king, lay close to death from acute pneumonia.

PULL AND HAUL IN WASHINGTON

Diverse Interests Cause Delays in Congress.

REAL ACTION VERY UNCERTAIN

Differences of Opinion Upon Cotton Bill and Farmers' Wool Bill Make Future Action Extremely Indefinite.

Washington, Aug. 7. — Congress reconvened today under conditions that give no promises of definite results within the week and considerable uncertainty as to when it will be possible to adjourn.

In the senate the resolution for statehood for Arizona and New Mexico is the order of business and under the unanimous consent agreement a vote is to be taken on the resolution before adjournment. There are perhaps a dozen senators who want to debate the resolution. It is not likely that the discussion can be concluded today.

The action of the senate finance committee in according time for hearings on the cotton bill postpones report on that measure.

Some of the southern Democrats expressed the opinion that Senator LaFollette, who is the senate representative on the sub-committee of the conference committee on the wool bill, is purposely holding back a report on this measure until he gets a vote in the senate on the cotton bill. This prospect is not pleasing to those southern senators who have been hoping that a veto might be drawn out of the president on either the wool or the farmers' free list bill before the time came for a vote on the cotton bill and that in that veto message the president would make his attitude toward tariff legislation so clear that the futility of passing any more wool bills might be impressed upon the senate and the cotton bill be allowed to go over.

Senator LaFollette appears to be the key to the situation. Conferences between LaFollette and Mr. Underwood, who is acting for the house on the subcommittee of the conference committ- futility of passing any more bills and the farmers' free list bill, have practically been suspended until Thursday.

Chairman Underwood said that he believed an agreement would be reached within three or four days, but added that he did not believe that the LaFollette bill would be accepted as the compromise. It is the understanding that LaFollette is canvassing his insurgent followers to learn how many of the thirteen will stand for a reduction of the duty on raw wool below that carried in the senate bill and just how much reduction they will stand. Representative Underwood on the other hand has a recalcitrant element to deal with among his followers, represented by those members who were originally for free wool.

The consideration of the cotton bill in the senate and the prospects that the Democrats in the house will try to pass the wool bill and the free list bill over the president's veto are the factors that are likely to work delay in adjournment. The house, it is conceded, will be able to pass the bills over the president's veto. The senate will then be put to the test and an effort will be made in that body to follow the house action and override the presidential veto.

COLLAPSE OF FORTRESS

Nine Killed and Forty Injured in Accident in Spain.

Half a Hundred of the Garrison at Valencia Caught Without Warning Under the Walls.

Paris, Aug. 7.—Nine persons were killed and more than forty injured in the collapse of a fortress at Valencia, Spain, according to meager advices received here. A special train bearing ambulances and engineers was rushed to the scene of the disaster.

The falling walls buried the victims and troops set to work immediately to rescue the dead and injured. They are handicapped, however, by the big stones and timbers, and only experienced engineers will be able to remove the debris.

While only nine are known to be dead, it is believed the list of fatalities will be increased when the debris is removed.

Just how the collapse occurred is not told in the dispatches received here, but it is known that half a hundred of the garrison were caught in the catastrophe.

PRETTY GIRL TAKES RINGS

Arrested in Pittsburg for Theft Committed in East Liverpool, O

Pittsburg, Aug. 7.—As she stepped jauntily off a train at Union station, Miss Edith A. Hall, a pretty girl of Uniontown, Pa., was arrested by a telegraphic description sent from East Liverpool, O., by Mrs. Bertha Greel. Mrs. Greel is a wealthy social leader in Ohio's pottery city, who charged that her beautiful guest had taken a diamond locket, gold bracelet, a wedding ring and a diamond ring from the house.

The girl confessed her identity and surrendered the rings. The affair has caused a deep scandal. The girl did not need to steal and the police suggestion of "kleptomania" may have sufficient influence on Mrs. Greel to halt the prosecution.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 7.—City Sealer John W. Peters, having found many cases of short weight, Mayor Charles L. In his opinion some have been giving only a little more than half weight. The report included the names of the offending companies and prosecutions will follow, the matter having already been placed in the hands of Prosecutor Chester R. Montgomery.

TRY TO WRECK TRAIN

Fiends Tilt Rails with "Jacks" at a Dangerous Curve in Georgia.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 7.—An attempt to wreck the Central of Georgia train from Savannah, near here, was unsuccessful, due to the fact that the train was ahead of time and was running slowly in rounding a sharp, dangerous curve.

Investigation showed that the rails had been tilted with "jacks" so that if the train had been running at full speed all the cars would have been pitched down a twenty-foot embankment. The train carried a considerable amount of money for local banks.

Sims of this city was on the pilot of an engine when the object in front was sighted and in his endeavor to lift the boy from the track Sims' arm was drawn under the pilot and broken in two places. THE SILVER BOWL.

It Was Full of Water, and It Puzzled the Week End Guest.

A rising young politician in New York tells this story on himself. He was invited recently to spend a week end at a country house where things were done a notch or two more elaborately than he was accustomed to, and he stood in not a little awe of the solemn person who was assigned to act as temporary valet to him. The climax came when this functionary tapped at his door on Sunday morning and told him it was 8 o'clock

"All right, I'll get up," said the visitor, and the solemn man disappeared into the bathroom, from which presently the noise of water running into the bathtub was audible In half a minute more the solemn person emerged, holding a large silver bowl full of water, with which he approached the bed

"He must have seen the astonishment in my face," said the New Yorker. "I couldn't conceal it. It was a wholly new game to me, and I didn't know whether I was expected to dip my head in it or to drink it. It was an awful moment, but that man was a diplomat. He realized my embarrassment, and he just let drop in a cold and aloof tone, as if he had outsiders to deal with every day, the simple explanation:

"'The temperature of your bawth, sir.'"—New York Sun.

THEATER SEATS.

Very Annoying Indeed It Was Before They Were Numbered.

People who nowadays book their seats beforehand for the play cannot conceive of the discomfort of other days, an instance of which is given by John Fyvie in "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era."

"One of Charles Matthews' newspaper cuttings," he says, "contains a letter from a disgusted playgoer dated January, 1776, protesting against this custom of 'permitting a footman to sit for an act or two of a play next to a woman of the first quality by way of securing a place for his absent master.'

"The indecency of the practice is said to be aggravated by the usual choice of the dirtiest servant of the family for this duty, 'for the men of parade and figure are to prance before the lady's chair with lighted flambeaux or hang like a rope of onions behind her coach.'

"As a remedy for this nuisance the writer of this letter made the revolutionary suggestion that the sittings in the boxes should be numbered, a plan which does not seem to have occurred to any one previously and which was not adopted till long afterward."—London Gentlewoman.

Women In Tibet.

Concerning the manners of Tibetans a traveler writes: "The male part of the Amdo population is fond of meeting together for frivolous conversation on all suitable and unsuitable occasions. The most the men do is to go hunting and robbing The domestic work, such as tending the cattle, collecting fuel, drawing water and, in short, everything, falls on the women. While the wife is working incessantly all day long the husband grows weary with idleness and does not go to her assistance unless she is physically incapable of doing any work at all. On horseback the women are as dexterous as the men. To catch any horse she takes out of the troop, lay her hand on its mane and quickly spring on to the back of the barebacked steed and ride off in any direction she wishes is an ordinary feat for any young Amdo woman."—Chicago News.

The Oil Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "oil bird," or guacharo. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A Word of Wrath.

The word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition the speaker would stand a fair chance of being hurled overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."—London Chronicle.

Insane English Monarchs.

George III. is the only British monarch who in modern times has been placed under restraint and deprived of his authority because of insanity, though similar measures were at one time contemplated with regard to his son, George IV., the monarch who has been described as "a bad son, a bad husband, a bad father, a bad subject, a bad monarch and a bad friend" and whose conduct while on the throne was characterized by an eccentricity which bordered on lunacy.

The insanity of George III. was really brought about by the dangerous illness of his youngest and favorite child, Princess Amelia. The unlikelihood of her recovery preyed upon him and hastened the attack of mental derangement which incapacitated him from reigning, although he had previously suffered from this malady. He died hopelessly insane at Windsor after losing his sight as well as his senses.

Potluck Supper

SERVED TO THE MEMBERS OF THE TOWN AND CIVIC IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY ON THE LAWN OF MRS. J. D. SHULL

The Town and Civic Improvement Society met at the pleasant home of Mrs. J. D. Shull on Saturday afternoon About 40 ladies were present.

The meeting was called to order by the President Mrs. J. D. Shull, minutes of last meeting were read by the Secretary Mrs. Milburn Keysor the report on the finacal condition of the society showed $233.88 on hand at that time out of this sum $50 had been voted to the historical society for the improvement of Boulder Park. There is now on hand $165. The Committee on the the fountains reported the two sanitary fountains one costing $32.50, one $54.50.

A motion was made to have a flange placed on the fountain on Chicago Street for the benefit of the animals, which was carried. Then came the report of the flower committee They spoke of the gardens they had visited, many of which were not yet in bloom so the prizes could not be awarded.

The question arose as to how much the parents could assist the children in this work, as many of the children were to small to get the ground in proper order, by the members of the Club, as we understand it, this work is meant to be educational, and if such is the case, it matters little what help is given by the parents so long as they are interested in the work and have created in them the love of nature, and of the beautiful and artistic.

Miss Helen Anderson gave a very intresting talk on the grounds allotted to the children in the slums of N. Y. and what was raised in them, many not being 2x4 ft. in size.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson then gave a report of the work done by the historical society, their work is incomplete as yet, and she was not ready to give her final report.

This closed the business of the day. A potluck supper was then served.

So many of our readers have been interested in the letters written by Mr Stocking of Long Beach, Calif., that we thought they would also be interested in the Golden Wedding of himself and wife that occurs August 25. Invitations have been received by some of the friends in Tecumseh that are very artistic in their appearance being in gold print on a white ground.

The Clinton Courier

GETTING INTO LINE WITH OTHER UP-TO-DATE PAPERS, AND GIVING ITS PATRONS, AN ALL HOME-PRINT SHEET.

The Clinton Courier beginning with August 4 is giving its readers an all home paper Country papers one after another are abolishing patent insides and becoming more progressive and up to date. Everything appearing in a home print paper can be controlled. No veiled advertisements, booming Canada or anything objectional for which the other fellow gets the pay.

In an all home print paper the owner receives pay for anything coming under the head of advertisement. These are some of the reasons given for the change and the Courier promises to give its readers in Clinton and surrounding country, a paper devoted to the interest of Clinton.

We congratulate Mr. VanDeMark on his new venture and wish him the best success.

WANDERERS HEARD FROM

The Herald is is receipt of some Alpine roses sent by Dr, and Mrs. P. B. Hardy. He says that they were gathered from altitude of 7,500 ft. and should be a bright scarlet and hopes they may reach us in good condition, which they did, retaining their original color. The Alpine rose never grows at a lower altitude than 5,000 ft. They grown in clusters like phlox only not as tall, and the leaves are simular to our rose leaves but much smaller.

Speaking of themselves he says they are stopping at a pretty little Tyrolese village called Kitzbuhel in Austria near the Bavarian frontier southeast from Munich and are surrounded by high mountains and perpetual snow on all sides (a little bit different the weather we are enjoying?) They are both well and having a most enjoyable trip.

OBITUARY

After an illness of nearly six years from a stroke of paralysis, Michael J. Martin departed this life July 23, 1911 in Ridgeway Mich, at the age of 82 yrs. 4 mo. at the home of his son J. D Martin with whom he had made his home the past 21 yrs.

His remains were laid to rest in the Ridgeway cemetery July 26 1911 Rev. Geo. W. Scarlett officiating.

He was born in Lodi, Seneca, Co. N. Y. March 23 1829. Son of Stephen P. E. Martin and Abigail Clarkson-Martin, natives of Middlesex Co. N. J. tracing their ancestry back through colonial days to Holland. Stephen Martin and wife with two children, John C. and Eunice removed from N. J. to Seneca Co. N. Y. where three more children were born Michael J. Harriott and Catherine M., In the year 1833 the family came to Michigan, then a territory, settling in Macon township, but later removed to Raisin township, where Harriott R. was born, who became the wife of Asel Russell. The death of Stephen Martin occurred in the year of 1846 at the age of 54 years. He was greatly honored by all who knew him.

The mother lived to be 93 yrs. of age; her death took place in Macon at the home of her daughter, Catherine M. Youngs.

In the spring of 1847 Michael James with his mother's family again took up their residence in Macon where he engaged in farming and teaching school. On Oct. 22 1856 he was United in marriage to Jane A. Miller, daughter of Lewis V. Miller and Sarah Huff-Miller, who also came from Seneca Co. N. Y. Her death occurring Oct. 28, 1881. To this union four children were born. Ida B. who became the wife of Frederick Beland dying in Oct. 1892. J. Dewitt, S. Sophia, Harry T. Who with one sister and seven grand children survive him.

Michael James during his active life became widely known as a man of his word, true and faithful to all pledges and interested in all things pretaining to the welfare of the community, social and state interests.

Being a man of more than ordinary intelligence and mental force. He became one of the charter member of Macon Grange where he held ever position in that order and preformed his share with willingness and interest enliving into it with all his heart, making it a pleasure to listen not only but to work with him. Mr. Martin like his ancestor of old had a strong leaning for the Christian church and when a church of that denomination was started in Macon became an active supporter of it and upon conversion in latter years united with that church and served in the consistory until the dissolution of the church. He was its treasurer for years and preformed his part with credit to himself and prosperty to the church.

Becoming disabled in latter years he still cherished and worked to the best of his ability in its behalf.

No one felt keener regret than he at the prospect of giving up tnis old South Church. As affliction increased with advancing age. Mr. Martin still retained his mental faculties and manifested a great interest in everything of public importance. A great reader he could retain and intelligently reproduce what his mind absorbed having a wonderful memory for dates and event, he could bring them before you with surprising accuracy. As to his piety no one could question it.

A firm and strong belief inherited from his sturdy forefathers sustained him in his years of retirement and calmed and soothed him in his last long sickness.

Knowing himself to be a helpless burden he appreciated the loving efforts of a heroic service to minister to his necessities and make comfortable his last days. Whatever necessity demanded or occasion called for was cheerfully rendered by his loved ones where he made his home. But this labor of love was not to be rewarded with returning health

Dying as he had lived, loved and loving by all who knew him. "So God giveth His Beloved sleep."

Oil Sprinkling Being Used To Lay Dust On Railroad Beds

With the experiment now being tried upon own streets, we are all interested in the dust laying properties of oil, and one of the best uses it is being put to by the railroads, to lay the dust on the road bed. The Illinois Central is now using it on the suburban lines out of Chicago, which will render travelling much more pleasant. A number of roads are trying the process every one thinks and hopes it will prove a conqueror of dust.
